DEWEY, F. D. R. READY TO LAND FINAL PUNCHES

Democrats Split by '16 Year' Issue.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—With Gov. Dewey vigorously pressing the attack on the New Deal and the fourth term, and with President Roosevelt forced upon the defensive all along the line, the Presidential election canvass is forging to the finish three weeks from next Tuesday.

What the outcome will be is anybody's guess at this time. If the President should be reëlected, it will be by a very narrow margin, according to the calculations of his own party managers. They think he will be fortunate to squeak thru. On the other hand, the Republican managers are persuaded that Dewey is going to win by an electoral college majority that may attain landslide proportions.

Dewey Invades Midwest.

All that has gone before in the campaign so far is skirmishing. Now it is a pitched battle. Gov. Dewey is about to open the big gun barrage in a series of speeches in the middle west. The President is awaiting the onslaught with his speech writers ready to pass the ammunition for the defense.

The Republican party is united to a degree unapproached in decades. The Democratic effort to organize dissident Republicans for Roosevelt has been a signal failure, while Democrats for Dewey clubs are flourishing in more than 25 states.

Democratic leaders at national headquarters, harassed by the split in their party and by the apathy of regular Democratic county and precinct committeemen, make no secret of the feeling that the campaign has been going to their disadvantage, except in one particular. That is the war in Europe. When it looked as if Germany would be definitely beaten before November they could see their chief argument for the retention of Mr. Roosevelt in office going glimmering. That argument was: Don't swap horses while crossing a stream.

A Question of Time.

It was admitted by the Democratic managers that whenever the war in Europe should end the horse swapping contention would lose force, for people would reason that with the defeat of Hitler the stream would be virtually crossed, the conquest of Japan being merely a question of time.

Now that the surrender of Germany before the election appears improbable and that the war in Europe is likely to run well into 1945 the Democratic leaders are emphasizing anew the horse swapping argument, tho they are treading gingerly on the thin ice of attempting to capitalize the prolongation of the war, particularly in view of the aspersions on Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and even the President himself in this connection.

The Germans have been fighting like demons, impeding the allied advance with tragic cost to our forces in casualties since about the time that Secretary Morgenthau's plan to raze the industries of Germany and reduce the conquered nation to an agricultural country was revealed. The President thought so well of this project that he summoned Morgenthau to the Quebec conference a few weeks ago to present it to Prime Minister Churchill.

Danger of First Magnitude.

Critics of the administration were quick to charge that the Morgenthau plan had roused the Germans to fight to the last ditch and frustrated any chance there might have been of their surrender in the near future.

The inferential blame of the administration for causing the consequent needless sacrifice of the lives of American soldiers was recognized as a political danger of the first magnitude. The President, therefore, lost no time in taking the problem of the treatment of postwar Germany away from Morgenthau and handing it to Secretary of State Hull, who opposed the Morgenthau plan, and to Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley to sit on till after the election.

The fourth term as an issue has turned out to be about what the

An Editorial

Three Years of Silence

There are two versions of the commander in chief before the American people. There is the man who rides on the coattails of the admirals and generals who are successfully prosecuting the war. And there is the commander in chief of Dec. 7, 1941, of whom Mr. Roosevelt never speaks.

He is armed now with the pomp and ceremony of the title for vote getting purposes. But the last thing he is ever going to concede is that he was saddled with the responsibilities of the position on the day that war came to Pearl Harbor. If there was any commander in chief then it was not Mr. Roosevelt.

The disaster visited upon the fleet at Pearl Harbor by Japanese torpedo and bombing planes was the direct result of an indefensible disposition of the Pacific fleet and a course of diplomacy inviting great risks but making no adequate preparation to meet them. Mr. Roosevelt was deeply involved in both policies.

It was neither army nor navy policy to base the fleet at Pearl Harbor. For years it had operated out of San Diego, 2,500 miles farther from Japan. Not until Mr. Roosevelt became President was the navy taken to Pearl Harbor and then it was kept moving on tactical exercises and not berthed in harbor, for the army and navy commanders knew how easily the channel could be blocked if an enemy were to sink a single ship in it. Rear Adm. James O. Richardson, who was commander in chief of the fleet until 10 months before the Jap attack, was reportedly relieved at his own request because of his opposition to Pearl Harbor as a fleet base and because he felt the Pacific fleet was being weakened by diversion of units to the Atlantic.

Mr. Roosevelt then jumped his former naval aide, Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, over 46 admirals senior to him and placed him in command. On Dec. 7 the fleet was not only at Pearl Harbor, but the American men of war were tightly berthed side by side and stem to stern within the narrow confines of the harbor, almost like sardines in a can. The Japs couldn't miss, nor did they.

It is not known whether Mr. Roosevelt occasionally plays with toy soldiers, but his pretensions as an amateur naval strategist are sufficiently described by his collection of ship models. The psychologist regarding their orderly arrangement on the mantelpiece might be struck with comparisons to the tidy disposition of the fleet. The submarine net across the harbor mouth in Hawaii could be considered as offering the same protection against deterioration as the feather duster at home.

While the ships of the line were condemned to the inglorious role of sitting ducks, Mr.

'Voice' Egged; Bobby Sockers Sock the Egger

New York, Oct. 14 [Special].—Alexander J. Dorogokeepetz, 18, a skinny young man with good aim and no discretion, tonight shelled "The Voice" into silence with a pair of eggs and was promptly mobbed by several hundred adolescent females who foreswore swooning for fighting.

Firing from a sixth row seat in the Paramount theater in Times Square, the weedy Alex missed the range with his first egg. His second piece of hen fruit smacked Frank Sinatra right in the left eye. The third smashed on Frankie's chest.

Sinatra, resplendent in a gray, double breasted suit, was doing a medley at 7:25 p. m., and had reached the touching, "I don't know why I love you like I do," when Alex arose from his seat and let fly.

Grabs Him After Third Egg.

"I grabbed him right after the third egg," said Aileen Sandak, 15, of the Bronx. "My friend hit him with her binoculars. I got in a couple with my handbag."

So did a lot of other members of the bobby socks set. They set upon the marksman with umbrellas, lunch bags, coats, and what have you?

They beat, slapped, and kicked him until ushers and half a dozen policemen fought thru the ranks of angry girlhood and dragged him out. Alex was lucky. Beyond a ripped lapel of his jacket, and bruises, he got off free. He was hauled to the manager's office, his protectors fighting off Sinatra partisans every step of the way.

Frankie didn't actually stop singing until the third egg splattered over his chest. He pulled out a handkerchief, wiped himself off carefully and strode disconsolately offstage, having made one futile effort to speak above the squealing.

Lights Turned On.

His disappearance was the signal for the house lights to come up. A slide of the American flag was thrown on the screen and the orchestra went into the national anthem. It had to play "The Star Spangled Banner" several times before it had the calculated effect of restoring a semblance of order.

In the manager's office, the policemen looked Alex over curiously and tried to discover what had prompted him. What they got was this:

"I don't know why I did it," Alex said, "but I did."

The theater management and Sinatra agreed they would press no charges against Alex, who was escorted from the theater by two detectives and two uniformed cops. Fearing girlish reprisals against their man on the outside, the officers took Alex directly to a subway station and told him to go home.

NAZIS CAPTURE FIRST AMERICAN GENERAL, ARTHUR W. VANAMAN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—The war department disclosed today that Brig. Gen. Arthur W. Vanaman of Milville, N. J., has been captured, the first American general to become a prisoner of Germany. Gen. Vanaman's internment in Germany was disclosed in an announcement that he had been awarded the Legion of Merit for prior service in this country as commander of the Oklahoma City air service command.

First reported missing in action over Germany last June 27 while acting as an observer on an aerial bombing mission, Vanaman was ascertained on Sept. 16 to be a prisoner of war in Germany, the department said. Gen. Vanaman, returning from overseas service in July, 1941, was appointed secretary of the air staff, headquarters army air forces, Washington. In February, 1942, he became commanding general of the materiel center at Wright field, Dayton, O., and in March, 1943, assumed command of the Oklahoma City [Okla.] air service command.

Eighteen generals are listed as prisoners of the Japanese, most of these having been captured in the fall of the Philippines.

AURORA LIGHTS SKY OVER WIDE MIDWEST AREA

One of nature's most beautiful phenomena of the heavens, the aurora borealis, last night illuminated the sky northeast of Chicago with a fairly brilliant light and evoked cries of delight from those who looked upon it.

The weather bureau in Chicago said it had reports from stations reaching from Ohio to Iowa that rays were visible during the night. Forecaster J. G. Badner said the aurora also was reported visible in southern Indiana, where the phenomenon is not common.

The aurora, which has a maximum frequency of 60 degrees north latitude in this hemisphere, last appeared brilliantly before Chicago four years ago.

Accompanying a magnetic storm, the aurora last night did not fail to cause some disturbance. Press Wireless reported it had lost contact with Belgium, Paris, and London and trans-Atlantic cable lines were slowed and messages garbled.

Murder Trial Jury Acquits Mrs. Andrews

Salinas, Cal., Oct. 14 [Special].—Mrs. Frances Andrews, 37, Carmel valley oil heiress, was acquitted of murder here tonight by a jury of eight women and four men before whom she has been on trial for the past month for the slaying of Jay Lovett, 19, son of neighboring share croppers.

The jurors spent only three hours deliberating the case and took only one ballot to reach the "not guilty" verdict.

As soon as the clerk had announced the jury's finding, Mrs. Robbie Lovett, mother of the slain boy, rushed to the jury box and assailed one of the jurors, Mrs. Charlotte Clark of Carmel.

Demands Conviction.

"That's not what the judge told you to do," the mother shouted. "You had plenty of evidence to convict her. You have children of your own, and some day your own acts——"

A deputy sheriff seized Mrs. Lovett and led her back to her seat. Mrs. Andrews, in tears, expressed thanks to the jurors and to her attorney.

Judge Henry Jorgenson thanked the jurors and said, "We must accept this as a fair verdict. If people criticize your verdict, it is because they were not in court to hear the evidence."

Jealousy Killing Charged.

The prosecution contended during the trial that Mrs. Andrews shot Lovett in a jealous rage because he spurned an inviation to have dinner with her and dined with another woman. The defense said Lovett's death may have been due to accident, suicide, or murder by an unknown person, and asserted there was no evidence placing Mrs. Andrews at the scene at the time of the shooting.

The acquittal of Mrs. Andrews leaves the shooting of Lovett an unsolved mystery. Jurors said after their dismissal that they did not discuss the possibility of suicide, but considered the case solely from the point of view of whether the state's evidence against Mrs. Andrews warranted her conviction.

Veteran Falls 13 Stories to Street; Lives 4 Hours

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP).—More than four hours after falling 13 stories from the window of an employment agency, Vernon Pickett, 29, honorably discharged staff sergeant from the Santa Ana army air base, died at a hospital today. Police said Zella Hertz, interviewer for the agency, had just informed Pickett he would have to return later to inquire about his application for a job when he turned away without a word and leaped from the window. Pickett was said to have been a graduate of the Missouri School of Mines.

BIGGEST FLEET OF SUPER-FORTS RAIDS FORMOSA

Vital Plane Repair Town Attacked.

A B-29 BASE IN WEST CHINA, Oct. 14 (AP).—A massed formation of B-29 Super Fortresses, larger than any previous raiding group of the giant planes, joined in the air battle of Formosa today, dropping record bomb tonnages on the important Japanese airforce arsenal and other installations at Okayama.

Smoke rising an estimated 22,000 feet over the town marked the most successful Super Fortress mission to date. Returning pilots jubilantly reported that clouds opened to frame their target perfectly for visual bombing in close-packed groups.

"This is only the beginning," said Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May after the raid. "It was the best show yet."

See Earlier Damage.

Fortress crews said damage inflicted by carrier-based navy planes earlier this week was clearly evident, and were loud in their praise of the navy bomber crews. Enemy opposition was negligible, the returning flyers said.

The principal targets were the important Japanese air force arsenal and other installations at Okayama, which is four miles inland from the island's southwest coast. Its air fields, aircraft assembly plants, modifications centers and repair shops make it one of the prime objectives on the island.

The B-29 attack was another step in the tactical pattern of the American advance into the perimeter of Japanese home defenses. Earlier B-29 raids were on isolated enemy war industries. The official announcement said the aggregate tonnage of incendiaries and high explosives was the greatest ever dropped in a single operation.

Four Fail to Return.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—The war department said tonight that four B-29 bombers had not reported back to their base after today's raid on Formosa, but that it was believed they might turn up later.

The 20th bomber command describes Okayama as "the most important air target south of Japan proper."

Claim Flagship Sunk.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP).—The monitors of the Blue network here reported today they had picked up a Tokyo Japanese broadcast saying the Nipponese "have sunk an additional aircraft carrier, an extremely large craft, believed to be the flagship of the United States task force."

Two morning raids by 450 American carrier planes preceded the B-29 Super Fortress attack on Formosa, Japanese headquarters reported. The Japanese bulletin, which was Tokyo's first mention of the Super Fortress attack, said 100 of the giant planes hit the island. It claimed, however, they were repulsed "almost without dropping any bombs" and "fled in defeat."

Fighters Down No B-29s.

B-29 SUPER FORTRESS BASE IN WEST CHINA, Oct. 14 (AP).—Super Fortresses in their first nine raids set the amazing record of not losing a single plane shot down by enemy fighters, Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay of the 20th bomber command said today.

"Our mission is to drop bombs and more bombs," Lemay said. "I would be just as well satisfied never to knock down a Jap fighter, but the big boys can take care of themselves anywhere. The record shows it."

The score of nine missions shows seven Super Fortresses lost to enemy action but Lemay stressed there was not a single authenticated case of a ship reported downed by Japanese interceptors. In the same nine raids, B-29 gunners shot down 37 Japanese planes, probably destroyed 36 and damaged 59.

Bomb Amboina, Ceram.

ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, Oct. 15 [Sunday] (AP).—Allied bombers have raided Japanese installations at Amboina and Ceram, dropping 130 tons of bombs, today's bulletin announced.

The Ceram airdromes were pounded and strafed. At Boela oil storage tanks were fired in an attack Friday. One fighter was lost by antiaircraft fire.

3,000 OF AACHEN'S CIVILIANS WALK TO YANK CAMP

OUTSIDE AACHEN, Oct. 14 (AP).—About 3,000 German civilians evacuated from Aachen moved today up a cobblestone road of Nazi defeat to a 20 acre shelter area. Food for 5,000 civilians has been ordered there.

All the people in this column are walking and carrying every sort of container from handbags to cloth baskets. Only the aged, babies, and the ill are brought out in trucks.

Here, a woman rides in a dump cart pulled by another woman. There, two women carry an immense basket between them. There are children of five, and men of 70 and more.

Glad Yanks Arrived.

A man of about 60 stopped before one of our military policemen and told him in perfect English: "We are so glad you have come. We have waited so long."

When some of our planes came over, a woman put down her bundle, looked up, and asked "American?" Told that the planes were American, she smiled broadly.

You get the impression that these people are working laboriously to ingratiate themselves.

They all say they have had nothing to eat for four or five days.

One Wears Fur Coat.

One brassy young woman who just passed was better than well dressed. She wore a fur coat.

These evacuees have been given one order: Not to light candles after dark as was done last night, drawing German fire down on their shelters.

While most of them try to appear as the best of friends, one woman declared that if England had only given up to the Germans as she was ordered in 1940 "all this wouldn't have happened."

Brazil Lands More Troops for Italy War

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A SECRET ITALIAN PORT, Oct. 11 [Delayed].—Amid a colorful spectacle which seemed to have been lifted intact from a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, the second contingent of the highest paid overseas army in the world—the Brazilian expeditionary force—landed in this war torn port today.

The few American soldiers who happened to be at the dock when the ships drew in watched round-eyed as thousands of the new arrivals were greeted uproariously by members of the original Brazilian unit which has been in Italy since July and in the combat line for months.

As the gang planks went over the Brazilians aboard rushed down and those ashore rushed up—and they met in the middle. There they hugged, kissed cheeks, waved happily at the commands of milling Brazilian photographers, then hugged and kissed all over again just for the sheer enjoyment of it.

Sergeant Lands First.

By agile scrambling and much dexterous use of his elbows, Sgt. Luis Laal of Sao Paulo was the first of the new arrivals to set foot on the soil of Italy.

But his fame did not last long. He was not two feet off the gangway when a perspiring military policeman hustled him and the others behind him back aboard the vessel. Then an American colonel who is the Brazilian liaison officer explained in a stentorian voice that no troops would land until officially greeted by the commander of the Brazilian expeditionary force, Maj. Gen. Joao Baptista Mascarenhas de Moraes.

United States soldiers had literally paved the way for the Brazilian landing. From the gang planks to the assembly point a few hundred yards away were truck convoys waiting to carry the new arrivals off to the staging area. As the Brazilians trotted happily along the walks grizzled American ser-

YANKS DRIVE ON AACHEN HEART FROM 3 POINTS

Pry Germans Out of City's Cellars.

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—United States troops converged from three directions tonight on the heart of Aachen, which at least for the moment was left to its fate by German relief columns so badly mauled outside the stricken city that for 24 hours they have been unable to muster a counter-attack.

From the northeast, the east, and the southeast, the infantry dug the dwindling German garrison from houses and cellars, moving slowly thru the rubble to hold down casualties.

The United States 1st army could afford to take its time, for the half mile wide corridor leading from the city was as good as closed after a few small units were believed to have slipped in last night to swell the garrison to perhaps 2,000 men.

Knockout 80 Tanks.

The crack German infantry and tank divisions which threw the British out of the Arnhem bridgehead and then were rushed south to Aachen, were broken up northeast of the city by aerial and artillery bombardment that knocked out more than 80 tanks.

Every effort to bring up more tanks in an attempt to throw the Americans from hard won positions had been frustrated, a high American officer said.

The veteran division assaulting Aachen took 1,000 prisoners in five days, including 300 yesterday and 60 in the early hours of today.

Allied warplanes, which had wrecked much of Aachen, turned their guns, rockets and bombs on targets behind the lines as the doughboys fought deeper into the city.

Narrow Escape Route.

Aachen police, forced by the Nazis to fight as Commandos, said upon their capture that the city had been without water or electricity for three weeks.

Three miles north of Aachen the Americans were fighting slowly south, narrowing the escape route even further, but held up by stubborn resistance from mobile guns and tanks.

Eleven miles southeast of Aachen the doughboys were bounding back from a reversal at Germeter, slowly regaining the territory they had yielded in the forest of Hurtgen.

The British 2d army to the north, moving up its lines toward the Maas [Meuse] river facing Germany midway between Arnhem and Aachen, hammered out a half mile gain south of Overloon. The Germans had strewn the fields thickly with mines and had to be rooted from dug-in positions along the last six miles to the Maas.

Sever Rail Line.

Light bombers, attempting to cut off reënforcements, severed the railway line leading to a bridge at Venlo, 16 miles southeast of Overloon, and blew up the west end of the bridge over the Maas at Roermond, 25 miles south of Overloon.

On the west side of the Dutch corridor, the British beat off a counter-assault southeast of 'S Hertogenbosch and scored limited gains.

Canadians on the seaward flank were under large scale assault from strong enemy forces trying to drive them from positions astride the south Beveland causeway, where dominion troops have cut off escape by land for Germans on the islands in the Schelde estuary.

Driving a mile south from their Schelde beachhead west of Antwerp, the Canadians were little more than two miles from linking up with comrades clinging to the eastern end of a bridgehead over the Leopold canal.

Under Day Long Attack.

The Canadians north of Antwerp were under day long attack yesterday from positions south of the big German base of Bergen Op Zoom, 19 miles north of Antwerp. The assault was resumed this morning. Columns of tanks and other enemy vehicles were moving toward the battle area.

The Germans were using the cover of woods north and northeast of Woensdrecht, five miles south of Bergen Op Zoom.

The fighting farther west along the south bank of the Schelde estuary was raging hotter and the Canadians were forced back 500 yards from positions west of Hoofdplaat, site of their original beachhead.

On the southern end of the 460 mile front, the German war bulletin said the United States 7th army had gone over to the attack in strong force on a broad front east of Remiremont, 30 miles north of Belfort.

Forest Nearly Cleared.

There was no allied confirmation of this, but it was reported officially that the French 1st army in this area in an advance of about three miles from previously reported positions was nearing Cornimont, only 11 miles from the vital Schlucht pass thru the Vosges mountains to the Rhine.

The United States 3d army cleared the Germans from three-fourths of the forest of Parroy, a sore point east of Nancy from which the Germans have been mounting counterattacks, but no other changes were reported.

A spokesman for the German high command took advantage of the lack of important allied advances to boast tonight that "we shall use the sixth winter of war to turn to the offensive next spring and to carry war back again to French soil."

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

The German Saturday war bulletin, as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"On the isthmus leading to the island of Zuid [south] Beveland five heavy enemy attacks were repulsed. In trench fighting around Aachen the Americans, despite strong tank attacks, were able to make but little headway against the gallant resistance of our grenadiers. The Americans devastated the town of the old German emperors with the heaviest bombs and shells. German positions outside the town also were attacked. On the northern fringe of the city, west of Stolberg and in the forest of Rotgen, several enemy attacks were dispersed.

"Southeast of Remiremont the Americans renewed their heavy attacks on a wide front. Fighting is still going on at several breakthru points.

"Heavy enemy artillery fire on Dunkerque and unsuccessful enemy attacks off Lorient are reported from our coastal base.

SPANISH CROSS FRONTIER, FIGHT FRANCO GUARDS

PARIS, Oct. 14 (AP).—Spanish Republicans here announced today that Republican guerrillas crossed the Spanish frontier from France Tuesday night and attacked Franco government guards at Figueras, 25 miles inside the country.

The announcement said the guerrillas liberated all political prisoners in Figueras and removed several guards to France as captives.

A memorial service held in Paris today for the late Luis Companys, president of Catalonia, who was executed in Madrid four years ago, was attended by hundreds of Spanish Republicans and assumed the nature of a demonstration against Franco.

CARLSON RAIDER SPENT 30 DAYS BEHIND JAP LINE

Corp. J. E. Place.

After serving 29 months in the South Pacific, which included 30 days behind Japanese lines on Guadalcanal with the Carlson Raiders, Marine Corp. John E. Place, 21, of 1513 Victoria st., has returned home on a 30 day furlough.

After enlisting in the marine corps in January, 1942, Corp. Place saw action on Midway, Guadalcanal, and Bougainville. He joined the group sent behind the Jap lines on Guadalcanal to discover enemy installations. The unit, he said, lived almost entirely on rations stolen from the Japs but were able to fulfill their mission and to kill more than 500 Japs.

"Our casualties were very light," he said, "but the lack of food and water made us weak. That we were able to survive is a real test of the marine training."

JUNKERS WILL KEEP YANKS ABROAD, SAYS STARS AND STRIPES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The Stars and Stripes, United States army newspaper, has an editorial illustrated by a picture of a "German Junker" named Col. Von Auloch, who, the editorial points out, "has a monocle in his right eye, a fishy stare in his left," has his "hat tipped at a cocky angle" and a "cocky smile on his lips."

"This guy wont let you go home," the editorial tells the United States soldiers. "You can't get rid of guys like Auloch. They go back home to their estates . . . start plotting and planning . . . make shrewd deals . . . pick a new paper hanger to stir up the masses . . . and finally comes Der Tag."

The editorial continues that it is "because of guys like Auloch that some of us aren't going home right away when the 'cease fire' is sounded. It is because of guys like him that unless we are tough and careful millions of us or our kids may be leaving home in another 20 years."

RHINE CROSSING WILL END WAR, SAYS GENERAL

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TWELFTH TACTICAL AIR COMMAND HDQ., France, Oct. 14.—Brig. Gen. Gordon P. Saville, head of the 12th tactical air command, gave as his opinion today that Germany will quit as soon as the allies consolidate a bridgehead across the Rhine.

The general said he believed the enemy could not stand on any position once the river is crossed and the Siegfried line broken, and that the loss of the Rhine would be the final symbol of defeat to Germany.

"Until it is crossed we are not on soil which the Germans hold sacred," he said.

Harder Than Shore Landings.

Saville said the crossing of the wide river is a more difficult operation than an amphibious attack to get a beachhead on a hostile shore. For the Rhine is strongly guarded and it doesn't have inlets and bends for gaining isolated footholds as do coasts. Furthermore, the allied navy cannot support an attack on the river. It is a job for infantry, artillery and air forces.

Concerning his own command, Saville said bad weather and terrain difficulties in the Vosges-Belfort sector have cut combat air support in the last month to 35 per cent of what was accomplished in the same period in Italy last year. His pilots have had the equivalent of only eighth days of good flying weather since Sept. 15.

Destroy 2,188 Trucks.

Close air support for the American 7th army and the French 1st army has been extremely difficult, Saville said, because woods and slopes conceal enemy targets. The enemy's defense has been largely infantry—often snipers and small groups which do not make clear or fruitful targets for his Thunderbolts.

From Aug. 15—D day for the southern France invasion—until Oct. 1, the general's flyers have destroyed 2,188 enemy trucks, damaged 1,555, destroyed three or four tanks and damaged 22, destroyed 400 railroad locomotives, and 1,311 railroad cars, damaged 142 locomotives and 2,387 cars, destroyed 81 enemy aircraft on the ground and 14 in the air, and damaged 143.

The 12th tactical also knocked out 49 railroad and highway bridges and neutralized 128 gun positions. To accomplish this the air command flew 15,955 sorties comprising 3,147 missions.

16 MILLIONS IN SOLDIERS' LOANS HALF PAID BACK

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The American Red Cross has more than 14 million garments ready to clothe liberated Europeans, Basil O'Connor, president, told a press conference here today. Nearly a million of these are in Egypt while large consignments are in Italy ready to be moved in behind the victorious armies.

The Red Cross also has loaned $16,000,000 to soldiers and more than half of it has been paid back. Most of the loans were made in America to finance last leaves before embarkation. The only test for a loan is the legitimate need by the soldier and no assessment is made of his ability to repay.

Harvey Gibson, American Red Cross commissioner, said 84 club cars manned by more than 300 girls were handing out hundreds of thousands of cups of coffee and 150,000 doughnuts daily to front line troops.

WAC IN AIR RAID IS LIKE A MAN—SHE'S SCARED!

Sgt. Jane Johnston.

Sgt. Jane Johnston, WAC veteran of 20 months overseas service, reported yesterday that women are no more frightened than men soldiers during air attacks by the enemy. Miss Johnston came to the United States for reassignment. She lives with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Johnston, 1703 W. 104th pl.

The sergeant was in the first company of WACs to be sent overseas. She said there were "quite a few air raids when we first got to North Africa" and that there is "something wrong with anybody who isn't scared in an air attack."

Sgt. Johnston was supervisor and chief operator at the telephone switchboard in Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters in North Africa. She later served for three months in Italy as a teletype operator in a communications center. She enrolled in the women's auxiliary army corps on Aug. 27, 1942, and remained in the organization when it became the women's army corps.

REDS, YUGOSLAV TROOPS BREAK INTO BELGRADE

Fighting Is Reported in Streets of City.

LONDON, Oct. 15 [Sunday]—(AP).—Russian and Yugoslav partisan forces fought their way into the 2,000 year old fortress city of Belgrade yesterday and began a street battle against a doomed German garrison whose commander and staff fled, Marshal Tito's headquarters announced last night.

With Berlin acknowledging that "strong motorized" soviet forces had reached the Yugoslav capital and Moscow telling of the capture of its suburbs, the fall of the city was expected shortly.

In Hungary the fate of that last big axis satellite nation was being decided in great, four day old tank battles raging on the Magyar plains between Szolnok, 50 miles southeast of Budapest and Debrecen, 115 miles east of the Hungarian capital. Budapest's leaders were reported seeking armistice terms.

Nazis Report Big Battle.

A late D. N. B. German news agency report said the Hungarian battle was in a "complete state of flux," and said the bitterest fighting was at Debrecen, last big escape route for German and Hungarian forces fleeing from Transylvania.

Moscow announced that Russian troops had reached Belgrade's outskirts, apparently allowing the Yugoslavs the honors of being the first to announce major developments inside the capital. Kumodraz, on the edge of Topcider park, which is on the southern side of Belgrade, was among the Yugoslav localities swept up, the Russian bulletin said.

A Bulgarian war summary also announced the fall of Nis, key junction on the Belgrade-Athens and Belgrade-Sofia railways 128 miles southeast of the Yugoslav capital. Yugoslav Partisans combined with Bulgarian units under Gen. Stantchev in the liberation of that town, Sofia announced.

Sixteen miles north of Nis Russian and Yugoslav partisans descending the railway captured Aleksinac, the soviet bulletin said, and also Paracin, 26 miles northwest of Aleksinac.

The allies were fast rolling up German troops in the lower Balkans, in many cases surrounding considerable forces and setting traps for their annihilation. The Yugoslavs have estimated that between 100,000 and 150,000 Germans never will be able to escape to the Reich.

The capture of Paracin put the Russians only 34 miles east of Kraljevo, last possible rail escape route for the Germans fleeing from southern Yugoslavia and Greece.

In the drive westward across Yugoslavia the combined Russian-Yugoslav forces captured Arandelovac, 32 miles south of Belgrade and the same distance east of the communications center of Valjevo.

Fight South of Riga.

South of fallen Riga in Latvia the Russians captured 10 localities, the bulletin said, including the rail station of Balozi, four miles below the Latvian capital, and Plakaniesi, nine miles outside the city.

Altho the Russians were reported battering at the approaches to Memel and Tilsit in German East Prussia, Moscow was silent about land operations on that front.

NIGHT RAIDERS HIT NAZIS AFTER BIG DAY RAID

LONDON, Oct. 15 [Sunday]—(AP).—The R. A. F. bombed Germany early today with one of the largest night armadas ever seen by coast watchers, shortly after 3,300 planes in daylight raided Duisburg, Cologne and other German cities.

More than 8,500 tons of bombs were dropped on German rail and canal communications in and immediately behind the Siegfried line yesterday.

R. A. F. heavies burst all records for the weight of bombs aimed at a single target by dumping 5,600 tons on Duisburg, 35 miles north of Cologne. They were accompanied by 300 Spitfires and Mustangs. Antiaircraft fire accounted for most of the 14 R. A. F. bombers reported missing.

A thousand United States Liberators and Flying Fortresses pounded Cologne, 36 miles east of Aachen. Five railroad yards were hit.

Other heavy bombers swung south and struck Saarbrucken and Kaiserslautern behind the German troops facing the United States 3d army on the Metz-Nancy front. From all these attacks 14 bombers and eight fighters are missing.

A large force of 15th air force heavy bombers flew far to the northeast from their Italian bases and hit targets in Silesia, including oil fields, a synthetic oil factory at Blechhammer and a refinery at Odertal, and then flew on to pound communications in Hungary, Yugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia.

NEW 6-TON BOMB SMASHES U-BOAT PENS AND DAMS

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—The air ministry announced tonight that the R. A. F. has been breaking dams, sea walls, and submarine pens recently with a new type, 12,000 pound earthquake bomb which it described as "undoubtedly the most destructive air weapon ever used."

The big weapon combines great penetrative power with a terrific blast effect, the air ministry said, adding that "no other bomb used in this war, either by ourselves or by the enemy, has had these two advantages."

"Even the old type 12,000 pound factory buster detonated on the surface and destroyed its target by the blast alone," the ministry observed.

Could Wreck 100 Buildings.

The blast of either one makes that of the Nazi flying bomb look like a toy.

The new bomb is three times the size of the original blockbuster, one of which is known to have destroyed 30 buildings during an attack on Emden. That would mean that under the same conditions the "earthquake" might flatten 100 buildings. Scientists estimate that its blast damage covers an area of approximately 80,000 square yards.

It is streamlined so that it will penetrate into the earth even from moderate altitudes. It carries a delayed action fuse, so that the bomb does not explode until it is inside or under its target. The head contains the heaviest possible charge of "a very powerful explosion."

Buries Flying Bomb.

Its extraordinary penetrative power was shown in recent attacks on the submarine pens at Brest. They were among the strongest shelters ever built by man, with concrete roofs 12 feet thick.

"Four 12,000 pounders hit the roof and drilled their way right thru the concrete to explode inside," the air ministry said.

The new bombs also have been used with great success in knocking out German long range weapon sites. One of them dropped on a hillside in France buried hundreds of flying bombs the Germans had stored in limestone caves.

It took only one to put the big German battleship Tirpitz out of action. They also were used to drain the vital Dortmund-Ems canal, to crumble the sea walls around Walchern Island off the Dutch coast, where the Germans had long range guns, and to smash the Dembs dam in southern France.

BRITISH, GREEKS OCCUPY ATHENS, END NAZI RULE

Greek Capital Free After More than 3 Years.

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP).—British and Greek troops, converging by sea and air today, occupied Athens and its nearby port of Piraeus and ended more than three years of tyrannical Nazi rule in the Greek capital.

A special bulletin announcing the liberation of Athens, taken by the Nazis in April, 1941, at the height of their Balkan conquests, said the operation was conducted by sea borne and air borne forces, but made no mention of any enemy opposition, indicating the truth of earlier unofficial reports that the Germans had withdrawn to the north and left the city in the hands of Greek Partisans.

The landing force was carried into port by the British navy, including some Greek ships.

U. S. Planes Carry Troops.

"British air borne troops, carried in aircraft of the United States army air forces, played a leading part in the operation," the bulletin said, but the precise role of the air borne forces was not stated.

Greek pilots flying R. A. F. Spitfires are participating in the liberation of their homeland an air ministry announcement said.

The airmen were in the Greek air force before the fall of Greece and many made daring escapes after German occupation to join R. A. F. forces in the middle east.

Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie has been appointed land task force commander in Greece and leaders of various Greek Patriot factions already have agreed to place their units under his orders, it was announced.

The sea borne units which landed and seized both the capital and the port appeared to be an advance force for a large relief expedition assembled to rush food and medical supplies and other essentials as soon as the country is liberated.

Corfu Island Seized.

Earlier, the surrender to other British landing forces of the Greek Island of Corfu and the entrance to the Adriatic, which had been believed to be strongly defended, was announced. Not a shot was fired in the Corfu operation.

Such German forces as have been in Greece in recent weeks were believed to be in full flight northward thru Yugoslavia, hoping to reach their homeland before their last few routes of escape are finally snapped shut by the Russians and the Yugoslav Partisan forces.

The Cairo radio said German forces had withdrawn from all of the province of Attica and that fighting had broken out at Marathon, 14 miles north of Athens where in 490 B. C. the Greeks defeated the Persians.

Government Asks Unity.

It was considered likely here that the Greek government is returning to Athens with a new landing force to set up a provisional administration and begin preparations for plebiscites in which the Greek people have been promised they will have the opportunity to choose their own form of government.

The government has issued a plea to Greeks to forget their factional differences in order to prevent possible interference with the immediate task of chasing the last Nazis from Greek soil and bringing much needed relief to the people whose sufferings under the Germans has been the most acute in all Europe.

FIGHTER UNIT AND CHICAGO FLYER CITED

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP).—The veteran United States 31st fighter group, which has shot down at least 495 enemy planes in more than two years of combat flying, was awarded a second distinguished unit citation today by Maj. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, commander of the 15th air force.

Lt. Col. Yancey S. Tarrant, Brownwood, Tex., the group's commander, and three others were awarded silver stars for gallantry.

Silver stars also were awarded to Capt. Thomas R. Hardeman, 4141 N. Ardmore st., Milwaukee, Wis., and Capt. Robert E. Riddle, 1523 E. 66th place, Chicago, Ill.

JAPS EXPECTED TO PUT UP HARD FIGHT AT TIDDIM

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 14 (AP).—Japanese forces virtually trapped at the northwestern Burma city of Tiddim below the India border appeared today to be intent upon a last ditch stand.

North of Fort White, the Japanese withdrew to new positions nearer the Tiddim-Kalemyo road. Explosives dropped by R. A. F. Hurricanes produced landslides at a narrow point of that road, preventing supplies from reaching the enemy and blocking the escape route, it was announced.

Today's bulletin said tanks of a British cavalry regiment, with artillery and air support, attacked Japanese positions north of Tiddim and that Indian troops repulsed a counter-attack and ambushed and dispersed another enemy group in the area.

REPORT MAGYAR PEACE GROUP ON WAY TO MOSCOW

Bulgarian Delegation Also Said to Have Left.

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Hungary, her capital helpless in the path of the Red army, has sent a delegation to Moscow to ask for peace, the Ankara radio said tonight.

There was no confirmation of the report, which said that the delegation "is already on its way," but there have been persistent reports all week that the Hungarians were seeking an armistice.

Associated Press Correspondent Daniel de Luce said in a dispatch from Moscow that the political circumstances surrounding the Red army's conquest of Hungary "may be compared" with those under which the Italian armistice was kept secret for five days. The point was not further amplified and several paragraphs were missing from the dispatch, perhaps a result of censorship deletions.

Bulgarians Reported on Way.

While all indications thus were that Hungary was about to drop out of the war, or may even already have done so, the Ankara radio also quoted a Sofia announcement saying that a Bulgarian delegation had left for Moscow to negotiate armistice terms. The Russians announced earlier in the week that the Bulgars had accepted preliminary conditions which included evacuation of seized Greek and Yugoslav territories. Ankara said this evacuation had started and would be completed next week.

The Nazis admitted in broadcasts tonight that Hungary was in a panic and that "all Europe is watching with a sense of tension," but Berlin insisted that the German army would fight for every foot of this strategic area "as if it were German soil."

Budapest "Frightened."

D. N. B., the official German news agency, reported that all of Hungary was in a state of alarm, with Budapest "frightened of its fate."

The Algiers radio, casting some doubt on the sincerity of the German boast that Hungary would be defended to the last by the German army, quoted Ankara reports that the Germans had begun to dismantle all factory machinery in Czechoslovakia for transportation into Germany.

The Moscow radio said that the German legation staff already had fled Budapest "because the hopelessness of the situation is becoming ever more obvious."

In London Count Michael Karolyi, 69 year old former president of the first Hungarian republic, said that he was ready to return to Budapest if his countrymen should call him back and the allies raised no objection.

TRAITORS PUT IN CELLS USED BY NAZI TORTURERS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ANTWERP, Belgium, Oct. 14.—Within the walls of Breendonck the Gestapo torture center which Belgium is to preserve as a museum of Nazi methods, the Belgian government with ironic justice has incarcerated some of the men and one woman responsible for betraying their compatriots to the Germans.

Breendonck was a fort of World War I. The Nazis enlarged it for their purposes and surrounded it with barbed wire. Within the fort are two rows of brick cubicles seven feet square. Their occupants were chained by the hands to the floor so that they could stand only in an ape-like posture and eat only in dog fashion.

It is there that the Belgians who informed for the Gestapo are now incarcerated, but they are neither chained nor tortured. Another dungeon had steel rings in its ceiling from which prisoners were suspended for whipping. Its only other equipment was a small stove with long iron pokers sticking from it.

40 Foot Waves Damage Coast of North Wales

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Waves 40 feet high lashed up by a northwesterly gale ripped seawalls on the north Wales coast Oct. 4, it was reported tonight. Promenades were battered, coastal bungalows and golf courses were flooded.

68 Tomorrow, but Allman Contends It's No Birthday

Police Commissioner James P. Allman is a man of few words and he brushes aside formalities. Tomorrow is his 68th birthday. Asked what his plans for celebration were, he smiled and said, "I haven't had a birthday in years. It's another working day." Allman has been police department head for 13 years—the longest tenure in the city's history. He is unmarried and lives at 6237 University avenue.

BRITISH TOWN GIVES ILLINOIS COLONEL PLAQUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Col. James A. Kilian of Highland Park, Ill., received a double honor at a ceremony in the Midlands recently. He was awarded the legion of merit by Brig. Gen. Harry B. Vaughn, commander of the United Kingdom base section, for "exceptionally meritorious conduct" as commander of a large replacement center, and at the same time presented with a plaque by the citizens of Lichfield, Staffordshire.

The citation praised Kilian's "tact, initiative, and sound judgment" in conducting his command thru which many thousands of soldiers have passed en route to the European theater of operations.

The citizens of Lichfield made the presentation as a token of their gratitude for Kilian's efforts during "Salute a Soldier week," during which British war bond sales were promoted. Carved from English oak, the plaque depicts British and American sergeants shaking hands, and is surmounted by a colored shield of the city arms and a carved and gilded American officer's cap badge.

ALLIES FIGHT ON TO END WAR THIS YEAR: COL. LANZA

Air and Ground Drives Intensified.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

A very determined effort is being made to end the war with Germany as soon as possible. At the beginning of September, the allied advance thru France had been so rapid as to lead to hopes that Germany no longer had the strength to continue on much longer. It can now be seen that this was a wishful thought. Germany was not exhausted.

A difference of opinion exists between military critics who believe that the Germans are approaching exhaustion. To some it seems that a few more hard knocks are all that will be needed to overcome her. Others think that the war is going to last into next year.

Hard Fighting Goes On.

The truth is that nobody knows just how the Germans are fixed. It may be that the war is not near over. Prime Minister Churchill was recently careful to state that it might well last for several months into 1945. But maybe the other school of thought is correct. Not to miss this chance, the hard knocks which many believe will lead to the early destruction of German military power are in process of being delivered. They will be reviewed briefly.

American, British, and French troops, with small contingents from other allies are attacking the continuous front from the North sea to the Swiss frontier. This has been under more or less continuous assault since the first week of September. Not very much has been accomplished. The greatest advance has been in the Low Countries, due to the dropping of air borne troops in rear of the German lines. Altho this failed to break thru the German front, it succeeded in obtaining a 50 mile advance.

The next greatest advance has been in France opposite the Vosges mountains, for gains up to 12 miles. Aachen has been nearly surrounded, but at Metz, second great gateway into Germany, progress has been slight.

Two Methods Followed.

The allied high command is confonted with the need for a plan which will enable the strong German resistance to be broken this year, and at an early date. Two methods are being employed.

One is in the air. Here the allies have a superiority which is uncontested. Allied planes outnumber German planes at least 25 to 1. The allies can go anywhere they desire at any time.

The present bombing campaign is on a greater scale than ever before. As a continuation of a two year program, the Germans have had that much time to prepare for it.

Fight Gen. Mud.

The second of the allies' methods is to intensify the campaign on the ground. This is not so easy. Ground troops do not operate as well in the mists and muds of northern Europe as in the summer. Mud interferes with the operation of all motor vehicles including tanks and other combat cars.

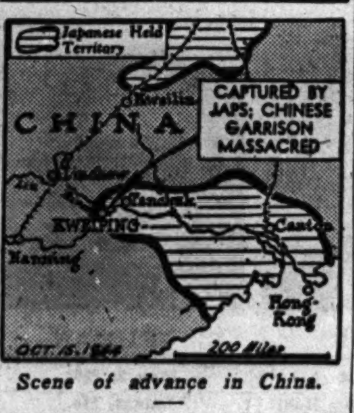
Attacks are still being delivered against Aachen and Metz as the key entrances to Germany. An extension of the allied attack north of Aachen is expected by the Germans, who report having identified allied troops assembling in Holland for this purpose. Since the Germans know about it, a strenuous resistance should be expected, provided Germany has troops to do it with. And nobody knows much about that.

Two Edged Weapon.

A psychological attack is being made. An example is to be made of Aachen. Since it declined the invitation to surrender it is now to be destroyed by shelling and bombing, and every one in it will be killed if necessary. This fate is to be publicized thruout Germany. The intention of this awful example is that it will induce the next cities to be attacked, to surrender quickly to avoid a like fate.

This type of psychological attack is a two-edged weapon. It may have the opposite effect to that anticipated.

Japs Take Town



Scene of advance in China.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 14 (AP).—Japanese troops, who outnumbered the defenders four to one, have captured Kweiping in southern Kwangsi province after killing the Chinese garrison there to the last man, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Violent street battles preceded the fall of the town, and enemy dead litter the area, a bulletin said. The Japanese launched the final attack Thursday. No estimate was given of the number of Chinese slain.

The fall of Kweiping opened a new phase of the Japanese drive against Kweilin, key defense center for southeast China and provincial capital of Kwangsi, 135 miles to the north.

The town, 25 miles northwest of Japanese-held Tanchuk, lies at the juncture of the Liu and West rivers 70 miles southeast of Liuchow, important rail city which is itself 95 miles southwest of Kweilin.

WAIKIKI FRAYED AT EDGES LIKE A HULA SKIRT

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Oct. 4 — [By air mail].—Honolulu, peace time playground, is no riotous spa in war times.

Even Waikiki beach, crooned over and subject of much Hollywood film footage, looks a little frayed about the edges. Despite an imposing mountain background and palm trees, it has the appearance of Oak st. beach with half the customers gone home.

Some statistically minded fellow figured out the other day that there are 288 men to each woman hereabouts. As a result when some military or naval lad snares a date he is accompanied about town by 574 envious eyes.

Bars, Contents Odd.

Bars are open at odd hours—say noon to 3 p. m.—with the stools more crowded than voting booths in Chicago river wards. Besides some of the usual potable beverages there are unusual local concoctions which might be of vast use in lubricating engines.

Even the local political campaign has felt the restraining hand of war. Time was when no self-respecting Honolulu politician would think of making a speech without a full complement of hula girls, an orchestra, and enough leis to go around.

Curfew at 10 o'Clock.

An occasional lei draped candidate is about all the citizenry can expect this year. Otherwise it's about the same as a rally in Madison county with Casimir Griglik, Democratic nominee for clerk of the Illinois Supreme court, throttling verbs from the rostrum.

There is a curfew law in town. Every one must be off the streets by 10 p. m. or be liable to a fine.

Only thing puzzling about this regulation to date is what a man could possibly concern himself with if he did stay out after 10 o'clock.

DIES OF KNIFE WOUNDS.

Cleveland Ellis, 24, Negro, of 3601 Giles av., died in Michael Reese hospital yesterday of stab wounds allegedly inflicted by Henry Heard, 24, Negro soldier on furlough from Camp Ellis. Ellis was held by police.

GUATEMALA UPSET, BUT PRESIDENT STILL RULES, MEXICO HEARS

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Oct. 14 (AP).—Guatemala is in a state of disorder, says a traveler from there by air today, but President Federico Ponce and his government still are in power.

This person told diplomats here the situation is serious but that it does not appear to be an organized revolution. His information coincided with that received thru other channels.

Reports from refugees crossing the Mexican border at Tapachula, however, said followers of former President Gen. Jorge Ubico had overthrown the government and that President Ponce is a prisoner.

SECOND SITDOWN IN 3 DAYS HALTS WORK FOR B-29S

Eleven hundred employes of the Minneapolis-Honeywell corporation, Pulaski rd. and Division st., engaged in a seven hour sitdown strike at the plant yesterday, the second such demonstration in three days, over a projected reduction in the number of working hours. The company manufactures precision instruments for B-29 Super Fortress bombers.

The strike, called when the first shift was scheduled to go to work at 7:30 a. m., was terminated at 2:30 p. m. when local 228 of the International Association of Machinists [AFL] union, agreed to submit its grievance to federal conciliators. The first sitdown, which began Thursday night and ended Friday morning, involved 600 employes.

Thomas McDonald, vice president of the company, said the company had proposed to reduce the working hours of the day shift from 58 to 53 hours a week, and the night shift from 60 to 55 hours.

B-29 SUPERFORT COST REDUCED TO $600,000 EACH

Dayton, O., Oct. 14 (AP).—It cost $3,392,396.60 to build the first B-29 Super-Fortresses, headquarters of the air technical service command announced today, adding that Super-Forts now cost approximately $600,000 each.

Brig. Gen. Kenneth B. Wolfe, ATSF chief of engineering and procurement, used the B-29 as an example of the cost of building a new warplane and said: "Into the cost of the first model goes all the years of engineering, experiments, tests, and changes." He explained the cost drops rapidly once a new plane starts coming off the production line in quantity.

He said the B-29 had a minimum of changes before actual production was started, but it cost $95,241 for tests to alter the tail, $72,500 for enlarging the bomb bay, and $15,600 for new propeller tests.

ESCAPED FLYERS PLAN GIFTS FOR FRENCH HELPERS

Many from Illinois Ask Packages from Home.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 14.—To show their gratitude to French men and women who made it possible for American flyers who had been shot down to escape from occupied Europe prior to D-day, members of the 384th bombardment group are planning a Christmas surprise for French children.

Each man in this Flying Fortress outfit, which includes many from Illinois, is writing to friends at home asking that they be sent gifts such as candy, chewing gum, toys, shoes and clothing.

Shortly before Christmas the gifts will be flown to France in Flying Fortresses and distributed under supervision of the Red Cross. The gift packages should be addressed to a member of the group by name, care of the 384th Bomb Group, APO 57, care of the Postmaster, New York City. They also must be marked "Attention Prisoner of War Officer," who will make the necessary arrangements in case the addressee is not here when the gift arrives.

Many Men from Illinois.

It cannot be revealed how many airmen returned to England via the French underground, but members of the group say it was "plenty" and in more than one case the French paid with their lives for their aid.

The following members of the group are from Illinois:

U. S. RESUMES FRENCH TIE AS EMBASSY OPENS

Nation's Rebirth Hailed by Ambassador.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Diplomatic relations broken off between the United States and the Vichy government of France Nov. 8, two years ago, virtually were renewed with Gen. Charles de Gaulle's provisional government today when Ambassador Jefferson Caffery formally took over the American embassy in Paris and later presented letters of credence to De Gaulle's foreign minister, Georges Bidault.

Jefferson Caffery.

Caffery also carries with him letters of credence to Gen. De Gaulle as head of the French government but he said these would be presented later.

At a reception after taking over the embassy the new ambassador said he was fully assured that France soon would have a place as a great nation among the powers and this, together with President Roosevelt's declaration at his press conference yesterday that Washington already had given de facto recognition to De Gaulle, caused rejoicing in the French press and government circles here which have been clamoring against the delay.

British in Same Position.

Caffery's position here is the same as that of the British ambassador, Alfred Duff-Cooper, who took over the British embassy in Paris a month ago but has not presented letters to De Gaulle. It is the usual practice for a new ambassador to present his letters first to the foreign minister and then to the head of the government. The delay in presenting the letters to De Gaulle himself may be only protocol or it may be a wish to see a little further how public opinion lines up behind him.

Later today, as a token of American respect for the French nation, Caffery went to the Arch of Triumph and laid a wreath on the tomb of the French Unknown Soldier. A good sized French crowd was held back by gendarmes when Caffery made his formal entry into the embassy building accompanied by Councilor Selden Chapin who has been acting as charge d'affaires and Hugh Fullerton, councilor general at the embassy.

Caffery Questioned.

Caffery was questioned by French journalists at the reception that followed, on the American attitude in view of the President's statement yesterday that Washington had given de facto recognition to the provisional government here. ment here.

"France is a great nation and every one is looking forward to her recovery," he told them. He added that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull both were sympathetic to the idea of France resuming its place as a great world power in the council of nations. The French interpreted this as meaning that Washington now is backing the French for a seat in future world conferences.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Refugee business men in Britain have started a "carpetbagging" racket. They are reported to be offering large sums to neutral government officials in London to help them get home to their liberated countries before ordinary commercial facilities are available.

DE GAULLE CALLS ON FRENCHMEN TO END RIVALRY

Says Improvised Rule Must Cease.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 14.—France's effort to emerge from the ruin of war and to recover its former position must be made by suppressing all local and improvised authority or influences from without the country, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, chief of the provisional government, told his compatriots in his first nation-wide broadcast from Paris tonight.

His reference seemed to be to the danger which contending political power groups represented to the national unity of France and also to what some have feared to be communistic influence.

Improvised authority may have been justified by conditions at one time, De Gaulle said in referring to the various resistance organizations against Germany, but the time has come when they must all be fused in some central and national authority.

"Get Back to Work."

After telling his audience that the first need in France was for every one, now that the exuberance of liberation has ended, to get back to hard work, De Gaulle said, "next, the national effort must be carried on in a national framework."

"That means," he said, that "every one, high and low, who is legally responsible, must fully assume responsibilities and improvised authority, which at one time might have been admissible, now must cease, for it threatens to devolve into an intolerable abuse and a source of confusion.

Wants Army Command.

"The task of governing devolves upon the government. The government holds and must account for this task to the national sovereignty as soon as the national sovereignty can express itself by an election of representatives thru universal suffrage."

De Gaulle then claimed the right to direct France's armed forces as the chief appointed by responsible ministers. He said the power to render justice belonged entirely to the "magistrates designated to render it by the state."

Deplores Political Rivalry.

All encroachments upon the central authority by rival groups will constitute a grave blow at the war effort, at the reconstruction program, at national cohesion and finally at the international situation of France, De Gaulle warned his hearers.

And finally he appealed against political rivalry and the confusion which has been mirrored recently in the struggle for influence in the national council in which metropolitan forces of resistance apparently have won out over a group which carried on in Africa during the occupation.

LONDON PAPERS SHUN UNION PARLEY AFTER CURB ON REPORTERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The majority of the London daily newspapers have decided not to send reporters to the annual conference of the Trade Union congress because the congress has ruled that only newspapermen holding union cards will be admitted, it was reported tonight.

Altho most of the labor reporters of Britain's big dailies are members of the National Union of Journalists, affiliated with the TUC and could attend, the newspapers regard the ban on nonunion men as interference with a free press. They view it also as an application of the closed shop policy to which the Newspaper Proprietors' association has declared its opposition.

The big British papers will cover the conference thru agency reports. Four London papers have refused to go along with the other newspapers and expect to send representatives to the conference. They are the Labor organ, The Daily Herald; the coöperative paper, Reynolds Sunday News; the Communist Daily Worker, and the tabloid Daily Mirror.

GAVE NAZIS ALL OF ITALY'S GOLD; GETS 30 YEARS

ROME, Oct. 14.—Vincenzo Azzolini, former governor of the Bank of Italy, who turned over to the Germans the entire gold stocks of Italy, today was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment, payment of civil damages to the bank and expenses. The Bonomi government's high court of justice by passing this heavy sentence served notice that anti-Fascist justice in Italy will be political, rather than legal.

Azzolini's trial has aroused considerable interest from that viewpoint. Of eight judges only three were professional magistrates, while the other five were representatives of political parties. The president, however, also was a magistrate. This demonstrated that to punish Fascists it is necessary to use the same kind of tribunals the Fascists used.

Refused to Risk Death.

Public Prosecutor Cristoforo de Villa even made a slip of the tongue and referred to the high court as a "special tribunal," which was Mussolini's court to try offenses against the Fascist regime.

Azzolini was condemned because he would not risk imprisonment or death to save a generation of Italians from the grave economic consequences of losing the entire gold basis of their currency. He represented in all eyes the prosperous bourgeois who profited thru fascism while others suffered.

Demand Clean Justice.

To condemn Azzolini the high court had to go thru the formalities of an ordinary legal trial, whereas the judgment was not based on legal grounds.

This difficulty has aroused some demand for a more clean-cut form of justice. However, everybody agrees Azzolini deserved punishment and radical newspapers were demanding the death sentence.

FEDERAL BALLOT GOES TO SEA AND IS CAST—TO FISH!

Ensign Can't Find Any Use for It.

BY JAMES SLOAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 14.—America's widely assailed federal ballot system went to sea recently aboard a Liberty ship which has just arrived at a British port—and the administration's election plan merely provided the fish in the Atlantic with some reading material.

The officer in charge of the ship's armed guard received instructions on the voting plan by state and federal ballots. An ensign was directed to distribute the absentee ballot cards by Aug. 15 and again before Sept. 15. On both occasions he had possible voters sign cards to indicate that they were offered a chance to cast a ballot, but was able to find only one applicant who expressed a desire to vote.

Radio Gives Instructions.

Before the vessel sailed from New York the ensign was supplied with pounds of informative material on election procedure and while at sea the radio brought 126 messages apparently aimed at spurring him into getting out the vote. Among the messages were many which cautioned that none of the ship's armed guard higher than the 3d class petty officer could discuss politics with the men.

No such restrictions were placed on the ship's crew, and several heated political arguments were staged in the officers' mess under a drawing of President Roosevelt. There was no picture of Dewey aboard, tho several of the crew members indicated favor for him.

When interviewing sailors, seamen and officers regarding the election, the gunnery officer pointed out to each that he could vote the state ticket as well as the federal ballot, and assured all that the state ballot would get precedence over the federal when received at the voter's home precinct.

Posts the Candidates.

The ensign set election day for Oct. 10 and posted posters listing, with several errors, the candidates for federal office in 20 states allowing use of the hotly contested federal ballot. The ensign stood by with 100 federal ballot forms for those among the 72 persons aboard who might desire to make use of them. Nobody voted!

Resignedly that night the ensign gathered up the mass of ballot information, pulled the red and white posters from the mess halls and consigned them and his 100 unused ballots to a watery grave to fulfill the order to destroy unused ballots.

PUSH NAZIS BACK ALL ALONG LINE IN NORTH ITALY

Rome, Oct. 14 (AP).—American and British armies shoved the Germans back along virtually the entire front in Italy today, and Canadian infantry and tanks struck across the southern edge of the Po plain to within four miles of strategic Cesena.

Cesena is 17 miles northwest of the Adriatic seacoast jumpoff point of Rimini, and 13 miles farther up the Via Emilia on the route to Bologna lies Forli, an even more important highway town and objective.

The American 5th army to the west was fighting steadily over the mountains. It was within nine miles of the Bologna-Rimini highway at two points, and was engaged in a bitter battle 10 miles south of Bologna.

Clear skies, welcome release from the almost ceaseless rains of Italy's autumn, were allowing the sodden battlefields to dry and releasing the armor of the 8th army.

EX-GOV. PHILLIPS FREED BY JURY IN BRIBE TRIAL

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 14 (AP).—Leon C. Phillips, governor of Oklahoma from 1939 to 1943, today was acquitted of a charge of conspiracy to commit bribery during his term in office by a District court jury which deliberated 25 minutes.

County Atty. George Miskovsky said that as far as he was concerned the verdict ended prosecution of Phillips on a charge growing out of a 1943 investigation by the state legislature.

Mrs. J. W. Eisiminger testified before the legislative committee she paid $8,000 for a parole for her husband, an Oklahoma city osteopath serving life for murder by abortion. The state presented testimony that $500 of the payoff went to Phillips.

geants eyed them for a moment and shrugged.

Chicago Colonel There.

Among a dozen American army officers and soldiers who arrived as a liaison unit with the Brazilians were Lt. Col. Gordon F. Swarthout, Chicago, Ill.; Sgt. Thomas Collier, 31, 904 Park View; Joliet, Ill., and Capt. Frank Cameron of Madison, Wis.

Collier said that for him the high point of the voyage came one night when the ships were about five days out of Brazil.

"I walked out on deck and there was a group of Brazilian Indian soldiers singing "God Bless America" in Portuguese in a samba rhythm, and accompanying themselves on jungle tom-toms," he said.

The other American army liaison officers explained the extraordinary system of pay which makes the Brazilian expeditionary force the highest salaried overseas army in the world. When a Brazilian soldier is sent overseas his base pay is tripled.

The Brazilian private overseas receives the equivalent of 120 American dollars a month or exactly twice the pay of a United States army private.

HAROLD SMITH'S A LEGEND; IT IS HIS TAKING WAYS

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Harold P. Smith.

Sgt. R. F. Greenhalgh.

Whose foxhole always looks like a combination machine shop and Hollywood cottage? Who saved a dropping transport plane with a screwdriver? Who tried to swipe nine Jap trucks under fire? Who copped the binnacle and compass off a Jap ship and set them up in his foxhole?

The answer—if you ask the boys on Guam, Saipan, and Bougainville—would be "Why, Smitty the Looter, of course." This would be THE TRIBUNE'S Harold P. Smith, war correspondent in the Pacific. He is called Harold [Looter] Smith to distinguish him from W. Eugene [Wonderful] Smith, the magazine photographer, and Irving [Horrible] Smith, the newsreel camera man.

Winnetka Sergeant Tells Why.

All this was explained yesterday in Chicago by Staff Sgt. R. F. Greenhalgh, 785 Rosewood av., Winnetka, staff correspondent of Yank, the magazine of the combat forces, who is home on leave.

"They call him Looter because he comes back loaded with souvenirs," said Sgt. Greenhalgh, who knows all the news correspondents from the spots where the action was the hottest. "Wonderful Smith is so called because he penetrates to the fiercest fighting, gets magnificent battle pictures, then comes back and announces: 'Boys, you can't get away from it; I'm wonderful.'

"Horrible Smith did much the same things, but because he didn't brag they named him Horrible, in contrast to Wonderful. But Looter Smith—your fellow—is the one the officers and G. I.'s all talk about, even men who have never seen him. The legend about him has spread from one island to another.

Fearless Under Fire.

"He is absolutely fearless under fire, and he's a swell buddy to the men and officers. One reason they talk about him is that they like him so much. The other is the bizarre things he does. The day he tried to start nine Jap trucks under fire on Guam he came back hopping mad. But he came on a Jap bicycle, which he later fixed up with more gadgets than a movie star's roadster. And he came alone, thru deadly territory."

Sgt. Greenhalgh said Smith's aerial exploit with the screw driver is known thruout the Pacific. Bound from Kodiak, Alaska, to Seattle, an army transport with 14 men aboard ran into a storm and began icing up and losing altitude. The alcohol distributor of the de-icer was out of commission. Smith pulled out a screw driver, which he invariably carries, fixed the de-icer, and went back to his seat.

Served at Sea in World War I.

Harold Smith is almost 44 years old. He served on destroyers in World War I. and his service record ironically bears a personal commendation from Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels for his heroism in rescuing drowning Japanese. Their ship was torpedoed by a U-boat off Ireland in 1918.

Before entering the army in 1941 Sgt. Greenhalgh was a free lance commercial artist in Chicago. He went overseas in August, 1943, and saw action at Bougainville, Guam, and Wake. He will return to his post this week.

LOUISIANA COURT BACKS NEW DEAL ELECTORS SLATE

Ruling by State Supreme Judges to Be Asked.

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 14 [Special].—The First Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today that the Democratic state central committee acted within its rights in replacing three Presidential electors who refused to pledge their votes to President Roosevelt.

Atty. Frank Looney, representing the three rebel electors, made an immediate motion for rehearing, which was denied, and then served notice that he will apply to the state Supreme court for writs of review. This application will be made Monday in New Orleans, he said.

Upholds District Court.

The appellate court decision upheld the refusal by a District court last Monday to order Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr., to include the anti-New Deal electors on the official ballot. At issue was a legal point regarding the state committee's right to make ballot changes after Oct. 3, the deadline for filing nomination papers.

The ousted electors were E. Wayles Browne of Shreveport, Bronier Thibault of Donaldsville and George Billeand of Broussard. They were arbitrarily removed from the ballot by the state committee Oct. 7 after they had defied an ultimatum to back Roosevelt.

Only Two Favor F. D. R.

Only two of the 10 electors named by the committee last March took the Roosevelt pledge. Five others resigned and were replaced with New Deal conformists, as were the three who refused to resign.

The appellate court said its decision was based on a precedent set by the state Supreme court in 1940 in which the state committee was upheld in substituting James A. Cremillion on the ballot as a candidate for secretary to state in place of Earl K. Long.

ORPHAN ANNIE'S 'HORSE SENSE' WINS PROFESSOR

Little Orphan Annie, TRIBUNE comic strip character, was described yesterday by Walter Blair, professor of English at the University of Chicago, as an outstanding "horse sense" character of the present day. He spoke before the Caxton club in the Mid-Day clubrooms.

He said that the horse sense strain—homely wisdom leavened by humor—has been an important aspect of American tradition since the days of Benjamin Franklin. Another persistent strain, he pointed out, has been that which has resulted in the "tall tales" which have gathered around the names of such heroes of history or of legend as Davy Crockett and Paul Bunyan.

A Greeley Kin Goes West —R. A. F. to Great Lakes

Horace Greeley IV., great-grandson of the famous New York editor, became a member of company 1655 at the Great Lakes naval training station yesterday. He already has seen service with the British royal air force. A brother, a pilot in the American troop service command, has been missing over France since D-day.

EVERY MOTHER'S SON OF THEM IS FOR LEO CARR

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

Leo Carr, whose father and grandfather came from County Cork, made one of his shorter speeches last night as an Irish feis turned into a political rally. Carr, who is the Republican nominee for sheriff, was guest of honor at the celebration in Carmen's hall, Ashland av. and Van Buren st.

Between the step dancing and the lyrics of the Irish tenors, there wasn't much opportunity for oratory, but rich brogues around the hall kept insisting that the Irish voters should turn out on election day for Carr.

Band Hardly Heard.

Several thousand persons had packed into the auditorium and the green and gold uniformed band from the Shannon Rovers club could hardly be heard when "Smiling Bill" Mahoney, lyric tenor and master of ceremonies, called on the candidate.

"I'm proud to be an American and a Republican," Carr said. "I'm proud to be on the same ticket with Gov. Dewey and Gov. Bricker and with Gov. Green and the fine men running on the state and local tickets. I'm proud to be running with John T. Dempsey for state's attorney. I'm proud to be Irish. And I want you to know that America stands at the fork in the roads and that we must follow Dewey to a return to good, old fashioned constitutional government."

Downstairs a big Irish policeman told stragglers to hurry up the stairs.

"We policemen were for Carr when he ran for sheriff in 1942 and we're going to vote for him solid this time," he announced.

Mike Gallagher, who said that all Irish respect Carr, introduced Father Francis O'Duignan, who didn't make a political speech. He came from St. Patrick, Mo., the only town of its name in the world, to tell of his shrine and say that Irish ideals are now a tradition belonging to all America.

Feis Gets Under Way.

Then the feis, a talent competition featuring music and dancing, got under way, with jigs and reels and hornpipes and harps. The city's south and west sides were heavily represented.

Thomas Ryan, who would place high in any competition for the best Irish brogue, pointed to the Carr placards around the hall.

"We've got Carr and Dempsey on our county ticket," he said. "Gov. Green has a fine name, and now its time that we recognize that Dewey and Bricker have some of the characteristics of good Irishmen."

VOTERS TO HEAR DEMPSEY, TUOHY TUESDAY NIGHT

A public meeting at which opposing candidates for state's attorney and others on both tickets will debate local issues was announced yesterday by a group of south side "independent voters" for Tuesday night. It will be held in St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th st. and Dorchester av., at 8 o'clock and will be open to the public.

TEAM OF STALIN AND CHURCHILL STEALS A SHOW

Given 7 Minute Ovation at Moscow Ballet.

MOSCOW, Oct. 14 (AP).—In his first public appearance since the early days of the war, Premier Stalin, ably assisted by Winston Churchill, tonight put on the greatest show stealing act in the history of the Russian ballet.

Appearing in the red plush, gilded box at Moscow's Bolshoi theater, Stalin and the British prime minister brought forth a seven minute storm of applause from the packed, hand picked audience.

Churchill had expressed a desire to see the Bolshoi theater's famous ballet company and soviet authorities, pleased with his interest, quickly made arrangements for a "command performance." The Red army choir joined the dancers in performing for the British guest.

Notables in Box.

The advertised principal offering was Olga Lepishinskaya in the leading role of the ballet, "Giselle."

In the box with the prime minister and Stalin were British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslov Molotov, Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs Andrei Vishinsky, British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, and Kathleen Harriman, the ambassador's daughter.

The program began with the 100 piece orchestra playing "God Save the King" and the soviet hymn. The audience included a large number of generals, the entire diplomatic corps—excepting the Japanese—members of the United States and British military missions, and the foreign correspondents corps—excepting the Japanese.

Churchill wore his khaki colored colonel's uniform. He watched the ballerina closely. Once he took a cigar from his pocket and chewed it a bit and then returned it to his pocket. When Stalin arrived he took a seat beside Churchill.

Beams at Stalin.

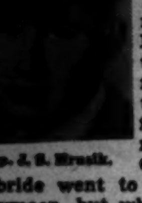
The prime minister beamed welcome and reached over and squeezed Stalin's left arm.

Lepishinskaya gave a splendid performance in the first act of the ballet. Stalin and Churchill gave polite applause. Then Stalin, apparently desiring to leave the stage to Churchill, ducked out. The audience saw the prime minister burst into heavy handclapping. Churchill smiled from side to side.

The theater was still echoing with applause from the standing audience facing the box when Stalin reappeared. A great roar rose from the orchestra to the highest tier of the house. In Russian style, Stalin acknowledged the applause by also applauding.

After seven minutes of it both principals left for an intermission.

QUEEN GIVES CHICAGOAN LIFT ON HONEYMOON



Corp. J. S. Hrusik.

Corp. John S. Hrusik, a Chicago soldier stationed in England, will have a different kind of war story to tell in years to come. It will be how Dowager Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, mother of King Peter II., came to the rescue and furnished transportation for his honeymoon.

Corp. Hrusik and his bride went to Scotland for a honeymoon, but when they got off the train late at night they learned the automobile which was to take them to the hotel, nine miles away, had broken down. They called the hotel only to be told the hotel could not provide transportation.

The queen, who was a guest, heard the story, and sent her son, Prince Thomislav, 16, heir apparent to the throne, to pick up the bride and groom.

Corp. Hrusik is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hrusick of 1112 W. 19th st., Chicago.

POLISH FACTIONS AGREE TO REOPEN NEGOTIATIONS

MOSCOW, Oct. 14 (AP).—Rival Polish regimes from London and Lublin agreed to reopen formal negotiations tonight for a combined government.

Altho still at loggerheads over the question of the uprising in Warsaw, the Poles have decided to "let by gones be by gones," and exclude the Warsaw tragedy from their impending conversations.

Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill spent from 7:30 p. m. last night to 1 a. m. today conferring with the Poles. Their meeting with Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, premier of the London regime, and members of his delegation, lasted for two hours during this period. W. Averell Harriman, United States ambassador, was an observer.

Boleslaw Berut, chairman, and considered the most powerful figure in the Lublin committee, predicted "the unification of Poland on the basis of some kind of compromise with Premier Mikolajczyk." Berut said he had "found Prime Minister Churchill very friendly."

Seek to Break Stalemate.

This afternoon Mikolajczyk conferred for two hours and a half at the British embassy with Churchill, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, and British Ambassador Archibald Clark Kerr.

Diplomatic sources remained noncommittal on the progress toward a solution of the Polish question. But imminent face-to-face talks between the representatives of the rival governments represent an attempt to break the Polish stalemate.

Yesterday's British-soviet discussions with the Poles took place at Spiridonovka palace, two miles from the Kremlin, and in phraseology, at least, British and soviet aims are similar—creation of a free and independent Poland and assurance of soviet-Polish friendship.

Mikolajczyk May Head Regime.

It seemed definite that any agreement would require Mikolajczyk to oust Polish elements associated with Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, former commander in chief of the exiled regime's armed forces. But it might allow the premier to be nominal head of a new fusion government which would include a limited number of his London colleagues.

The Lublin Poles, altho now receiving supplies thru Russian hands and expecting direct aid from the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, are said to realize that any United States assistance in general reconstruction of Poland may depend heavily upon whether they reach an understanding with Mikolajczyk.

CHICAGO GIVEN PRIORITY FOR $300,000 PUMP

The war production board has granted the department of public works a priority for the purchase of a new 80 million gallon centrifugal pump for the Springfield av. station, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said yesterday. The pump will cost about $300,000 and will require a year and one-half to manufacture and install. The WPB also granted priority for one new 600 horse power boiler at the Roseland av. pumping station altho two had been requested, Hewitt said.

CLAIM U. S. AIDS POLES BRANDED VOTE 'EYEWASH'

Any assertion in Washington, D. C., that America's influence is being used in favor of Poland's government in exile during its negotiations with tse soviet sponsbred Polish committee of national liberation, scheduled for the present Stalin-Churchill conference in Moscow, is "eye wash for political purposes."

That charge was made yesterday by Dr. Melchior Palyi of 211 W. Wacker dr., radio commentator and economist.

"We cannot forget that there are more than 3 million Polish Americans who are interested in a free Poland, and who will vote in the coming election," he said. "Such eye wash is aimed at them."

Dr. Palyi is an American citizen who was born in Hungary and educated in Germany. He asserted the Polish government in exile represents the Polish nation while the Lublin government, or Polish committee of national liberation, is composed of communists who were handpicked by Moscow and who are almost unknown in Poland.

Palyi criticized the conference's action is asking the two rival factions to sit in a conference and iron out their difficulties. "It is like a policeman asking a burglar and his victim to sit down and agree on a compromise," he said.

D-DAY HERO WHO REWED 1ST WIFE WINS ANNULMENT

John Lokey, 24, of Aurora, a sailor, was granted in Kane county Circuit court yesterday an annulment of his marriage to Betty when he told Judge Win G. Knoch that she remarried him before he went overseas last January only to receive his allotment check. The couple had been married previously and have a 2 year old son.

Lokey, one of three wounded survivors of a 14 man suicide squad which removed obstacles on the Normandy beach on D-day, said he had not see nor heard from his wife since returning from overseas.

ALL RADIO STATIONS IN CITY WILL HONOR WOMEN IN FUND DRIVE

For the first time in Chicago's history every radio station in the city tonight will carry the same program, an hour's tribute between 11 p. m. and midnight to the women's division of the Community and Ward Fund. Tomorrow the women start their house-to-house solicitation for contributions which will take them to half a million homes.

More than 20 radio actors will take part in a dramatic presentation: "No Man Is an Island." Stars and entertainers who will take part include K. T. Stevens and High Marlowe of "The Voice of the Turtle" cast; Ma Perkins, Skip Farrell, Nancy Martin, Two-Ton Baker, the music maker, the Hoosier Hot Shots, Caesar Petrillo and his orchestra, and others. Mrs. Bernice T. Van der Vries, chairman of the women's division, in charge of the 27,000 women workers, will be guest speaker.

The Cleveland orchestra, which was scheduled on W-G-N for broadcast from 11 tonight was canceled to accommodate the program. This change was made after the radio program section of THE TRIBUNE had gone to press.

DEWEY CHARGES ARE 'EXPLAINED' BY WHITE HOUSE

Quotations Used in Speech Bring Defense.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—An anonymous defense of President Roosevelt on the ten specific charges made against the New Deal by Gov. Dewey in his Oklahoma speech, was released today by the White House.

The defense consisted of a documented list of the quotations of military and administration leaders employed by Dewey in striking back at the charge of "fraud and falsehood" leveled against him by Candidate Roosevelt in his speech before the teamsters' union here.

Against these quotations the White House release listed what it termed "facts." The "facts" consisted of more complete texts of the speeches or remarks from which the quotations were made or explanatory notes.

No Answer by F. D. R. Expected.

There was nothing on the release to indicate who prepared the statement. The fact that it came from the White House tied it to the administration.

In political circles issuance of the release was regarded as indicating Mr. Roosevelt will not attempt to answer Dewey from the campaign platform. Republican speakers had declared the Dewey charges were unanswerable. Dewey had personally challenged Mr. Roosevelt to answer the charges.

There was no direct charge that Dewey had distorted the speeches. Republican headquarters said the White House "facts" supported Dewey's quotations, while Democratic headquarters took the opposite view.

The White House answer to Dewey came almost three weeks after the Republican candidate's fighting speech against the New Deal, delivered in Oklahoma Sept. 25.

Hershey Also Explains.

Later in the day the White House released a letter to Mr. Roosevelt from his director of selective service, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, whose statement "We can keep people in the army about as cheaply as we could create an agency to care for them when they are out," has been quoted frequently by Dewey.

In his letter Hershey did not deny the statement. He said that it was made in answer to a hypothetical question during a press conference at Denver, Colo., last August, and expressed his personal opinion "in a field over which I had no responsibility."

Hershey, who is under direct command of the President, said too great a significance has been attached to his statement. He declared politics has no place in the selective service system and that he has not participated in any political activities altho he has made no secret of the fact "I have been and am a Republican."

Quotation Explained.

At the same time the White House released a letter from Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle Jr. to Mr. Roosevelt accusing Dewey of a "surprisingly dishonest effort" to claim the administration is trying to set up a communist system. Berle said a quote from a report made by him, which Dewey employed in his speech at Charleston, W. Va., last Saturday, was merely an isolated sentence and did not give the true context of the report.

The White House list of "statements" and "the facts," began with Dewey's attribution of a statement to Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, that "in 1940, the year after the war began in Europe, the United States was in such a tragic condition that it couldn't put into the field as a mobile force 75,000 men; that the army was only 25 per cent ready."

The White House document stated that Marshall testified on May 1, 1940, before the senate appropriations committee, "We could put into the field, at the present time, as a mobile force about 75,000 men of the regular establishment, to be promptly enforced by 25,000 men from the enlisted reserve."

Criticism Disclaimed.

The document quoted Marshall as telling the Truman committee a little later that he had not intended to be critical in a speech in which he said the army was not over 25 per cent prepared, while the navy was at all times mobilized at 75 per cent. Marshall said, according to the document, his charge was made to "just for the purpose of illustrating the difference of the national policy," adding that "it was the national policy that the principal buildup would be behind the oceans and the navy and that our task would be development of a successful mobilization."

Gov. Dewey quoted Gen. Arnold, chief of the army air forces as saying: "Dec. 7, 1941, found the army air forces equipped with plans but not with planes."

Statement Acknowledged.

The White House document acknowledged Arnold made this statement in a report to the secretary of war on Jan. 4, 1944, when Arnold said: "When the Japanese attacked on Dec. 7, 1941, we may not have had a powerful al rforce but we knew we soon would have one."

Arnold, according to the document, also said: "When the Japanese struck, our combat air strength was little better than a corporal's guard of some 3,000 planes; of these only 1,157 were actually suited to combat service."

Gov. Dewey in his speech said: "In 1937 he [the President] said, and I quote: 'How happy we are the circumstances of the moment permit us to put our money into bridge and boulevards . . . rather than into huge standing armies and vast implements of war.'"

Following Sentence Quoted.

The White House document added several paragraphs from the Roosevelt speech, made in Chicago, underlining the sentence following that quoted by Dewey, which read:

"I am compelled and you are compelled, nevertheless, to look ahead."

It also quoted another line in the same speech: "Let no one imagine America will escape . . . that this hemisphere will not be attacked."

Dewey quoted a sentence from the speech of Senate Majority Leader Barkley nominating Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term, which read: "When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came, we were not ready."

The White House document underlined the opening sentence of the senator's next paragraph, which read, "No Democracy is ever ready for war at the drop of a hat."

Gov. Dewey quoted a line from Mr. Roosevelt's message to congress in 1935: "There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful."

The White House document quoted from the same message: "I cannot with candor tell you that general international relationships outside the borders of the United States are improved."

Dewey, in his speech, recalled Mr. Roosevelt labeled at a 1940 Press conference as "just plain dumb" Dewey's call for a two ocean navy.

The White House document offered a partial transcript of the press conference revealing that Mr. Roosevelt also called a two ocean navy a largely outmoded conception of naval defense. In a footnote the document said Dewey ignored the fact that the conference dealt largely with a message to congress asking for 50,000 planes and an army-navy appropriation of 896 million dollars.

Denies Being Communist.

In his letter to Mr. Roosevelt, Berle accused Dewey of "ripping a single sentence" from a Berle report and claimed it demonstrated the New Deal was advocating government ownership of industry, "tho the entire memorandum shows the exact opposite."

Berle said the sentence quoted by Dewey showed exactly "what we wanted to avoid."

Berle said Dewey knows him quite well, and knows "I have never been a communist."

U. S. POPULATION SHOWS GAIN OF 1,475,173 IN '43

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—The United States had a natural increase in population of 1,475,173 in 1943, the largest since 1933, the census bureau reported today.

[A natural increase in population is the excess of births over deaths.]

In 1943 births numbered 2,935,171 and deaths 1,459,998. This made the birth rate 21.9 per 1,000 estimated population and the death rate 10.9, leaving a natural increase of 11.0 per 1,000.

Since 1915, the first year in which birth registration figures became available, the rate of natural increase has been higher than that for 1943 in only three years: 1915, 11.8 per 1,000; 1916, 11.1, and 1921, 12.7.

Birth Rate Increases.

The 2,935,171 births recorded in 1943 exceeded those of the previous year by 126,175. The birth rate of 21.9 per 1,000 was an increase of 4.3 per cent.

New Mexico reported the highest birth rate, 29.4 per 1,000; New Jersey the lowest, 19.1.

The 1943 death rate of 10.9 per 1,000 was the highest since 1937, and for the first year since 1940 showed an increase over the preceding year. Deaths exceeded those of 1942 by 74,811.

New Hampshire reported the highest death rate, 14.6 per 1,000; Arkansas the lowest, 8.2.

LEW A. WESCOTT OPPOSES CONROY FOR COURT POST

Circuit Clerkship Held by Democrat Since 1932.

[This is the eighth article of a series on candidates for local offices in the November election.]

BY GUY GENTRY.

Against Circuit Court Clerk John E. Conroy, a veteran of 18 years in public office, 12 in his present post, Republicans are sending in this campaign Lew A. Wescott, Oak Park committeeman and chairman of the party's country towns organization.

The office of Circuit clerk, paying a salary of $9,000 annually and with a patronage list of 82 jobs, was a Republican office for 20 years before Conroy defeated Thomas O. Wallace in 1932 and began the present Democratic regime.

Conroy had served six years as a member of the board of assessors, an office since abolished, before being elected Circuit clerk. He won his nomination in 1932 over the opposition of Mayor Cermak and went on to win by more than 800,000 votes while the national Republican ticket was carrying Chicago and Cook county.

Conroy a Realty Broker.

Born in 1887 at 116 Sherman st., Conroy attended the old Jones school at Harrison st. and Plymouth ct. and business college. Later he went into the real estate business with his father. He still maintains his real estate office at 5608 S. Ashland av.

Under his administration the office has increased its volume of business more than 50 per cent with a smaller staff. Conroy was the first to install fireproof cabinets for valuable legal documents and adopted more efficient filing methods. He is married, has a daughter, and resides at 5600 S. Loomis st.

Wescott got his insight into politics when, as a small boy, he accompanied his grandfather, County Judge Marian Wescott, on campaign tours of Shawano county, Wis., where he had been born in 1901. He was graduated from the University of Chicago law school and admitted to the bar in 1927. The next year he married, moved to Oak Park, and has been precinct committeeman since.

Wescott Wins Votes for G. O. P.

Bulky in frame, soft spoken, and methodical, Wescott has organizing ability that is attested by the fact every Oak Park precinct has gone Republican the last three elections. Under his leadership as chairman of the country towns organization, a majority of more than 100,000 was rolled up for Gov. Green in the 1940 election.

He served the village of Oak Park in various legal capacities and has been master in chancery of Superior court since 1937. He is the father of two children, Anne, 12, and Richard, 11, and lives at 240 Home av., Oak Park.

GARNER AND 25 OTHER TEXANS GREET TRUMAN

With Sen. Truman en route to Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP).—Sen. Truman's Vice Presidential campaign party rolled westward today after a busy Friday in which he made speeches, shook hands with Texas politicians and talked with former Vice President Garner at the railway station at Uvalde, Tex.

Garner, garbed in khaki work shirt and pants, came into town after a day spent shucking corn.

"I was never happier in my life," Garner related. "I'll be 76 next month and expect to live to be 93." He wouldn't talk politics.

Garner introduced Sen. Truman to a group of about 25 men and women who had gathered at the depot.

OPEN ROOSEVELT DRIVE TODAY AT COLISEUM RALLY

La Guardia Heads List of Speakers.

Cook county Democrats will open their drive for reëlection of President Roosevelt with a rally in the Coliseum this afternoon at which Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York will be the principal speaker. The meeting, set for 3 o'clock, will be preceded by a parade with bands and flags.

Mayor Kelly, as county chairman, other party leaders and the state, county and Municipal court candidates will have seats on the platform. The "Little Flower," so far as county committee headquarters knew yesterday, is not bringing a written speech with him, and will speak extemporaneously.

Another Roosevelt-Truman meeting for a week from tonight, with Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.] as the speaker, was announced yesterday by the Illinois American Federation of Labor Committee for Roosevelt, which is a campaign organization of those AFL leaders in the state supporting the Democratic ticket.

Meeting Set for Stadium.

The announcement said that besides Pepper, who is posted to attack the labor record of Republican candidates, there will be two hours of entertainment headed by Sonja Henie. The meeting will be held in the Stadium, starting at 8.

Several hundred party workers attended a reception yesterday for the opening of campaign offices for county and Municipal court candidates on the third floor of the Morrison hotel and pinned on orange flowers, which even the numerous Irish among them conceded was the best the season afforded.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard spoke in behalf of Sen. Lucas, running for reëlection on the Democratic ticket, over WLS yesterday under sponsorship of the Republicans for Lucas league. A month ago Wickard told a meeting of Cook county township committeemen that for some reason beyond him middle west farmers were not showing appreciation of benefits given them by the Roosevelt administration.

Claims Farmers Benefited.

Yesterday he detailed Lucas' support of farm bills and said:

"He has worked as hard and as effectively for the farmer and for the whole country as any man that you, or the people of any other state, ever have sent to congress."

Assistant State's Atty. William J. Tuohy, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, spoke over WMAQ last night by arrangement of the Non-Partisan Business Men's committee. Headed by Ralph J. Sheu, the group has announced it is interested only in Tuohy's candidacy.

Gas Tax Funds Released for Archer Av. Bridge

The city has been granted approval for the spending of $5,000 of motor fuel tax funds for engineering on the Archer av. bridge which hitherto has been a bottleneck in the route to the airport. Permission came from W. W. Polk, chief state highway engineer.

MAJ. WAYNE KING IS GIVEN RELEASE FROM ARMY DUTY

Four staff officers of the sixth service command, including Maj. Wayne King, former orchestra leader, were released from active duty yesterday at their own request, Col. George H. Cushman, post commander at Fort Sheridan, announced.

The four were commissioned directly from civilian life to perform special duties for the war department. Maj. King, who lives at 517 Greenwood av., Kenilworth, was radio officer of the public relations office.

The others released are: Col. Charles Z. Henkle, deputy director of personnel; Col. Robert A. Gardner, director of personal affairs, and Lt. Col. James E. Boudreau, director of the control division.

BRICKER BLASTS COURT PACKING UNDER NEW DEAL

Says Rulings 'Reek with Snap Judgments.'

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP).—Gov. Bricker said tonight that the federal courts had been transformed into "conclaves of New Deal ideologies" in an effort to remake the nation along lines similar to state socialism.

The Republican nominee for Vice President, asserting that President Roosevelt had appointed 61 per cent "of the entire life tenure federal judiciary," added:

"Clearly, Mr. Roosevelt has successfully 'packed' our federal judiciary from top to bottom. The fresh, young blood that he promised to pour into the ageing blood stream of the Supreme court in his crusading days of 1937 has proved to be the plasma of the New Deal."

Drive for California.

Tonight's speech of the Ohio governor, launching a strenuous six day drive for California's 25 electoral votes, was delivered in San Francisco Civic auditorium, where G. O. P. Presidential Candidate Dewey spoke on Sept. 21.

By such appointments, he continued, "Mr. Roosevelt has walled out from our federal courts the ideals and opinions of millions of Americans who sincerely oppose the New Deal on principle. This means that the 22,000,000 men and women who voted Republican in 1940 have been disfranchised judicially."

Bricker said the "court packing" appointments "have done more than to stifle the voices and opinions of millions of Americans."

"They have transformed our federal courts of law into conclaves of New Deal ideologies," he added. "It was inevitable that the New Deal appointees should color their judicial decisions with their personal philosophies. A man cannot escape the impact of his economic and social environment by putting on a black robe."

Lists the Consequences.

The governor said that while the President failed to "pack" the Supreme court in 1937, the plan had "succeeded in the spirit of the attempt," and he added that "here then are the consequences of Mr. Roosevelt's triumph in stuffing our federal courts with New Dealers:

"First, the action has closed the doors of our federal judiciary to the opinion of all those in opposition to the New Deal, to the 22,000,000 who supported the Republican ticket in 1940. Secondly, our federal judicial rulings have come to reek with the snap judgments of New Dealers. Thirdly, the Supreme court of the United States has assumed quasi-legislative authority. Fourthly, the Supreme court has made a hodge-podge of adjudication in all the courts of the land by its passion for ignoring legal precedents of long standing and by its willingness to reverse its own decisions in the flash."

NEW DEWEY-BRICKER BUTTON SUPPLY WILL BE READY TOMORROW

Dewey-Bricker buttons are still being distributed from THE TRIBUNE's public service offices at 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower, where 2,250 were passed out in small quantities yesterday to supporters of the Republican Presidential ticket. The supply is to be replenished tomorrow, said John Gillespie, manager of the public service office.

SEN. BREWSTER ASSAILS 'CLEAR IT WITH STALIN'

The American people, not Josef Stalin, are the ones to consult in choosing a President of the United States, Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] declared in a speech last night in the Lake county [Ind.] Republican headquarters in Gary. The high point of his talk was directed at Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.], who, the speaker asserted, had said "Stalin would not trust the Republicans."

"'Clear everything with Joe Stalin' is the new slogan of the New Deal campaign for a fourth term," said Sen. Brewster. "This is the appeal of Sen. Pepper when he declares Americans should not vote Republican because Stalin would not trust Republicans. This would mean that Stalin would trust New Dealers and the leaders of the political action committee, Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder."

Sen. Brewster said he had great respect for the achievements of the Russian people, but, he said, "remember that Stalin is fickle in his fancy. Only a few years ago he was arm in arm with Adolf Hitler in the division of Poland. And only a short time ago he halted his victorious armies on the banks of the Vistula river while 2 million Poles fell to the Nazis.

"What a pity that in this new division of Poland America is silent. We can show our sympathy for the Polish people by repudiating this administration, which talks glibly of the four freedoms and then allows the helpless victims of aggression to be butchered and their government divided among thieves."

A Republican vote this election, the speaker said, "is a vote that Hillman and Browder shall not dominate the next congress of the United States. Tom Dewey has cleaned up the gangsters in New York and Albany and the racketeers and gang leaders of the country may well quail at the prospect of his purifying presence in Washington."

ALASKA'S ELECTION OFFERS HANNEGAN A HOPE FOR NOV. 7

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—The Democrats' new battle cry: "As Alaska goes, so goes the nation."

In presenting the slogan today, Democratical National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan said he had received this night letter from Howard Lyng, Democratic national committeeman for Alaska:

"Results of Alaska's general election Sept. 12 show overwhelming Democratic victory. We have elected Alaska's delegate to congress, an attorney general, a treasurer, an auditor, a highway engineer, and 34 of 40 members to our territorial legislature. Only regret we have no Presidential vote."

TROLLEY UNIFORM STOLEN.

Charles Freedland, 2138 Adams st., a surface lines conductor, told police yesterday that burglars stole his money changer containing $5.80, his transfer punch, and his uniform.

DECLINE SHOWN IN REGISTRATION IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—With personal registration for the first five days 135,068 under the comparable 1940 figure, thousands of additional New York City residents made their way to polling places before the end of the registration period late tonight. Already registered for voting in the November election were 2,419,861 persons, compared with 2,554,929 in first five days of the 1940 registration period. Figures for the last day will not be available until tomorrow morning.

TRIBUNE'S FREE PRESS POLICIES IRK CANADIANS

Underground Campaign Opposed by Labor.

[Philip Kinsley's "Liberty and the Press," which records THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S struggle to preserve a free press for the American people, will go on sale at the Tribune public service offices early in November. It will be priced at $2 a copy. Following is another summarization from the book.]

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The freedom of the press concept, as it has taken form practically in this country, and in this country alone, under court decisions and by the support of the people, is that government must not interfere with the press unless there is a clear danger to the public welfare. That a government may construe criticism of its policies and officials as such a danger is one contingency that has to be met on occasion.

Government efforts to silence a critical press may take an economic turn, as in the New Orleans tax case, and in Canada, where THE TRIBUNE has been subjected to an organized economic attack because of its political opinions. This is explainable by the fact that in war time, at least, the Canadian press becomes British in its international views. Therefore America First becomes anti-British, and anti-Canadian.

Canadian Campaign Failure.

It is well to say at the outset that this campaign to hurt and if possible silence THE TRIBUNE, thru attack on its Canadian economic interests, has failed, for the present at least, due to the wisdom of Canadian political leaders and the discernment of the more responsible Canadian editors. It still breaks out sporadically and there is an element of newspaper opinion in Canada that would be glad to see THE TRIBUNE'S editorial opinions about the British and the New Deal suppressed, if it could be done legally and without appearing as an attack on the freedom of the press, which is still highly prized in principle in that country.

A prudent manager of a business which had $40,000,000 invested in Canada, as the Tribune company has, would hardly venture to alienate the political and newspaper leaders in that country by giving grounds for the charge of being anti-British. THE TRIBUNE, however, has continued to expound its doctrines, and so has run into this cross-fire.

Organized Under Canadian Laws.

The Canadian subsidiaries of THE TRIBUNE are organized under Canadian laws and the relations of these companies to THE TRIBUNE are purely economic. The management and employes of these subsidiaries are Canadian citizens, with the exception of a few American citizens who are loyal to the Canadian war effort in every way.

Nevertheless these companies and individuals have been attacked fiercely as being anti-British, because of the ownership of these companies by the Tribune company, and despite the fact that they had no influence whatever in the editorial conduct of THE TRIBUNE.

Briefly, the story begins in 1912, when the Ontario Paper company was started by the publisher of THE TRIBUNE in order to make available a dependable and permanent supply of newsprint paper.

Forests Are Purchased.

Pulpwood for paper making was originally purchased from contractors, but in 1915 THE TRIBUNE determined to purchase forest limits from which pulpwood might be secured permanently. It bought the Shelter Bay limits on the north shore of the gulf of St. Lawrence and in 1919 purchased additional limits on the Franquelin river. The town of Shelter Bay, the shipping point for the pulpwood, and the town of Franquelin became permanent communities. Another more recent development was the establishment of a pulpwood operation at Heron Bay on the north shore of Lake Superior, an operation complete with town site, power plant, and docks. Homes, schools, hospitals, and churches were established for employes.

In addition to the paper mill at Thorold and the Shelter Bay, Franquelin, and Heron Bay developments, the Ontario Paper company, thru its subsidiary, the Quebec North Shore Paper company, owns and operates the most modern paper mill in the world at Baie Comeau on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence in the province of Quebec. This mill was made necessary by the paper requirements of the New York Daily News, THE TRIBUNE'S sister newspaper. More than $18,000,000 was spent on this project, which was completed in 1938, and which resulted in another thriving Canadian community.

The communities which grew up around these mills and camps became communities of permanent homes. The management worked in coöperation with labor unions and introduced THE TRIBUNE'S own welfare program, consisting of medical and social service, group life insurance, sickness insurance, hospitalization, and holidays with pay. The mills were run on highly scientific lines. THE TRIBUNE received a steady supply of quality newspaper at the same market prices that were charged by the commercial companies to other publishers, but thousands of Canadians were given security and opportunity.

This situation continued happily for many years. In the meantime Canada experienced a newsprint boom and an over building of paper mills due to financial manipulations. When the paper market sank many of these new mills became unprofitable. Then came the depression of the early '30s, bankruptcy for many, reorganizations, and much unemployment. The Thorold mill met the situation by technical improvements and continued to run in full production to supply the requirements of THE TRIBUNE and the New York Daily News.

Paper Pro-rating System Used.

During the period of depression the Ontario and Quebec provincial governments asked the paper companies to find a remedy for their troubles. Many people in the commercial mill towns were destitute. The remedy suggested by the large commercial manufacturers was a pro-rating of production and orders among the commercial mills in order to prevent price cutting and to stabilize the price of newsprint to the American publishers, i. e., the allocation of the share of Canada's monthly newsprint production to each mill in the proportion of the mill's capacity to the industry's total rate of capacity.

Pro-rating went into operation in 1938. It was not a law but a working plan which was enforced by government control of leases on woodlands, stumpage dues, etc. High fees were imposed on companies which did not fall in line with this scheme to equalize the price of paper. The plan was not extended to the noncommercial mills, such as the Thorold plant and the new Baie Comeau mill. The Canadian subsidiary of THE TRIBUNE had never sold any newsprint to any other publisher. It assured the governments of Quebec and Ontario and the other members of the industry that it never intended to sell newsprint to the commercial field. Following this policy strictly, all production of these two mills was consumed by THE TRIBUNE and the New York Daily News, but even this was not sufficient to supply their requirements, and these newspapers had to buy substantial quantities of paper from the commercial manufacturers in Canada.

Attack on Tribune Begins.

In 1940, soon after the outbreak of the war, an anonymous petition was presented to the Quebec and Ontario governments by a group of newsprint manufacturers asking that pro-rating be extended to the publisher-owned mills, such as the Thorold and Baie Comeau mills of THE TRIBUNE and the Kapuskasing mill of the New York Times. This brief mainly attacked the noncommercial status of THE TRIBUNE'S mills. The war situation had furnished an opportunity to selfish financial interests to whip up prejudice against THE TRIBUNE by attacking its policies on international affairs.

"Almost simultaneously" [with the filing of this petition], said an article in the Canadian Forum of May, 1941, "a hue and cry arose about THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S editorial utterances. Bits chosen from editorials, and entire editorials on a few occasions, arrived thru the mails from unknown senders, for consideration of newspaper editors, members of the legislatures, stock brokers, and even clerics. Editors were visited by exponents of patriotism, and some of them took cracks at THE TRIBUNE.

Labor Defends The Tribune.

"Organized labor, in an encyclical to all pulps, sulphite, and newsprint workers, flatly assailed the attack as a financial scheme, and pointed to THE TRIBUNE mills' 20 year record in promoting union interests, paying highest wages in the industry, providing vacations with pay and otherwise always having accepted union proposals. . . . Unthinkingly several editors, righteously angry about TRIBUNE statements on British policy, took roundhouse swings at THE TRIBUNE.

"And they made the mistake of suggesting, in varying terms, that Canadians might well consider whether they wished the product of Canada's natural resources to be used for printing such utterances."

REP. LUCE HAILS ROOSEVELT AS GREAT APPEASER

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 14 (AP).—Rep. Clare Boothe Luce [R., Conn.] described President Roosevelt tonight as "the world's leading isolationist and appeaser" from 1933 to 1939. In a speech at a Republican rally at Cadle tabernacle she said:

"No, no, no, Mr. Roosevelt was no Mr. Churchill, who dared risk public disfavor to warn his country that war with Hitler's Germany was probably inevitable after Munich, and certainly necessary after Dunkerque.

"But why did Mr. Roosevelt never tell the American people the truth about the meaning of an axis military victory—the truth that would have meant a patriot's call to arms after Dunkerque? Why?

"Mr. Roosevelt knew that in order to get reëlected in 1940 he would have to talk in his own language 'out of both sides of his mouth at once.' And he did."

35 U-Boat Victims Land at Halifax; First in Year

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 14 (AP).—Thirty-five merchant seamen who survived a U-boat attack which sank their freighter and cost the lives of three shipmates have been landed here by a British rescue ship. They are the first victims of such an action to land at Halifax in more than a year. The freighter was sunk in a four day fight between a submarine pack and the largest convoy ever to sail from the United Kingdom.

CANADA TO RUN 90 MILLION AIR ROUTE U. S. BUILT

American Lives Lost in Its Construction.

BY FRANK STURDY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDMONTON, Alberta, Oct. 14—The air transport command of the army air forces has completed and is successfully operating thru northwest Canada and Alaska an air route of great importance in the war and vast significance in the peace to come.

It is a route crossing some of the most mountainous and desolate country in North America, beset by weather conditions among the worst encountered by pilots anywhere in the world.

On this route, on which the seasons lavish temperature extremes of 99 degrees above zero and 70 degrees below, where in places the sun shines 20 hours a day in summer, and less than four hours in winter, more than 5,000 fighters and bombers have been delivered to the Russians in the past two years.

Route Sold to Canada.

Some American pilots died delivering those planes and thousands of American soldiers suffered privations in building the bases along the route's 2,500 miles. It is part of a Canadian air base system of three lines, financed by the American government at a cost of $90,683,571, which the Canadians have bought for $76,811,571.

Roughly two-thirds of its distance is in Canada, lying like a barrier between the United States and many of the world's important markets.

This almost fantastic air line is known as the Alsib route by the Americans, the Northwest Staging route by the Canadians. It is part of the Alaskan division of the air transport command. The division also includes a route from Seattle, Wash., to Anchorage, Alaska, thence thru the Aleutians to Attu, and a route up the Mackenzie river valley to the Canol oil well area.

Starts in Montana.

Headquarters of the Alaskan division is in Edmonton, at a huge base that cost the United States millions. The commanding officer is Brig. Gen. Dale V. Gaffney, who directed at Ladd Field at Fairbanks, beginning in 1940, the experiments to find out how airplanes could be started at 30 degrees below zero and more, and how men could be kept from freezing.

The starting point of the route is at Great Falls, Mont., where there are two airports. East base is the one from which the division's transport operations spring, and where extensive maintenance shops give final adjustments and modifications for cold weather to the P-63 fighters, B-25 and A-20 bombers, bound for the Russians.

The second field is Gore Hill, headquarters of the 7th ferrying group, whose pilots fly the planes up the line to Fairbanks, where Russian pilots take over on the final jump to Nome, on the shore of the Bering sea. Siberia lies only 60 miles across the Bering strait, frozen solid six months of the year.

Bases north from Great Falls are Calgary, Edmonton, Grand Prairie, and Fort St. John in Alberta, Fort Nelson in British Columbia, Watson Lake and Whitehorse in Yukon territory, all Canadian, and Northway, Tannacross, Big Delta, Fairbanks, Galena, and Nome, all in Alaska.

Float Gas Down River.

The principal points, used as control and major service and maintenance stations after Great Falls, are Edmonton, Whitehorse, and Fairbanks. The other bases have runways long enough for take-offs and landings, but are used as requirements dictate in the light of weather or fueling.

Dizzying contrasts are the rule from end to end of the division, which is roughly equal in length, but far surpasses in tough flight problems, the distance from New York to San Francisco.

Runways and hangars comparable to those found in the principal cities of the United States are the rule, many of them set down in areas more remarkable for mountains and swamps than cities and commerce.

Pipe lines supply airplane fuel. Barrels of gasoline, chained together to form a raft, are floated by the thousands hundreds of miles down the Yukon river to supply one base.

Bulldozers Abound.

Radio telephone and teletype equipment worth millions tie these far flung bases together. Most of the posts have small radio stations broadcasting programs. Indians and trappers isolated in the mountains and bush send in requests for favorite programs.

Great numbers of bulldozers, trucks, runway graders, cement mixers, and other types of heavy machinery abound at every base. They were brought in by road, boat, and dog team, even in some cases by airplane. Once a truck, badly needed in an isolated place, was cut in sections with an acetylene torch so it could be got thru the door of a transport plane. Flown to the job, it was welded together and put in action in record time.

Man power is at a high premium, and some Indians who formerly hunted, trapped, and fished for a primitive living are now driving bulldozers, earning as much as $300 a week. They live in cabins and tents, drink best Scotch whisky for relaxation.

Fight 30 Degree Cold.

During the winter of 1942-'43, when work on the line was being pushed at a high pitch, soldiers and construction gangs fought one of the bitterest cold seasons in northern history. The thermometer dropped to 30 degrees below zero and lower and stayed there for weeks.

Men labored over planes in the open, protected at best by canvas covers over the plane noses. Their endurance was strained to the limit. Despite all precautions, noses, faces, hands, feet, and, in some cases, lungs were frozen.

Virtually all this is now history. With one exception, the bases are all furnished with hangars, comparatively luxurious permanent barracks, clubs, libraries, and recreation halls for officers and men. There remain to be conquered year after year only the shattering cold and loneliness.

A City of Wind.

Galena, in Alaska, is still typical of the line's early and worst days. It is literally mud from corner to corner, flooded five months ago by the Yukon river, a dismal outpost in the wilderness. The base was named for a nearby village of 60 Indians and a few white traders. Only the vital runway at the base is paved.

The Jap attacks in the Aleutians in June, 1942, supplied a hypodermic to the growing line of bases, by that time sufficiently advanced to furnish a means for rushing men and supplies to the islands and to Alaska.

Earlier in 1942, the army had suggested to the Russians the possibility of ferrying airplanes to Siberia by way of Alaska. Nazi submarines were then taking a heavy toll of Atlantic ships, on which the Russians had been mainly depending for American airplanes. The only other supply line was a ferry route across the South Atlantic, Africa, the Middle East, and to Russia by way of Basra. The distance was 13,200 miles from Miami. From Great Falls, Mont., to Moscow by the Alsib route is 7,900 miles.

Started From Scratch.

A deal was completed, and a Russian mission arrived at Fairbanks in August, 1942. The first Russia-bound planes, five Douglas A-20 bombers, arrived at Fairbanks and were turned over to Red air force pilots on Sept. 3. The flow of planes has steadily increased in the past two years. In one month recently several hundred ships were delivered over the route.

With few exceptions, the airports now on the route were either nonexistent or were simply flight strips used by bush pilots when the army moved into Canada and Alaska.

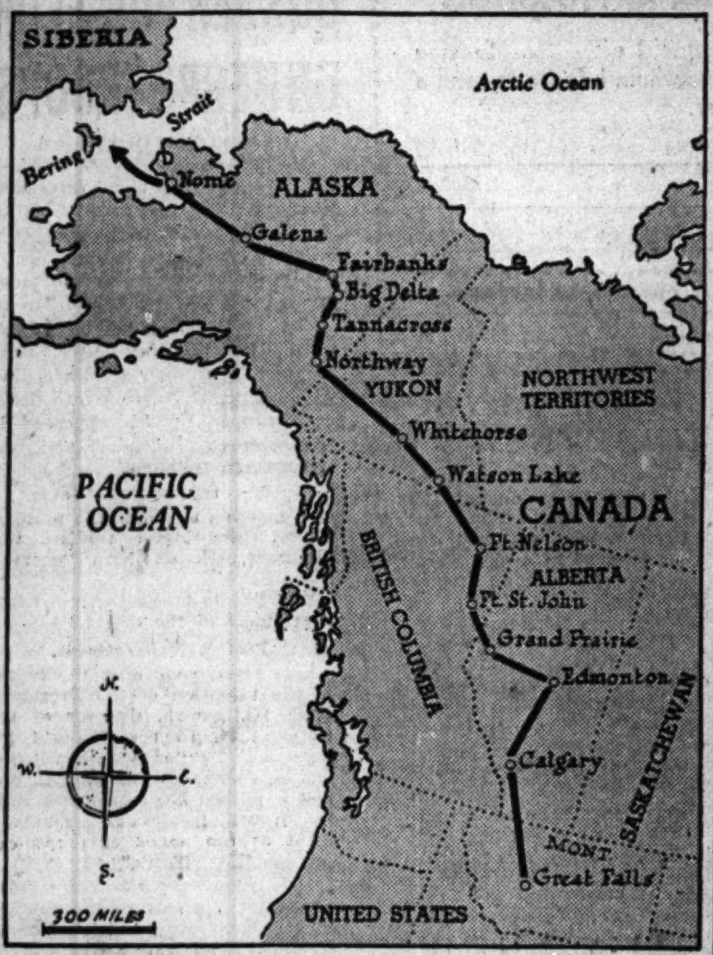
Not one of them in its present state of elaborate development could have been supported by pre-war flying. The population of Alaska at last count was about 30,000 whites and 70,000 Indians. They could all find seats in Soldiers' Field in Grant Park. Canada's northwest territories traversed by the route are about as sparsely settled.

Only U. S. Can Support Line.

Only the traffic and cargo generating potential of the United States can support these bases after the war, when air commerce with Russia, the Orient, and Europe begins. Therein lies Canada's interest in assuring herself of sole control and ownership of the bases. Canada has two commercial airlines, both of them puny judged by American standards.

The Canadian government has already made plain that it will take every advantage of its strategic position across the great circle air routes between the United States and foreign countries to the east and west, to advance its airlines on world routes. Apparently the only question remaining is the price Canada will exact from the big airlines of the Unied States for the right to fly into and over her territory.

Route of U. S. to Alaska Air Line



Heavy line traces air route developed by army to deliver planes to Russia; which has been sold to Canada. It continues across Bering strait to Siberia.

AMNESIA PATIENT IN HOSPITAL.

Police yesterday were attempting to learn the address of an amnesia patient, believed to be Emmett Arnold, 26, former army captain, who was taken to Augustana hospital.

PARTIES PRESS BATTLE FOR 32 GOVERNORSHIPS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—On the theory that the more governors a party has in the 48 states the stronger organization it can put in the field in national elections, both major parties are trying harder than ever this year to increase their present gubernatorial strength.

Thus far the Presidential campaign, first in war time since 1864, has almost overshadowed the governorship races, in which nearly 100 candidates are trying to persuade the voters to elect them to places in 32 states now held by 20 Republicans and 12 Democrats.

G. O. P. Takes Opener.

In the first race of 1944, already held in Maine Sept. 11, Republicans retained power there by electing Horace A. Hildreth over Democrat Paul J. Jullien.

Gubernatorial chairs are now divided between 26 Republicans and 22 Democrats. That compares with only eight Republicans and 40 Democrats at the height of the New Deal in 1936. The GOP has picked up steadily since then, adding a net of five in 1942.

Gubernatorial elections among the more populous states will be those in Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, and Ohio.

Republicans now hold governorships in 26 of the 38 states outside the solid south and all but one of the key electoral vote states—Indiana. Their national headquarters assert Republican governors now administer the government of about two-thirds of the population, in states having 339 of the total of 531 electoral votes.

Candidates Are Listed.

Here is a list of the major party candidates for governor in states besides Maine:

1—Arizona: Democrat, Sidney P. Osborn [incumbent]; Republican, Jerrie W. Lee [withdrew but name remains on ballot].

2—Arkansas: Ben Laney, Democrat; Harley C. Stump, Republican.

3—Colorado: Roy Best, Democrat; John C. Vivian, Republican [incumbent].

4—Connecitcut: Robert A. Hurley, Democrat; Reymond Eld Baldwin, Republican [incumbent].

5—Delaware: Dr. Isaac L. MacCollum, Democrat; Walter W. Bacon, Republican [incumbent].

6—Florida: Millard Caldwell, Democrat; Bert Leigh Acker, Republican.

7—Idaho: Charles C. Gossett, Democrat; William H. Detweiler, Republican.

8—Illinois: Thomas J. Courtney, Democrat; Dwight H. Green, Republican [incumbent].

9—Indiana: Samuel D. Jackson, Democrat; Ralph F. Gates, Republican.

10—Iowa: Richard F. Mitchell, Democrat; Robert D. Blue, Republican.

11—Kansas: Robert S. Lemon, Democrat; Andrew F. Schoeppel, Republican [incumbent].

12—Massachusetts: Maurice J. Tobin, Democrat; Horace T. Cahill, Republican.

13—Michigan: Edward J. Fry, Democrat; Harry F. Kelly, Republican [incumbent].

14—Minnesota: Byron G. Allen, Democrat-Farmer Labor; Edward J. Thye, Republican.

15—Missouri: Phil M. Donnelly, Democrat; Jean Paul Bradshaw, Republican.

16—Montana: Leif Erickson, Democrat; Sam C. Ford, Republican [incumbent].

17—Nebraska: George W. Olsen, Democrat; Dwight Griswold, Republican [incumbent].

18—New Hampshire: Col. James Powers, Democrat; Charles M. Dale, Republican.

19—New Mexico: John J. Dempsey, Democrat [incumbent]; Carroll G. Gunderson, Republican.

20—North Carolina: R. Gregg Cherry, Democrat; Frank C. Patton, Republican.

21—North Dakota: William T. Depuy, Democrat; Fred G. Aandahl, Republican.

G. O. P. PUSHES DRIVE AGAINST SPLIT TICKETS

'Vote It Straight' Is Plea in State and County.

Republican state and county leaders are pushing a "vote it straight" drive to eliminate as many as possible of the split tickets that rose to 27.73 per cent in Cook county in the 1940 Presidential election.

An analysis of ward and township totals in the 1940 election showed that split tickets were heavier in those wards and townships where Republican strength was greatest. Split ballots are heavier in Presidential election years. The split percentage in Cook county fell to 22.80 per cent in the 1942 state election and to 7.81 per cent in the 1943 mayoralty election.

People on the Alert.

"The Communist threat to our form of government has put the people on the alert," declared John Tyrrell, Republican state chairman. "They know now the Republican party is their sole hope of protecting American freedom. We are urging more than ever before all citizens to vote the Republican ticket straight. Then we will not only have Gov. Dewey and Gov. Bricker at the head of our government but also such able legislators as Richard J. Lyons and all the worthy candidates for representatives to support their program."

"The Republican party in Cook county is more fully united than in many years and more determined than ever before to elect all candidates on the Republican ticket from top to bottom. We are urging as one of the surest ways of gaining a 100 per cent Republican victory that every one vote the ticket straight."

Split ballots in 1940 ranged from a low of 11.93 per cent in the 24th ward, where Democratic straight ballots were 82.57 per cent, to a high of 40.43 per cent in the 40th ward, where the Republican straight votes totaled 20.25 per cent and Democratic straight votes totaled 39.32 per cent.

The silk stocking areas of New Trier township and Evanston set the county record for split ballots, 46.08 per cent of New Trier voters splitting their ballots and 41.61 per cent in Evanston crossing party lines. In New Trier there were 40.92 per cent straight Republican and 13 per cent straight Democratic votes.

How Evanston Voted.

Evanston voted 43.48 per cent straight Republican and 14.91 per cent straight Democratic. Lowest percentage of splits among townships was Bremen with 16.85 per cent. Bremen voted 43.18 per cent straight Democratic and 39.54 per cent straight Republican.

Cook county set an unusually high voting record in the 1940 election, 93.40 per cent of the 1,914,036 registered voters casting ballots. In only three wards of the city—the first three wards—did the percentage fall below 90 per cent.

An even higher percentage was maintained among the townships.

DEWEY TO SPEAK IN PITTSBURGH AFTER ST. LOUIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 14.—Another speaking engagement—in Pittsburgh, Pa., next Friday night—was announced today by Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, as he prepared to depart tomorrow for St. Louis, Mo., where he will speak Monday night.

At the same time it was reported Dewey's address in St. Louis will pin upon President Roosevelt responsibility and accountability for the sins of the New Deal that for 12 years have been shifted to underlines. His speech, which will be broadcast from 9 to 9:30 p. m. [Chicago time], will be aimed directly at the nominee for a fourth term.

After the St. Louis speech, Dewey will return to Albany and thence to New York, where he will speak Wednesday night before the Herald-Tribune forum on the subject "This Must Be the Last War."

The following week, Dewey is to launch his main tour of the middle west, including an address Oct. 25 in Chicago.

$45,000 BAIL SET FOR POLICEMAN WHO SHOT THREE

Bail of $45,000—$15,000 on each of three charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to murder—was fixed yesterday for Desk Sgt. Walter E. Gray, 45, of the River Forest police, who shot two men and a woman in a tavern early Friday. His preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 27.

One of the victims, John Kessler, 3215 S. Wenonah av., Berwyn, was reported to be in a critical condition. Kessler, owner of the tavern at 6149 Ogden av., Cicero, was shot in the groin, and physicians thus far have been unable to remove the bullet.

The other victims are John Jira, 46, and his wife, May, 47, of 3703 S. Euclid av., Berwyn, who were less seriously injured.

Police Magistrate Marvin Capouch of Cicero took statements from each of the three.

DEWEY AND F.D.R. READY TO LAND FINAL PUNCHES

Democratic leaders expected. It has split the Democratic party more deeply than did the third term, alienating additional large numbers of conservatively minded Democrats who balk at giving consent to 16 years for any one man in the White House with the opportunity so afforded of molding the government to his will.

But the fourth term has alienated no New Dealers, no communists and none of the radical workingmen enlisted in Sidney Hillman's communist dominated CIO political action committee, on whom the Democratic leaders are depending for the reelection of Mr. Roosevelt. The fourth term dictatorship feared by the conservative Democrats would favor the plans of the communists to take over the government.

Hillman a Problem.

On the other hand the communist issue has turned out to be something the Democratic managers did not expect. The ascendency in the party of Sidney Hillman, who is not even a Democrat but head of the communist controled American Labor party, was welcomed at first by Democratic National Chairman Hannegan and his associated campaign strategists.

For without the American Labor party's 400,000 votes Mr. Roosevelt could not hope to carry New York and would not have carried it in 1940. Moreover, Hillman, assessing the CIO, would bring in not less than 3 million dollars which would be in addition to any campaign funds the Democrats could raise. With political parties limited to 3 millions expenditure by the Hatch act, the Roosevelt candidacy might thus have 6 millions at its command to Dewey's 3 millions.

What the Democratic managers did not expect was that the marriage of Earl Browder's Communists and Hillman's communist controled political action committee to the Democratic party would boomerang against the Roosevelt candidacy.

AFL Is Divided.

Before the campaign had progressed many weeks Hannegan was to discover that nothing had so roused the farmers and business men against the fourth term as the apprehension that it would be dominated by the Browder and Hillman left wingers in the interest of extending Russian totalitarianism to the United States. He also found that Hillman's ascendency in the Roosevelt regime had split the American Federation of Labor, driving the more conservatively minded workingmen to support of Dewey, and had even alienated some members of the CIO.

The reaction against the labor dictatorship in Washington, as the New Deal has come to be looked upon not only in rural but urban communities, was sharpened by Mr. Roosevelt's letter to Boss Petrillo of the musician's union to please comply with a war labor board decision. This letter contrasted to his dispatch of the army to take possession of Montgomery Ward's and carry its president, Sewell Avery, bodily to the street. The effect was not modified by Petrillo's spurning of Mr. Roosevelt's plea.

For the boomerang the President himself is being blamed in the inner circle of the Democratic high command. It was the "clear everything with Sidney" instructions Mr. Roosevelt is reputed to have given Hannegan on the eve of the Democratic national convention that dramatized Hillman's annexation of the Democratic party and stirred the indignation and apprehensions of the people.

Disavowal a Dud.

To the further discomfiture of the fourth term generals, the President's mild disavowal of Communist support given under the lash of the Dewey attack proved a dud. Unfortunately for the Democratic tactics Browder sounded off almost concurrently at a big Madison Square Garden meeting with fulsome Communist praise of Roosevelt and the New Deal, which got as much publicity as the Roosevelt disavowal of him. Then, immediately afterward, Hillman said that the President's disavowal was not intended for his political action committee and that he was undeterred in his devotion to Roosevelt.

What is deplored more than anything else among the Democratic campaign strategists is the widespread and increasing public impression that the President's physical condition is progressively deteriorating, as a result of which the qualifications of Sen. Truman to administer the Presidency have become a leading issue.

The people are being reminded by this circumstance that a candidate for Vice President is also potentially a candidate for President. As a result, Truman finds himself in the fierce light of public appraisal of his ability and of his identification with the malodorous Pendergast machine in Missouri.

Acceptance Speech.

Public apprehensions regarding the health of the President date from his broadcast acceptance speech which impressed many listeners as lifeless and labored in delivery. The published photograph of the President broadcasting his acceptance also shocked the public. In this and subsequently published pictures Mr. Roosevelt's countenance has the drawn and haggard appearance of a sick man.

Viewed as particularly unfortunate by Democratic campaign directors is the disclosure that Mr. Roosevelt is no longer able to appear in public in a standing posture. Such speeches as he now makes he is compelled to deliver sitting down, as at the teamsters' dinner and at the forthcoming foreign policy association dinner. Public appearances by Mr. Roosevelt at Madison Square garden in New York and in Chicago, which were announced, were called off because of the fear of the effect of the spectacle of the President speaking from a sitting posture, tho the public explanation was that the change of plans was due to the secret service forbidding Mr. Roosevelt's appearance at large meetings for reasons of security.

3 WEEKS BRING OUT NOT A SINGLE CLEW IN JOHNSON BOMBING

Rogers Park police and bomb squad detectives yesterday said they had made no progress toward the solution of the bombing more than three weeks ago of the home of Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of public schools, at 1228 Farwell av.

The dynamite blast which rocked the two story residence and caused $1,000 damage, occurred during a city-wide protest by parents over a ruling which barred school transfers held by several thousand pupils. The home has been under 24 hour police guard ever since.

Capt. Michael Ahern, in command of the Rogers Park district, departed last week on his annual furlough. Before he left he said his men had been unable to uncover a single clew. Lt. Andrew Aitken, head of the bomb squad, likewise said his men were still working on the case but had come upon nothing promising a solution.

WOMAN'S DEATH RULED SUICIDE; COP ABSOLVED

A verdict of suicide because of despondency was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Audrey McLaughlin Hooke, 37, after several witnesses told of her frequent attempts to end her life and of one attempt to asphyxiate herself with gas.

The verdict absolved Park Policeman Edward Neis, 49, of 929 Oakdale av., who had been charged with murder because of the mystery surrounding the fatal shooting early Aug. 14 in the Lake Shore park recreation house, Chicago av. and Lake Shore dr. He testified at an earlier session of the inquest that he had let Mrs. Hooke into the building to use the washroom because she complained of being ill. He said he went to the man's washroom at the same time and left his jacket, hat, revolver, and cartridge belt on a bench in the recreation room.

Mrs. Hooke was killed by a bullet from Neis' revolver. The coroner's jury decided that she herself had fired the gun. Neis testified he heard the shot and ran upstairs, where he found her dying, his revolver beneath her.

Neis faces hearing in Felony court tomorrow on the murder charge. He is at liberty under $15,000 bond and is on leave of absence from the park district, after being under suspension.

Corregidor Nurse Gets a Start on the Way Back

Lt. [j. g.] Ann A. Bernatitus, navy nurse who escaped from Corregidor in a submarine, received orders at Great Lakes yesterday assigning her to duty on a hospital ship in the Pacific. She said she hoped her new duty would take her to the Philippines when the Americans return.

2 SAILORS DROWN WHEN SAILBOAT UPSETS IN WIND

Two of three sailors from Navy pier who sailed out of Wilmette harbor in a small sailboat yesterday afternoon were drowned when the boat capsized in a high wind three-quarters of a mile off Hamilton st., Evanston.

They were John Hare of Oakland, Cal., and Jack Latimer, whose home could not immediately be learned.

The survivor, Willard Bell, 29, of Los Angeles, owner of the boat, swam ashore. He told Evanston police he kept Latimer afloat for 20 minutes after the boat capsized, but had to relinquish his hold on Latimer when the latter became panic stricken and sought to cling to him.

Bell, who had managed to divest himself of all his clothing except one shoe while in the water, was taken to St. Francis hospital in Evanston, suffering from shock and exposure.

Latimer's body was found entangled in the rigging of the boat when the craft was recovered. Hare's body has not been found.

ARMY SENDS AID TO POSTOFFICE FOR YANK MAIL

A detail of soldiers and 50 trucks from Camp Ellis, Ill., came to the Chicago postoffice yesterday to help the regular force handle a rising tide of Christmas parcel post mailed to fighters overseas. The deadline for Christmas mail sent overseas is 12 p. m. tomorrow at the main postoffice; 6 p. m. at substations.

Two new records had been established before the army came to help. Between Sept. 15 and Thursday, a record of 5,927,118 parcels had been processed, Postmaster Kruetgen said. On Thursday 485,673 parcels were handled, compared with a total of 493,000 in October, 1943.

ASK SOMERVELL OUSTER FOR SLUR ON NEGRO TROOPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Petitions calling upon President Roosevelt to remove Lt. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell because of a reported slur on a million Negro soldiers were being gathered today for delivery to the White House.

The petitions, signed by colored people thruout the nation, were inspired by a story by Harry McAlpin, the only Negro White House correspondent, which appeared in the Chicago Defender and the Washington Tribune.

McAlpin reported that at a recent meeting at which the problem of returning Negro soldiers was discussed, Arkansas born Somervell said:

"I'd like to throw the coons into the middle of the desert."

Protest Mistreatment.

In a telegram calling the report to the attention of the President, Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, said his organization called upon Mr. Roosevelt as commander in chief to protect a million Negro soldiers from "continued insults and mistreatment at the hands of prejudiced commanding officers."

"We believe any officer so minded expressing privately or publicly such slanderous and traitorous statements against battle scarred Negroes in the uniform of Uncle Sam should be brought first before a court martial and the least punishment should be release by executive order from his command and all further responsibility, dishonorable discharge or denial for one year of American citizenship," the telegram said.

Vote Action Threatened.

"We urge you, Mr. President, as commander in chief to speak out and call a halt to this unlawful military discrimination with its tragic demoralization to 13 million loyal and patriotic Negro Americans.

"We call for positive correction before Nov. 7, as election day will afford the Negro voters in the north their final protest of your administration's failure to guarantee equal rights in the military service and for civilians on the home front for which their sons fight and die on battle fields abroad."

DEMOCRAT FINDS DEWEY HAS 47% OF COUNTY VOTE

Poll Shows Percentage in Chicago Is 44.9.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

A poll taken by an influential Democrat gives Tom Dewey, Republican nominee for President, a larger percentage of straw votes in Cook county than the recent poll conducted by a Republican leader, it was learned yesterday. The Democrat has been making election surveys over a period of 16 years and claims a good record for accuracy.

The Democratic poll gives Dewey a shade better than 47 per cent in the county, compared with 45.5 per cent in the Republican poll. The late Wendell Willkie, as G. O. P. nominee, received 44.7 per cent in the 1940 election. Republican leaders say the swing is still toward victory in Cook county, altho Dewey can carry Illinois without it.

44.9 Pct. in Chicago.

Dewey's Chicago percentage in the Democratic poll is 44.9 compared with 42.2 per cent in the Republican poll, and with 41.7 per cent actual vote for Willkie in 1940. The Democratic straws in the "country towns" of the county give Dewey only 56.6 per cent, however, compared with 65.6 per cent in the G. O. P. straws and 60.4 per cent actual vote for Willkie.

The new poll outside of Chicago took in Evanston, Cicero, Oak Park, Berwyn, Park Ridge, and Des Plaines, which, according to some views, did not sufficiently emphasize territories of overwhelming G. O. P. sentiment.

There were 1,045 ballots taken in the suburbs — a disproportionate number against the 2,662 Chicago ballots. On this basis, Dewey would get 48.1 per cent county-wide; the suburban figures were "weighted" to bring them into line with the respective voting strength of Chicago and the country towns.

Total in Cicero Is Small.

Cicero was shown as giving Dewey only 33 per cent in the Democratic poll, altho nearly all village and township officials elected there this year are Republicans. Berwyn appears as giving Dewey only 38 per cent. The other suburbs in this study give him from 60 to 73 per cent.

Gov. Green and Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for senator, run a trifle ahead of Dewey in the Democratic poll. The Republican poll showed Lyons 1.1 percentage points ahead of Dewey, and Green 2.5 percentage points ahead of the Presidential challenger.

The Democratic poll was conducted from Sept. 20 to Oct. 10, a couple of weeks later than the G. O. P. survey. One politician theorized that Green and Lyons were well known from their years of activity here, while the late starting campaign of Dewey is just now canceling this advantage of the state candidates.

Percentage in Districts.

The Democratic poll gives Dewey's percentage of straws in these city districts as follows:

Stock Yards	42	71st-Stony Island	41
Broadway-Wilson	69	Beverly Hills	56
South Shore	66	Douglas Park	26
South Chicago	31	North-av-Halsted	59
Cicero-av.-Lake-st.	44	South Chicago	35
Albany Park	41	Southwest Side	33
Englewood	57	W. Side [Italian]	38

Vote collectors reported that at many locations there were frequent refusals to cast ballots. Under the system used, the investigator could tell how each person voted. A Republican official considers that this "silent vote" is predominantly for his party.

In Kankakee, a Democratic straw vote also enlarged the earlier percentages of a Republican poll. On the second investigation, Dewey was shown with 76 per cent, compared with 71.7 in the G. O. P. test. Lyons had 74 per cent, compared with 70 per cent in the prior poll, and Gov. Green had 76 per cent, compared with 70.5 a week ago.

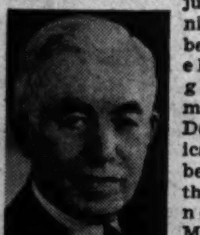
G. O. P. NOMINEES FOR CITY COURT ATTACK RIVALS

An aggressive attack on the close connection between Democratic judges of the Municipal court bench seeking reelection and gangster elements of the Democratic political machine is being waged for the 12 Republican nominees for Municipal court judge.



E. C. O'Reilly.

A prominent place on the programs of ward and district rallies is being given to the Municipal court nominees who are out to break the Democratic monopoly of 37 places on the city court bench. Among the aggressive speakers is Eugene C. O'Reilly, who has received the indorsement of the Chicago Bar association as "an able, trustworthy lawyer of extended experience, a man of integrity qualified for the office."

The other 11 Republican nominees and John A. Filpi, Stephen M. Fleming, George W. Hansen, John R. Lamb, John J. Lyons, Anthony A. Olis, Henry E. Pieruccini, Patrick B. Prescott Jr., Stanley R. Pulaski, William J. Remus, and George M. Schatz.

OPEN $5,000,000 WEAPON EXHIBIT TO PUBLIC VIEW

The wars in Europe and the Pacific have sharpened interest in the weapons of war of medieval times, Mrs. George Harding, wife of the custodian of the 5 million dollar George F. Harding collection of medieval weapons and armor at 4843 Lake Park av., said yesterday. Visitors to the museum, she said, like to comment upon the contrast, for example, of an ancient crossbow with a modern .50 caliber machine gun.

The museum is now open to the general public from 2 to 4 p. m. the first and third Sundays of each month. Admission is free. Children under 18 are not admitted.

In Miniature Castle.

The famous collection is housed in a miniature French castle. It was gathered over a period of many years by the late George F. Harding, former Republican leader.

One of the most interesting sections contains more than 100 antique firearms, including firelock, wheel lock, and flintlock muskets, and pistols and revolvers.

The popular crossbow section contains approximately 30 crossbows, most of them of English and German origin, and some dating back to the early 1600s.

Several Thousand Items.

In all, the immense collection fills 14 rooms; individual items total several thousand. Among them are almost 70 complete suits of armor, 600 pieces of knightly accoutrements, and scores of swords, spiked maces, and 14th century daggers. The sword collection is considered one of the world's best.

Paintings by Gainsborough, Rubens, Goya, Van Dyck, and Remington are also exhibited, as well as the spinets upon which Chopin and Liszt composed some of their world famous music. The favorite sofa of Lincoln, the four poster bed of Marshal Ney, the harp of Marie Antoinette, and the folding bed used by Napoleon in his Egyptian campaign are in the collection.

New Chicago Polio Case Brings '44 Total to 143

A single case of infantile paralysis reported yesterday in Chicago brought the city's total to 143 cases and six deaths for 1944, compared with 899 cases and 82 cases in the corresponding period last year. No new cases were reported in the suburban area, whose totals for 1944 are 76 cases and four deaths, compared with 246 cases and 19 deaths in the corresponding period last year.

DRIVE WILL OPEN TOMORROW TO FILL 11,000 JOBS

The war man power commission tomorrow will start an "All Out for Victory Week" drive here to recruit 11,000 men and women war plant workers to put in a minimum of 14 million work hours during the next six months on big guns, ammunition, ships, tanks, bombs, and other munitions of which actual shortages exist on the fighting fronts.

Lester Brown, area director, said 25,000 workers will be needed by Jan. 1, 1945, but that 11,000 are needed within a week to speed up lagging production schedules in 117 "must" plants with highest man power priority ratings.

He said the 15 Chicago United States employment service offices will be kept open today from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. to accommodate store and office workers.

Posters bearing the slogan, "Get a war job to help him fight," will be distributed thruout Chicago and suburbs by members of the 273 American Legion posts in Cook county. A group of Legion members will meet in the WMC offices, 308 N. Michigan av., at 11 a. m. today to get instructions.

Divorce Won in Waukegan by Australian War Bride

Waukegan's first Australian war bride, Mrs. Marjorie Cheslock, 25, sought her freedom yesterday from Chief Petty Officer Douglas Cheslock, 28, of Great Lakes Naval Training center. The couple, who live at 720 Wadsworth av., Waukegan, were married last Feb. 3 in Brisbane, Australia, while Cheslock was on leave. She came to Waukegan in midsummer.

THREE YEARS OF SILENCE.

Roosevelt's diplomacy consisted of handing the Japanese emissaries in Washington an ultimatum demanding surrender of both national aspirations and face. The reply could have been predicted. It was delivered at Pearl Harbor by Japanese bombing planes, and at Washington, somewhat belatedly, in the note submitted by Nomura and Kurusu to Secretary Hull.

As soon as the extent of the disaster became apparent to Mr. Roosevelt a calculated plan was set in train to point the finger of responsibility in any direction except toward the indispensable commander in chief. Mr. Roosevelt knew just how vulnerable he was and an assiduous effort was made to cast dust in the eyes of the public.

Two things were necessary—to conceal the enormity of the disaster and to produce scapegoats. Secretary of the Navy Knox, who on the eve of the attack in submitting his annual report had pronounced the navy "ready," departed for Hawaii on what has been described as an expiatory mission, but the real objective of which was to lay the groundwork of the conspiracy.

Eight days after Pearl Harbor, back in Washington again, Knox announced these as the losses: 2,897 killed, 879 wounded, 26 missing, the battleship Arizona and the old target ship Utah, together with the destroyers Shaw, Cassin, and Downes, and the mine layer Oglala sunk, and the battleship Oklahoma capsized. The Knox report was a lie, but it had something of the appearance of truth, for it was considerably more candid than the lies of the White House on Dec. 8 in the statement that "in Pearl Harbor itself one old battleship has capsized and several other ships have been seriously damaged. One destroyer was blown up. Several other small ships were seriously hurt." Not for a full year would the complete damage be made known—and then, as Secretary Knox admitted, the story still had not been told in its entirety.

The losses were far more disastrous. In all, 4,575 men were killed, wounded, or missing—2,343 dead, 1,272 wounded, 960 missing, almost all of whom can now be accounted dead. The battleship Arizona had been sunk and permanently lost. The battleships Oklahoma, California, Nevada, and West Virginia; the destroyers Shaw, Cassin, and Downes; the mine layer Oglala; the target ship Utah; and a large floating drydock were either sunk or damaged so severely that they would serve no military purpose for many months. The battleships Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Tennessee; the cruisers Helena, Honolulu, and Raleigh; the seaplane tender Curtiss; and the repair ship Vestal also were damaged. Ninety-seven army and 80 navy planes were demolished.

After concealing the losses under a cloak of censorship the Whitewash House nominated the fall guys—Adm. Kimmel and the army commander, Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short. They had been relieved of their commands as soon as Knox returned to Washington on the basis of his assertion that they were not on the alert. The next step was to confirm the blame.

An investigating commission which had no standing in either civil or military law was dispatched to Hawaii and, to give an odor of sanctity to the proceedings, Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts was placed in charge. He could not have been expected to know either the military or diplomatic considerations that had governed the disaster and, indeed, he frankly stated in his report that some of the most pertinent factors had been excluded from evidence.

For instance, the Roberts report disposed of the whole question as to the advisability of basing the fleet at Pearl Harbor in these words: "We feel that the national policy in this matter has been settled by those responsible for such decisions and that it is not within our province . . . to discuss any such topic."

Within the limits of investigation set, the great mystery was why the fleet had been caught asleep. Warnings of one sort or another had been dispatched to the commanders since as early as Jan. 27, 1941, when Ambassador Grew reported from Tokyo that the Japs were planning a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor. This and other warnings, from Secretary Hull, Knox, and others, had been referred to the Hawaiian commanders in such bewildering profusion that the effect was of an almost continuous cry of "wolf, wolf."

The fact that warnings had been given was sufficient for the Roberts commission. The fact that the warnings had been so conditioned as to tie the hands of the commanders was completely disregarded. The blame was fixed on Kimmel and Short.

The state department has since denied that, despite all the warnings, the fleet was held within harbor because Ambassador Kurusu had complained that if it were allowed to roam about outside the effect upon the Japanese war hawks would be such as to prejudice the success of his "peace" talks. But nobody has denied that, together with the warnings, Kimmel and Short were cautioned no less than six times to do nothing that would "constitute provocation," make it appear that this country had committed "the first overt act," "alarm the civilian population or disclose intent," or "give the appearance of attacking." The commanders were adjured to "prevent complication of the tense existing situation," to confine protective measures to "those essential for security," and to "take no offensive action."

The only course left to Gen. Short under the circumstances was to proclaim a third degree alert, designed to guard against sabotage. That this had the full approval of the White House is demonstrated by the fact that Gen. Marshall, chief of staff, confirmed the propriety of the measure. There was no disposition, despite the precedent of Japan's Sunday sneak attack 31 years before against the Russian fleet at Port Arthur, to invoke alert No. 2 for security against submarines, ships, and planes, or alert No. 3, which provided for maximum defensive measures of every type.

Some seven hours before the Jap attack Gen. Marshall, having been given reason to believe the crisis was near, dispatched a last warning to Short, but instead of telephoning it or sending it by speedy military communications channels, it was sent by commercial cable and was delivered by a messenger on a bicycle. It did not arrive until after the last Jap plane had returned to its carrier, and it was not decoded until two hours after that. Meanwhile, Mr. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins were lounging about the White House. The President intended to dabble with his stamp collection, putting stamps in their neat little rows just as he had put the fleet in its little rows.

For months after the disaster the story was still coming out piecemeal, and one of the most curious and significant contributions was made 10 months later in a published account by Lt. Clarence E. Dickinson, navy scout bomber pilot. Lt. Dickinson was with one of three American task forces at sea from 200 to 700 miles distant from Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7. The mission of his group had been to deliver a dozen additional fighter planes to Wake Island, and when this was accomplished and the task force turned home, Lt. Dickinson and his comrades took off from their carrier to fly into Oahu ahead of it. They ran into the Jap attack and several of them, including Dickinson, were shot down.

Dickinson's account suggests three things: [1] That whatever the limits of Gen. Short's alert covering Hawaii itself, Adm. Kimmel had placed his warships at sea under flat war orders 10 days before hostilities commenced—a decision he would not have reached independently of Washington. [2] That Kimmel's primary concern, reflected in the security he apparently felt because the ships in harbor were behind the anti-torpedo net, was with submarines. And, [3] That only bad weather which had prevented them from making port kept at least two of the largest American carriers from being added to the Jap toll.

"We had sailed from Pearl Harbor Nov. 28 under absolute war orders," Lt. Dickinson stated. Remembering the President's "shoot on sight" order of the preceding Sept. 11 to American warships in the Atlantic, it is not difficult to guess whose decision that was. Dickinson continued, "The secrecy of our mission was to be protected at all costs. We were to shoot down anything we saw in the sky and bomb anything we saw on the sea. In that way, there could be no leak to the Japs."

As to the preoccupation with submarines, the Roberts report related how the U. S. S. Antares, at sea off Pearl Harbor, had sighted and sunk a small Jap sub an hour and 10 minutes before the Jap plane attack; how a second small sub which had sneaked within the harbor when the net was open to permit two mine sweepers to enter was sunk after the attack was begun, and how a third sub ran aground.

That the disaster might have been magnified by loss of the two carriers, except for the fluke of weather, is clearly indicated by Dickinson. "Bad weather," he says, "delayed us and we were getting home on Sunday [the day of the attack] instead of on Saturday, as planned. Under normal conditions," he continues, referring to his carrier, "she would have been at her dock by 6 o'clock on Saturday night, and so would another carrier—the Lexington. On the maps of the harbor carried by the Japs the data were so nearly up to the minute that the two carriers were shown where we ourselves had expected them to be—until that bad weather delayed us."

It is now less than two months short of three years since Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short were disgraced and ordered to face courts martial. They have repeatedly protested that the blame lay elsewhere and have demanded trial. Kimmel has said that the true story will amaze the American people. In the face of every effort of the men themselves and of a large group in congress, the administration has succeeded in thwarting every effort to bring the case to trial and the truth into the open. Twice by act of congress the statute of limitations has been extended so that the trials may be kept alive, but it has been clearly the administration's intention to prevent a hearing before the election, if, indeed, there is any intention ever to permit the facts to come out.

The indispensable commander in chief knows that the chief blame for Pearl Harbor—the most disgraceful and disastrous defeat ever suffered by American arms—can be laid nowhere except at his own door. For this one day's work alone, he should be driven from public life.

JUST THE MAN!

The two particular darlings of Sidney Hillman in the Illinois congressional campaign, Curtis McDougall in the 10th district and Mrs. Emily Taft Douglas for congress at large, are having tough sledding. This was expectable, and explains why more experienced Democratic politicians showed no yearning for the nominations.

Frequently when a candidate is trailing the organization sends in a colleague to bolster his cause. We think we have just the man for the PAC to throw into the McDougall-Douglas campaign. He is that stanch champion of the commander in chief and civil liberties, Hal Styles of California. It did develop after he was nominated for congress that Mr. Styles formerly had been a big shot in the Ku Klux Klan, but the PAC says it believes it can elect him anyway.

Mr. Styles should be effective in attracting to the McDougall-Douglas banner that lunatic fringe for whose support Mr. Roosevelt says he doesn't yearn any more deeply than for that of the Communists. Mr. Styles could wear his nightshirt and, perhaps, just to draw a crowd, he might consent to tar and feather some one.

TWICE-FOUGHT BATTLES.

Our armies in France were reported the other day to have taken Lousy. They can keep their shirts on. We took that one in the last war.

In Italy, our 92d division, composed of Negro troops, has been advancing on Massa. Haven't they heard that the Civil war disposed of that one?

SUCCESS STORY.

Mr. Roosevelt's endeavors to promote himself an occasional dollar in private business and the profession of law were not conspicuously successful, but since he put aside his interest in coin changing machines and got over his sporting inclinations to bet on the future of the German mark he has been doing a little better. He has got steady work at $75,000 a year, with all expenses, including travel and house rent, paid, and if you multiply the salary by 12, you get $900,000 as the pickings to date. Mr. Roosevelt may still not be in a class with the ancestor who made the family pile, but he may feel that he has done something to redeem his reputation as the Col. Sellers of the clan. No wonder he wants to stick around. Another couple of years and he'd be the only American ever to collect a million on a salary earned at the expense of the taxpayers. He certainly no longer can be reckoned among the Telephone Booth Indians.

WATERLOO CAMPAIGN

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

Looking at the map of the western front recently, my eye lit on the name Waterloo, and it occurred to me that a recital of that campaign might prove interesting, for here the three most experienced generals of their time maneuvered more clumsily than armies have been mismanaged in history.

As there were armies from four countries engaged on one side and the French army on the other, there are at least five different points of view.

When word was received that Napoleon had returned to Paris from the Island of Elba, to which he had been sent in exile a year before, the plenipotentiaries of Austria, Russia, Prussia, and Great Britain, at that time meeting in Vienna, immediately decided to unite against him.

The Russian army, on its way back to Russia, was turned around. The Austrian army was started for France. A Prussian and Hanoverian army and an army composed of Dutch and English under command of the Duke of Wellington occupied the lines of advance from France toward Prussia and Brussels, waiting to be joined by the Russians and Austrians.

Of his famous marshals, Massena had retired; Murat had betrayed him in 1814, and Napoleon would have no reconciliation; Lannes had been killed at Esling; his chief of staff, Berthier, had committed suicide in Germany. There remained to him Soult, Ney, and Davout. He left Davout, the best of all of his marshals, in Paris; made Soult his chief of staff, and gave to Ney an army corps.

Soult had so long been either a corps or army commander that he had forgotten his youthful skill as a staff officer.

How Napoleon succeeded in getting his army as far as the frontier unknown to Blücher and Wellington is incomprehensible when we think that a large percentage of the French people were anti-Napoleonic and would have been willing to furnish information.

Blücher was with his troops behind a substantial outpost, but Wellington and his generals were attending a ball in Brussels when the news was brought to them. Blücher's outpost held long enough for him to concentrate his army at the town of Ligny.

Wellington did not reach Quatra Bras, his own outpost, until a full day late and rode over to see Blücher. Any military primer would require that the two armies be immediately joined, but Blücher would not leave the main road to Berlin, and Wellington, governed by that obsession which has controled British generals for hundreds of years, refused to make any move which might let him be cut off from the channel ports.

Napoleon himself attacked Blücher at Ligny late in the day and sent Ney to attack Quatre Bras. Napoleon's army compelled Blücher's to retire after a bitter fight. Ney was given sufficient forces to win at Quatre Bras, but half of them, under command of Gen. d'Erlon, because of bad staff work, marched back and forth between Quatre Bras and Ligny and did not get into either battle, making it possible for Wellington and the Prince of Orange to retreat to Waterloo.

Blücher, for his part, had learned the lesson of dispersion and promised Wellington that he would march to his assistance. Wellington, however, continued to suffer from his obsession and, so far from moving toward Blücher, posted a force of 18,000 of his 85,000 men at Hal, 10 miles away on his right flank, to assure that he would not be cut off from the channel coast. His remaining 67,000 men, of whom 24,000 were British [and some of them were troops that had been defeated at New Orleans by Jackson], he posted in his customary manner behind a slight hill out of sight of the French.

Again Napoleon started his battle late—at noon—altho his army had reached the battlefield the night before. With a superiority in numbers of some three to two, he finally opened a vigorous attack with artillery, infantry, and cavalry. Given sufficient time, the attack was bound to succeed even if Wellington called in his troops from Hal, which he did not do. However, about 5 in the afternoon, at the height of the battle, Prussian troops came on the field, outflanking Napoleon's right.

The first brigades to arrive immediately entered the combat. There were in all 90,000 Prussians and Hanoverians on the battlefield or close to it before the battle ended.

Napoleon, now hopelessly outnumbered, did not adopt a defensive attitude or a retreat from the battlefield. That could avail him nothing. He therefore tried to delay the Prussians long enough to enable him to crush Wellington and even tried to deceive his own troops by telling them that the formations arriving on his flank were the forces he had sent to pursue Blücher. When the falsehood of this information became plain to his troops, Napoleon's attack collapsed.

Then French resistance ceased—and what was the immediate cause of its ceasing is always in controversy. The British claim the victory and the Dutch point out that they had 43,000 troops in line at Waterloo to the British 24,000, while the Prussians claim that Blücher's entering the battle with 90,000 fresh troops was the cause of the victory.

The fact that Blücher and Wellington did not meet on the battlefield until after dark on the 18th of June, that is at 11 o'clock at night, would indicate that the French resistance had lasted that long. It was always claimed by the Prussians that it was the all-night pursuit by Prussian cavalry which caused the French army to dissolve. An equally likely reason was that Napoleon here, as always, deserted his army in defeat, as did all of his marshals.

Blücher suggested that the battle be named La Belle Alliance—the beautiful alliance—but the alliance being now no longer necessary, Wellington called it Waterloo.

"PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE."

TONICS, on the whole, are outmoded. There was a time, not so long ago, when the family doctor recommended some vile tasting concoction to the fatigued housewife, the tired business man, or the rundown youngster. Little effort was made to find the cause of the symptoms of exhaustion. More often than not, however, the prescription hit the spot. The explanation lies in the fact that iron was employed routinely, while small doses of quinine or strychnine actually bolstered a flagging system.

Now, these remedies were not looked upon as cures. They were not given for the purpose of arresting a disease process or helping a damaged organ. On the contrary, they were thought to assist the behavior of certain body functions and thus exert a beneficial influence upon general well being.

The physician who prescribes sodium salicylate for acute rheumatic fever does not regard the drug as a bracer. On the other hand, if he advises a bitter preparation [for example, nux vomica] to promote appetite, he may well expect relief in the one who remarks that his muscles feel wilted. Many older medical men felt obliged to give the patient something to whet his desire for food. Thus better nutrition aided convalescence.

The notion of tonics goes back into antiquity and, no matter how much we decry their use as unfashionable, a good deal can be said in their favor. According to Moorhead, who carried on a series of experiments with controled patients, more edibles were consumed when "bitters" were administered to those who were undernourished. Marked benefit ensued with those who were winning back from a wasting disorder. Appetite, as well as the secretion of gastric juice, improved. Weak and emaciated persons experienced a sharpened hunger. In other words, the interval required to return these people to activity was lessened.

To the suggestion that this effect is purely imaginary, the answer is made that the stimulation of taste buds on the tongue reflects itself along the intestinal tract. Still other investigators found that a pungent extract, such as gentian, when in contact with the stomach wall, would cause its folds to become wider and increase in height. There followed a larger output of mucus and other gastric elements, including hydrochloric acid.

We may conclude, therefore, that for vigorous individuals, there isn't a particle of value in these products. But for the invalid who is recovering from pneumonia or other weakening malady, we may well consider a "booster."

We can scarcely look upon iron as a tonic. It has a specific and definite rôle in the building of hemoglobin, which is the oxygen-transporting component of the blood. Probably many old fashioned nostrums were helpful because the patient suffered from anemia of a type which would be improved by more iron. In chlorosis [green sickness], no compound could have a more salutary effect than the old standby, Blaud's pills.

Yes, we utilize tonics and well we may. The anesthetist who administers carbon dioxide toward the end of an operation does so in order to stimulate respiration. The gas is merely a temporary lift which induces deeper breathing. In consequence, more oxygen reaches the blood.

But none of these panaceas has a real place in the family medicine cabinet. There is too much danger that a serious and progressive disorder may be covered up.

CHOREA.

A. R. writes: Is there a cure for St. Vitus' dance?

REPLY.

As a rule, chorea will terminate within 6 to 12 weeks. There is a hereditary form [Huntington's], however, which may linger indefinitely. The ordinary type is probably rheumatic in origin. Fever therapy has been employed to advantage.

HEART MALPOSITION.

A. W. M. writes: I have just been informed that my 3 year old child has the heart on the right side. Can he develop normally?

REPLY.

This is known as "dextrocardia." The condition will not interfere with normal growth.

HIDEBOUND.

A. B. writes: What causes stiffening and swelling of the face?

REPLY.

The malady known as "scleroderma" should be investigated. In this condition, the cuticle loses its natural softness and pliability. In consequence, the face feels stiff.

NOT DIET.

S. D. writes: Does the type of food we eat have anything to do with excessive sweating?

REPLY.

The amount of fluids may. Perspiration is a sympathetic reaction, which is stimulated by heat and other factors including certain drugs.

COLD PREVENTIVE.

J. C. writes: Is there any vitamin that will ward off repeated winter colds?

REPLY.

All have been recommended but none have been proved effective. A balanced diet and plenty of rest are our best safeguards.

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

F. D. R. AND LINCOLN.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—The recent assertion by a Communist that if Lincoln were alive today he would be a Communist and the New Dealers' efforts to influence people to imagine a similarity between Lincoln and Roosevelt recalls to my mind excerpts from the personal Memoirs of U. S. Grant, page 122:

"In my first interview with Mr. Lincoln, he stated to me he never professed to be a military man or to know how campaigns should be conducted and never wanted to interfere in them."

And on page 536:

"Mr. Lincoln gained influence over men by making them feel it was a pleasure to serve him. He preferred yielding his own wish to gratify others, rather than insist on having his own way."

Yes, there is a similarity between Lincoln and Roosevelt. They were both Presidents of the United States. There all likeness ends. GEORGE HEALY.

FROM A FASHION SHOW WINNER.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—It is very difficult for me to express completely the gratitude which I feel toward you and Mrs. Grace Pickering for the great effort you have exerted in developing the interest and ability of American fashion designers and the many opportunities which you have offered them.

My praise and respect for the expert taste, ingenuity, and sympathy toward the entrants, with which Mrs. Pickering has led this and past fashion shows. This effort has made possible great advances in the trend of American fashion design. And so it is not only for myself but for all the others who have been recognized by you that I thank you for this great opportunity and hope that you may be able to continue your fine work in the future.

DAN THONESS.

FROM OUT OF TOWN READERS.

Dayton, O., Oct. 4.—I have recently become a subscriber to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The news dealers say it is the most widely read out of town paper on the stands. Unless one happens to be down town early in the day, it is practically impossible to secure a copy.

May I express my appreciation for a newspaper having the courage of its convictions to print the truth.

JEAN BROWN SLAGLE.

Centerville, Ia., Oct. 3.—I feel that I must tell you how much your CHICAGO TRIBUNE means to me. Tho I have been a subscriber only a few months, I sincerely hope never to be without your wonderful paper again.

MRS. GRACE KING.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 3.—Permit me, as one of your readers, to congratulate you on the fine fight you are waging in this campaign, the Armageddon of American politics. Were it not for papers like THE TRIBUNE with their courage and guts we would have been stampeded into a totalitarian state long since. A. RUSSELL SANDERS.

PLANNING, BUT NO SUGAR.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The cigaret and sugar situation in the United States exemplifies the result of infinite planning by presumably capable economists. After several years of computations, it should have been possible to correlate the production and consumption of these items. A factual study of the cigarets which are being purchased for lend-lease and probably drying out in storage while the recipients learn to appreciate our particular brand of smoking would be highly illuminating. Within the last few months, I have been on a train where a member of the diplomatic corps of a principal ally had seven cartons of cigarets which were purchased by him on the way across—for 5 cents a package. He was a civilian and on his way to Chile, to be sure that our good neighbor policy did not react too much to the advantage of the United States.

M. GRAHAM.

THEN WHY DID THE DEMOCRATS PAY FOR IT?

Hines Hospital, Hines Ill., Sept. 25.—I noticed the complaint of a veteran hospitalized here in regard to discrimination of radio programs over the hospital unit. Possibly he does not know that all employes here are under federal civil service, also quite a number of patients come under the same head. I happen to be one of these.

No campaign speeches or activities of any kind are allowed. It's a wonder he has made no complaint that we heard President Roosevelt last Saturday night. That was no campaign speech.

At our next band concert, I will prevail upon the leader to play that popular song of 1917, "Don't Bite the Hand That's Feeding You."

A THANKFUL PATIENT.

PELICAN LAKE, BUCOLIC BUT BEAUTIFUL.

Pelican Lake, Wis., Oct. 3.—I have written you, some time ago, about my difficulties with brother Tommy. Things have now grown almost unbearable.

The worst trouble I have is that I must listen to his low browed, bucolic talk. Like this morning when he brought my oatmeal and cream, he said, "I saw a 2 year old doe by the big maple tree on the Burn's field last night, going and coming. I scared up six partridges. There are trout in Petrie brook, and colonies of mink and muskrats along its banks. A fox has made its home in the hogback. Must be one that escaped from the fur farm. There are mushrooms all thru the woods. Look out the window, see the riot of colors the paint brush of Jack Frost is treating us to: The greens of the conifers, the reds, browns, and yellows of the maples, elms, lindens, birches, and poplars. I've seen a lot of the world, but for sheer natural beauty this part of northern Wisconsin has all other places beat a mile."

Now, I'll leave it to you. With the world fighting and destroying itself, what do you think of a man who finds time to drool about the beauties of nature in northern Wisconsin?

WILLIAM P. RICE.

THE DECAY OF COURTESY.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—What has happened to the people of our country when they have been so busy shouting that "this is a free country" and "we can do as we please" that they have overlooked even the simplest common courtesies?

I happened to witness an incident which is just another example of the complete lack of respect people can have for their fellow man. Two elderly ladies were leaving a restaurant just as a woman and her two children, a boy about 12 and a girl about 10 years old, were about to enter. The boy opened the door for the ladies and held it until they left the restaurant, which little act brought a smart cuff on the ear from his mother with a shouted "Don't stand there holding the door open for those people. This is a free country and you don't have to be any one's servant."

Have we come so far in our "freedom" that we have forgotten our manners? BETTY KLEES.

APPEASING MOSCOW.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—We must and we do commend the soviet armies for their deeds and their bravery on fields of battle, but we cannot and we do not commend the soviet leaders for their Hitleristic philosophy in grabbing foreign territories and in enslaving and annihilating peace loving nations. A just and enduring peace cannot be established on the basis of injustice and enslavement of peoples who love freedom and are entitled to it.

Appeasers of Moscow: Please do not forget the results of the Munich appeasement. JAMES A. BORDEN.

D. C. G. asks: "How long is one entitled to remain ashore before being sent out again after serving 18 months afloat and overseas?"

No specified length of time. It is a matter of the convenience and needs of the service.

P. W. S. writes: "I was discharged by the army after being hospitalized for an undetermined illness. I was not given a C. D. D., however, only an honorable discharge. The army doctors said that the illness had not affected me in any way, but ever since I've just barely had energy enough to keep oing. Can an ex-service man file a claim even tho he wasn't given a C. D. D.?"

Despite the opinions of the army doctors as to the nature and effect of your illness, and even tho you were not given a certificate of disability discharge, you may file a claim at any time thru the nearest regional office of the veterans' administration. We have a very readable booklet of information of interest to all veterans which we will send to any service man or veteran who sends us a 9 cent stamped self-addressed envelope. The supply is limited. It would make most interesting reading to men overseas and we will mail it if readers send an envelope addressed to the person overseas.

MUST LIVE IN STATE ONE YEAR TO VOTE.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 6.—My husband and I moved to Illinois in June of this year. We want to vote in November, but have been informed by the election commissioners' office that we cannot register in this state until we have established residence here for a year. We have written to officials in Missouri, where we lived for the past five years, and have been told that the laws of that state do not permit absentee voting except by persons in the armed services. 1. It looks as tho we will lose our vote this year. 2. Is there anything to be done about this? J. M.

1. Correct. 2. No. It is the general rule that persons who make a substantial change of residence too soon before election lose their vote.

WOMEN POKE FUN AT ELEANOR AND STIR A TEMPEST

Skit Satire or an Insult? Debate Rocks a City.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 14 [Special].—[illegible] in a maid's uniform, a member of the swank women's social organization, the Twentieth Century club, stepped upon the stage carrying a placard reading, "My Day."

The assembled women tittered appreciatively. Across the boards capered another club member, wearing a toothy grin, dressed in miner's garb, complete with lamp.

Rapid changes in costume followed. The toothy woman appeared wearing a mantilla, ready for a trip to Brazil. She tripped offstage to reappear in a flannel nightgown. She dabbed cold cream on her face, then stood before the audience clutching a daisy and plucking petals one by one while murmuring:

"I wonder if he still loves me. Do he? Do he not?" [The "Do he," members of the audience said later, sounded very much like "Dewey."]

Causes a Social Furor.

This stage presentation took place in the club's hall at a luncheon meeting Wednesday, but reverberations from it and the explosion which immediately followed were still causing seismographic disturbances today thruout social and political circles of the city.

The question being argued was: Was the skit a "pleasant and not unfriendly satire," as contended by Mrs. Edgar A. Sharp, president of the club, or was it "a cruel, mean attack on the leader of our nation," as asserted by Mrs. Norman E. Mack?

Mrs. Mack, whose late husband, publisher of the Buffalo Times, was Democratic national committeeman from New York for 32 years, and who herself was once a member of the national committee from the Virgin Islands, was the cause of the explosion which, in effect, lifted the skit from the comparative obscurity of a private club to the spotlight of national attention.

Rises in Protest.

Bristling with anger, Mrs. Mack rose from her front row seat to denounce the proceedings while the nightgown-clad woman on the stage was still plucking daisy petals, club members said today.

"This is the worst exhibition of bad taste I have seen in my entire life," Mrs. Mack said. She then announced her resignation from the club and strode from the hall.

"My patience has been sorely tried, and I have been utterly worn out listening to obscene stories applied to my friend, Eleanor Roosevelt," Mrs. Mack elaborated. "The cruel and not at all witty skit was the finishing touch. A very righteous explosion followed. I don't do things on impulse."

Democrats Have Say.

Local Democratic headquarters chimed in on the argument today with a statement that "Mrs. Mack has ripped the veil from the innuendoes and malicious publicity of the entire Republican campaign," adding that "no efforts of Republican newspapers and Republican advisers to gloss over and hush up this incident will suffice."

Mrs. Sharp expressed surprise at Mrs. Mack's indignation.

"If Mrs. Roosevelt had seen it, I am sure she would have enjoyed it and appreciated it as our own members did without respect to party," she said. "Every one knows the Twentieth Century club is not [illegible]."

By coincidence, Mrs. Roosevelt will speak Thursday from the same stage upon which the skit was presented. For the occasion of her appearance, the citizens' committee for the reëlection of President Roosevelt has rented the club's hall. David Diamond, chairman, said "we have been swamped with requests for reservations since the controversy started."

While in Buffalo, it was learned, Mrs. Roosevelt will be the house guest of Mrs. Mack.

U. S. MUST LIVE WITHIN INCOME, LYONS ASSERTS

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 14 [Special].—America must return to the old fashioned practice of living within its income, Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, asserted here tonight in addressing the John Ericcson Republican league of McClain county.

"Public funds which are exacted from taxpayers must not be recklessly dissipated and squandered either in war or peace," Lyons said. "Our national government must be compelled to live within its budget, without anticipating America's future earning power.

"Then, if the rosy estimates that our national income may soon reach 160 billion dollars a year come true, this money will belong to the Americans who earned it, and not to the schemers in and out of government who are so eager to spend it for them.

"These old fashioned truths have guided America thru every emergency and built the greatest, the most prosperous, and the happiest nation on earth. If we cling to these truths we shall conquer every problem of today and tomorrow, and our children and their children will find a fuller life in a stronger and greater America."

3 Year Old Boy Is Killed by Auto; Motorist Held

Edward Paschen Jr., 3, of 8701 Marquette av. died of a skull fracture in South Chicago hospital yesterday two hours after he had been struck in front of his home by an automobile driven by Sigmund Lewandowski, 29, of 8726 Marquette av. Lewandowski was held pending a coroner's inquest.

G. I. JITTERBUG SOUGHT IN DEATH OF OIL HEIRESS

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP).—Sheriff's investigators said today the Georgette Bauerdorf's generosity to service men may have led to the slaying of the 20 year old heiress in her apartment Wednesday night.

The Hollywood canteen hostess had been accustomed to giving rides to soldiers and sailors, entertaining them at night clubs and lending them money, her friends told police.

"She had the means to do it and was interested in service men," said Mrs. Rose Gilbert, secretary to her father, George Bauerdorf, an oil and mining man.

Seek to Trace Fingerprints.

From manifold fingerprints in the apartment and on her automobile, found abandoned yesterday in a Negro residential district 10 miles away, investigators hoped to develop a clew to the man who they believe raped her, crammed a wash cloth down her throat, and left her in an overflowing bathtub.

Dr. Frank R. Webb, county autopsy surgeon, said his examination showed Miss Bauerdorf had been strangled. He said the condition of her body indicated she had struggled desperately with her slayer.

Search centered on a soldier who Miss June Ziegler, a friend of the dead girl, who had been a hostess with her at the Hollywood canteen Wednesday evening, said "kept cutting in on Georgette all the time" and forcing her to jitterbug with him.

Companion Describes Soldier.

Miss Ziegler said the man was about 28, of average height and of dark complexion.

"Georgette resented his actions, but told me she was dancing with him to avoid trouble," Miss Ziegler told Inspector William Penprase.

Chicagoan Tells of Meeting.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 14 (AP).—Pvt. Jerome M. Brown, an anti-aircraft artillery trainee from Chicago, was identified today by Fort Bliss authorities as the individual whom Georgette Bauerdorf was planning to visit before she was slain.

Army officials quoted Brown as saying he had expected her to arrive here yesterday. They said Brown told of meeting her at the Hollywood canteen the night of June 13.

"I did not see her after that night," Brown was quoted as saying. "I left California some days after I met her, arriving here June 29. I received six letters from her."

Mrs. Roosevelt Donates $25 to CIO Campaign

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—Dorothy Rockwell, president of the Washington Newspaper guild [CIO], said tonight Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had contributed $25 to the CIO's political action committee thru the guild. Miss Rockwell said Mrs. Roosevelt's check had been received at the guild's office. Mrs. Roosevelt is a member of the guild.

SENATE PROBER SAYS UNION HAD HAND IN BRAWL

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Chairman Green [D., R. I.] of the senate campaign expenditures committee said today that he is convinced that members of the AFL teamsters' union took part in the fight with two navy officers as the aftermath of President Roosevelt's address to the union here Sept. 23.

Sen. Green made his announcement to reporters after studying affidavits obtained from members of the union at its headquarters in New York.

He denied, in response to a question from a reporter, that the committee counsel, Robert Murphy, had returned with a black eye from his mission of getting information from the union. Green insisted that relations with the union were most amicable.

Names Known, Green Says.

Green did not divulge the names of those who engaged in the brawl, but said they are known. None of them, he added, is a personal friend of President Roosevelt.

One of the navy officers attacked in the fight, Lt. Randolph Dickins Jr., previously had told of being accused of striking a personal friend of the President in the encounter. The other officer is Lt. Comdr. James H. Suddeth.

Green reported that Daniel J. Tobin, president of the union, had been "very coöperative," but he said Tobin signed none of the affidavits, since Tobin disclaims any personal knowledge of the fight.

Murphy was sent to the union headquarters on Thursday, after Green had announced that the union had not responded to the committee's request for information regarding the fight.

Consider Full Probe.

The chairman, who has been conducting almost a one man inquiry, has been insisting that its purpose is to determine the advisability of a full investigation. Members of the committee, who have been away during the congressional recess, will return on Wednesday, when, he said, the question of a full investigation will be decided.

Asked why a campaign expenditures committee should investigate a fight in which navy officers were concerned, Green replied that efforts were being made to turn the fight into a political issue and the committee intends to clarify the issue.

Comdr. Staples reported to the station Oct. 7 from duty as executive officer at the naval air station at Grosse Ile, Mich.

'OTHER WOMAN' SOBS STORY OF HOGANS SUICIDE

Besieged by Phone Calls on Day of His Death.

The other woman in the life of Harry V. Hogans, 54, hardwood firm executive, who shot and killed himself while talking to her on the telephone Thursday night, was a tearful witness in the East Chicago Avenue police station yesterday at the inquest into his death. After her testimony, the coroner's jury decided Hogans ended his life while despondent.

The witness is Mrs. Jeanette Tees, 38, of 1443 Fargo av., a brunette. She was modishly dressed in a black and white check suit over which she wore a civet fur jacket, finger-tip length, and a black hat bordered with sequins.

Tells of Talk During Visit.

She stormed at reporters and photographers as she paced the floor before the inquest, but she wept openly during the questioning by Deputy Coroner Louis J. Nadherny. The coroner had to repeat her answers for the jury of six men.

Mrs. Tees related that she had known Hogans for about a year and visited him in the Pearson hotel, 190 E. Pearson st., Thursday. Hogans talked then, she said, about difficulties with his wife, Jessie, 729 Hawthorne lane, Geneva.

She recalled that Hogans telephoned her "maybe four or five times" that same day and had threatened to end his life. The last time, she recalled: "Harry said, 'I'm going to kill myself.' I didn't believe him, and I told him so, and he said, 'I will,' and he did. I called the hotel to find out for sure, but I didn't believe it until the police called."

Divorce Agreement Revealed.

Mrs. Tees, who divorced her husband 14 years ago and came to Chicago from Calgary, Alta., with her daughter, Twyla, now 16, was at the inquest Miss Paula Smith, secretary to Hogans.

Policeman Edward Harte testified that Hogans shot himself under the chin with a .38 caliber Colt revolver which was still in his hand when police arrived.

Walter Hogans, 428 Franklin st., Geneva, brother of the suicide victim, was present, but did not testify. He said the widow had told Hogans a week ago that he might obtain a divorce.

Public, Parochial Schools Compete in Saving Paper

A five week waste paper collection contest between public and parochial elementary schools will be started tomorrow as part of a campaign designed to place Chicago in the lead of all metropolitan areas in the country in such collections. Prizes, citations, badges, and special parties are planned for pupils collecting the greatest quantities of paper in the various school districts.

FAIL TO SETTLE STRIKE; SYDNEY STILL NEWSLESS

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 14 (AP).—Newspaper owners and labor representatives met for an hour today, attempting to settle the eight day strike which virtually has deprived this city of newspapers.

The state industrial commission adjourned until Oct. 18, postponing action on an employes' application for an order restoring work at the Herald, Telegraph, and Mirror. The proposal would submit to arbitration the dispute involving the Sun. Printers of that paper quit in an hours and vacation controversy, and publishers of other journals suspended publication in favor of a combined newspaper.

SITE PURCHASED FOR SOUTHWEST STORE PROJECT

Milton H. Callner Plans $1,500,000 Outlay.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

One of the largest business building projects on the southwest side in many years, involving an expenditure of $1,500,000 in land and buildings, was announced yesterday by Milton H. Callner of Milton H. Callner & Co., one of the city's biggest owners of real estate. With the acquisition of one more parcel—already under option—Callner will have a frontage on the southeast side of Archer av. of 566 feet.

On this land, extending from 43d st. to Kedzie av., Callner will remodel present buildings and erect new units from plans by Architect Raymond Gregori, as soon as war restrictions permit, he said.

Will Have 910 Feet Frontage.

Callner already owns one of the largest store projects in the area, the triangular block just northeast of his proposed development. This is the $650,000 Brighton block, built in 1939, fronting 344 feet on Archer, 300 on 43d, and 258 on Whipple st. It is a one and two story structure, the first story rented to several chain stores and the second floor to Metropolitan Life Insurance company. With his new project Callner will have a total frontage of 910 feet of business buildings in three blocks on Archer av.

In assembling the site for his new development Callner bought the southeast corner of Archer and 43d, fronting 244 ft. on Archer, 25 ft. on 43d, and 139 ft. on Albany av., from Henry H. Lava thru the Mark Levy Realty company. It is improved with a one and two story building.

All the tenants except a chain store super market have been notified to vacate and the building will be rebuilt as soon as conditions permit, Callner said.

Store Block Planned.

Adjoining this property on the southwest, extending to Troy st., Callner purchased 125 feet of vacant frontage, on which he will build a new block of stores. This was sold by James A. Love and others, also thru Mark Levy Realty company.

Across Troy st. he bought 147 feet of vacant frontage on Archer and has an option on the adjoining 50 feet, at the corner of Kedzie. On this frontage he will build a modern store building.

HALF CENTURY OLD PRINTERS REMODEL PLANT

Another step toward making the near north side a graphic arts center is being taken by Monsen-Chicago, typographer, who has leased for 10 years from N. Landon Hoyt the former two story garage building at 500 N. Wabash av., at the northwest corner of Illinois st. A $90,000 rebuilding and modernization program is under way which when completed is expected to result on one of the most efficient plants of its kind in the city.

The company was established 57 years ago by the late Thormod Monsen, who came to Chicago from Norway when a boy. His son Myron, and a grandson of the same name, operate the company, which moved recently from 730 N. Franklin st. The new plant is air conditioned and equipped with fluorescent lighting, and has windows of glass block. The building is 100 by 100 feet.

BEST DESIGNED OLDER BUILDINGS TO WIN PRIZES

Reversing the custom of giving annual prizes for the best new residence of the year, the Elgin Real Estate board yesterday announced a prize contest for the best designed structure of 75 years of age or older. Stephen C. Ladd, of Campbell & Ladd, realtor, and former president of the Elgin organization, said that Earl H. Reed, former president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects and an authority on old time architecture in Illinois, will be judge. He will inspect Elgin's older buildings on Saturday, Oct. 21.

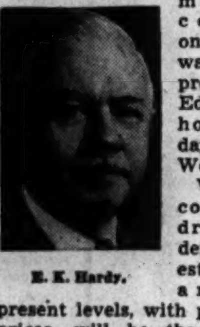
DISCUSS PEACE TREND OF REAL ESTATE PRICES

The Mortgage Bankers Association of America will hold its 31st annual meeting and conference on war and post-war mortgage problems at the Edgewater Beach hotel for three days beginning Wednesday.



E. K. Hardy.

Whether the country faces a drastic post-war deflation in real estate values or a maintenance of present levels, with possibly higher prices, will be the subject of a review by economists.

Principal speakers will include Dr. Julius Hirsch, New York, who expects a post-war deflation, and John W. Scoville, economist of the Chrysler corporation, who holds the opposite view.

Men not in mortgage banking who are on the program include Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker corporation; Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, and Gov. Green.

E. K. Hardy, Chicago, president of the National Council of Real Estate Taxpayers, will speak, and John S. Clark, Cook county assessor, will discuss the possibility of making the economic return from property the basis for levying taxes instead of using capital values as a base.

Other subjects to be discussed are the effects post-war aviation may have on realty values, how mortgage bankers can assist in lending under the G. I. Bill of Rights, the next moves likely in the issue of public versus private housing, and equitable disposal of war housing.

Realty Miscellany

Adolph F. Kramer, president of Draper & Kramer, yesterday announced the election of Thomas J. Purcell and Murray Wolbach Jr. as vice presidents. Purcell is a former manager of the mortgage department of the Northern Trust company. Wolbach has been with Draper & Kramer since 1936 and recently was appointed manager of the mortgage loan department to replace Capt. Robert H. Pease, now in service.

Start Cleaning Site for Sinai Nurses' Home

Contracts have been awarded and work started removing buildings at 2736 W. 15th pl., as the site for a seven story residence and educational building for Mount Sinai hospital, it was announced yesterday. Final plans are being completed by A. Epstein, structural engineer and chairman of the hospital's building committee. The estimated cost of building and equipment is $850,000. Contracts for the new structure will be let when permission to erect it is received from the war production board, Epstein said.

The new nurses' home will be of reinforced concrete fireproof construction, with brick enclosing walls and stone trim. It will contain 220 rooms for student and graduate nurses and several suites for supervisors. A detached wing will provide housing for 24 interns and residents.

The roof of the new building will be used for recreational purposes. The entire second floor will be devoted to educational facilities and will contain laboratories, classrooms, library, and demonstration rooms. Administrative offices will occupy the first floor. There will be an assembly and gymnasium hall seating 700.

The new building will be connected with the main hospital building at 2750 W. 15th pl. by underground and overhead passages.

Morris Kurtzon is president of the hospital, and Dr. Stephen Manheimer is executive director.

SOUTH EMERGES FROM DARK AGE OF 'KING COTTON'

BY GAIL COMPTON.

Stifled by hundreds of years of bad farming and the rule of King Cotton, the south is beginning to emerge as the most promising agricultural section in the nation, a tour of the area reveals.

Modern corn belt farming techniques and abandonment of the one crop system have brought the south with tremendous strides from the dark ages of cotton, tobacco, and mules to the point where it bids fair to rival the midwest in food production.

Much of the land thru the midsouth and deep south is badly gullied and eroded because the farmers have been robbing the soil for more than 200 years. The red raw earth has been farmed until it has almost become sterile.

Diversification Dethrones Cotton.

Only in the last 10 years have southern farmers learned to put lime and fertilizer on their land. They recently began sowing winter cover crops to protect bare ground from erosion. Rapidly expanding diversification of crops is providing a more sound and honest agricultural economy than that of cotton.

The expansion of the south's live stock industry has been remarkable and has caused much of its farmers' new prosperity. Some of the finest pure bred herds of Jersey dairy cattle and Hereford and Aberdeen-Angus beef cattle may be found where once only cotton and tobacco grew.

Worn out land has been seeded to pasture, soils have been tested and deficiencies remedied, and acreages devoted to corn, oats, soybeans, and hay have boomed to record levels. The cotton acreage is declining steadily.

Louisiana a Good Example.

Louisiana is a good example of what is happening. The state has approximately 1,336,000 head of cattle valued at $42.50 a head, according to B. B. Jones, Orleans parish farm agent. Ten years ago the state had only 740,000 head valued at $18.20 each. Cotton acreage in the state was reduced 10 per cent this year, he said, to make room for pastures and other crops.

In a few years, experts predict, the south will be producing milk in greater quantities and more cheaply than Wisconsin, the nation's dairy state. Southern farmers can pasture their stock 11 months out of the year, produce better oats than the midwest, and use cheaper labor.

The south can grow and dehydrate sweet potatoes for fattening beef cattle as cheaply and as well as an Illinois farmer can grow corn. The sweet potato has been found to have 95 per cent of corn's efficiency as a cattle feed.

Railroads Show the Way.

Much of the credit for the rebirth of southern agriculture must go not to the farmers or state agricultural colleges, but to southern railroads. Outstanding is the work of the Illinois Central system.

This railroad dotted the countryside with pure bred dairy bulls when farmers decided to produce milk. It brought in lambs for the farmers to fatten and recommended new farming practices. The Mississippi Agricultural college has started to test soil; the Illinois Central has been giving them this service for 12 years.

The railroad was the first agency to set up demonstration pasture plots showing the value of lime and winter cover crops. It helped develop the vast strawberry lands around Baton Rouge, La. The south's farmers acknowledge their debt to its railroads.

LUTHERANS ASK FOR FREEDOM IN LATIN AMERICA

Attack Catholic Stand on Missionaries.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—The United Lutheran church in biennial convention session here today adopted a federal council of churches statement of policy on religious liberty.

Prior to the unanimous adoption of the statement the convention was told that a special federal council commission is studying the present status of religious freedom thruout the world, and that its report, soon to be published under council auspices, will document the situation as it is found in each country.

Presented in Capital.

The convention was told that the statement, which has been presented to President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull, members of congress, and to 53 heads of diplomatic missions, would have far reaching effects in Latin America. President Roosevelt was reported "enthusiastic" about it.

While the statement makes no reference to the Roman Catholic church, its acceptance by the Lutherans, along with an official report of the West Indies board of American missions of the United Lutheran church was cited as a direct protest against the Catholics.

The mission report was presented to the convention Monday by the Rev. William Arbaugh, mission superintendent for the West Indies, who said he spoke in an official way for missions in all Latin America.

A Charge of Proselyting.

"I come to you in an hour of grave crisis," he said. "The Roman Catholic church has seized upon this time of world confusion to try to crush the entire evangelical missionary enterprise in the traditionally Roman Catholic countries of South and Central America and the West Indies.

"Whence comes the attack? Not from governments, educators, social workers, but from the bishops and their spokesmen, and their complaint is that Protestant missionaries are proselyting. We are not in Puerto Rico or Argentina to make poor Lutherans out of good Catholics. We send missionaries there for the same reason that we send home missionaries to Chicago or Philadelphia to gather the unchurched for Christ."

Catholic Figures Cited.

The report then asserted the Catholic church has insufficient priests in Latin America. Stating that "the statistics are from Roman Catholic sources," the report said "there are 10 times as many priests for every million Catholics in the United States as in Latin America."

The statement of the federal council said religious liberty "shall be interpreted to include freedom to worship according to conscience and to bring up children in the faith of their parents; freedom for the individual to change his religion; freedom to preach, educate, publish, and carry on missionary activities, and freedom to organize with others, and to acquire and hold property for these purposes."

WORK ON PLANT TO FILTER CITY WATER DELAYED

The city's 23 million dollar filtration plant under construction at 79th st., and the lake will not be ready for operation this year, W. W. De Berard, city engineer, revealed yesterday. The plant originally was scheduled for completion in the summer of 1943, but lack of priorities and labor have held up work and the plant is only 70 per cent complete.

De Berard said that when the plant is put into operation in the late winter or early spring only two of the three purification processes will be in operation. The third, or actual filtration process unit, will not be completed for two years, or the duration of the war, at the present rate of priority releases by the war production board.

The two processes that will be in use are coagulation and sedimentation. They will remove at least 70 per cent of the impurities, it is estimated, in the water furnished to more than 1,500,000 people living in the city and the suburbs south of Pershing rd.

M. J. O'CONNELL, PRESIDENT OF DE PAUL, RESIGNS

Succeeded by Dean of Commerce College.

The Very Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, for 10 years president of De Paul university, has resigned to accept the appointment as superior of the priests of the Congregation of the Mission in Chicago, it was announced yesterday by the Very Rev. Marshall F. Winne.

Rev. M. J. O'Connell [top] and Rev. C. J. O'Malley.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, chancellor of the university, has approved the appointment of the Rev. Comerford J. O'Malley, C. M., A. M., S. T. D., as the university's new president. Father O'Malley has been dean of De Paul's college of commerce since 1936. He will be the seventh president of the university since its foundation in 1898.

De Paul university is one of Chicago's four major universities, established and operated by the Vincentian fathers of the Congregation of the Mission.

Father O'Malley is 42 and a native Chicagoan. He is one of seven brothers, six of whom attended De Paul. Father O'Malley received his seminary training at St. Mary's in Perryville, Mo., and was ordained priest in Paris, France, in 1928. He continued his theological studies at the Collegio Angelico in Rome, where he received his doctorate of sacred theology in 1829.

Father O'Malley came to De Paul in 1934 as professor of philosophy.

TAVERN AND PATRON ROBBED.

Two armed men wearing gray tweed jackets yesterday robbed Thomas Collins, owner of a liquor store and tavern at 2854 Diversey av., of $35, and took $55 from a customer, Charles Hawkins, police were informed.

15,000 HUNTERS BOMBARD LAKES; ONE DEAD, 2 HIT

One hunter was dead and two had been wounded seriously yesterday afternoon as the 1944 duck hunting season got under way. Despite the shortage of shot gun shells, it was estimated by the sheriff's office and federal game wardens that 15,000 hunters began the annual bombardment in Lake county half an hour before sunrise. They were congregated along the shores of 55 lakes in an area 22 by 15 miles in the county.

William F. Jahn, 56, retired lieutenant of the Chicago fire department, died of a heart attack after shooting at ducks in Grass lake, four miles southwest of Antioch. His companion, Stanley A. Seliga, of fire engine company 82, said that Jahn, who lived at 8421 S. Peoria st., had suffered heart pains when the two started out in their boat at dawn.

Pulled Out of Lake.

He refused to go back, however. The fatal attack came as Jahn fired his first shot. Seliga pulled him from the lake, rowed him ashore, and summoned the Antioch rescue squad, whose efforts were in vain.

Frank Raux, 30, of 6342 N. Bell av., was shot in the right leg while hunting on Fourche lake. He said he did not know who shot him. Raux was taken to St. Therese's hospital, Waukegan.

Edward S. Auer, 3721 N. Bell av., was shot in the left eye and taken to Victory Memorial hospital, Waukegan. A specialist, summoned from Chicago, expressed fear he would lose the sight of the eye. Auer was unable to say who shot him.

Ducks were more than twice as plentiful as last year in the Illinois lake region, and along the Illinois river southwest of Chicago, sportsmen asserted. The bag limit per day this year is 15, made up of a maximum of 10 teal, bluebills, ruddies, or gadwells; five mallards, widgeons, or pintails; and one in the total bag of 15. Shooting is permitted from half an hour before sunrise to sunset.

New York-Norfolk Bus Skids, Upsets; 22 Hurt

Princess Anne, Md., Oct. 14 (AP).—Twenty-two passengers on a southbound New York-Norfolk bus were injured today, six of them seriously enough to remain in a hospital, when the vehicle skidded and overturned during a drizzling rain a mile north of Princess Anne.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 14.—Buddy Young, Chicago's contribution to the University of Illinois football speed program, dashed 64 yards to a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage, in the Illinois-Iowa game here this afternoon. The dazzled Hawkeyes never got their eyes back in focus after witnessing the Negro flash's sprint. The Illini, cheered by this opening success, rammed on to an eventual 40 to 6 triumph in this 25th meeting of the football teams of the two great midwest state universities.

The Illini, after their first minute touchdown, kept rolling for a 20 to 0 count at the end of the first period. Don Greenwood of Wilmette added the point to Buddy's touchdown, then six minutes later passed 10 yards to Johnny Orr in the end zone for another touchdown, but failed to add the point. In 11:30 of the opening period, Young reeled off another touchdown sprint, this one for 30 yards, and Greenwood again added the point. This touchdown was set up by Bill Heiss' pass interception.

They're Off Again.

After the first quarter Illini splurge the Champaign lads subsided to the extent the second period was played without scoring, but the tally business was resumed in the 13th minute of the third period, when Greenwood plunged over for a touchdown and kicked the point. This touchdown was built up on prances by Young and Paul Patterson in a parade which began on the Illinois 28 yard line and carried to the Iowa 21. Greenwood then went thru to the Iowa 16 and, when the Hawkeyes were socked 15 yards for roughing, Greenwood found it a simple task to plunge for the touchdown.

A 34 yard pass, Bill Butkovich to Fred Green, was completed near the end of the third period, but at the start of the fourth period Iowa took the play away from the Illini for its only concerted drive.

Hawkeyes Start Drive.

Jim Hansen, Bill Kersten, Dick Woodard, and John Stewart collaborated in a march from their 29 yard line to the Hawkeyes' lone marker. The scoring play was an 8 yard pass, Woodard to Stewart.

Less than a minute after the Iowa touchdown the Illini came back with a spectacular charge. Butkovich ran back the kick-off to Iowa's 49 yard line and Don Johnson made 5 yards. Then Butkovich cast a great 44 yard pass to Walt Kersulis for a touchdown.

The game's final touchdown also was a marathon special. Clyde Perkins ran 46 yards to the 1 yard line, where he stumbled and fell. Then, on the next play, he completed his trip and Orville Hall added the afternoon's final point.

The statistics, as often happens in such a game, scarcely reflected the difference in the play of the two fighting teams. For instance, Iowa made 13 first downs to eight for the Illini. And Iowa wasn't far behind in yards from scrimmage—208 for the Hawkeyes to 266 for the victors. The biggest difference in the incidental statistics was in forward passing. Illinois made 113 yards on

Boston, Mass., Oct. 14.—Nine Notre Dame backs scored 10 touchdowns this afternoon in Fenway park to overwhelm Dartmouth's helpless Indians, 64 to 0, the highest Irish football score since the Haskell Indians were licked 12 years ago, 73 to 0. Forty thousand—a crowd that occupied all seats and overflowed into the corners of the field—watched Notre Dame's parade of power and passes against an opponent unable to gain on the ground and which only twice got inside of Notre Dame's 20 yard line.

Thirty-five Notre Dame players participated and the last seven points, which set this modern scoring mark, were made by the third team quarter back, Ed Clasby. Few believed Dartmouth had any chance for victory, but even the most ardent supporters of the Irish were unprepared for today's debacle. Notre Dame now has scored 23 touchdowns in this campaign—nine against Pittsburgh and four last week against Tulane in addition to 10 this afternoon, and the Irish goal remains inviolate. Notre Dame convincingly leads the nation in defense of its 1943 collegiate championship.

Fans Won't Forget This.

With Frank Dancewicz directing an attack spearheaded for most of the first half by Chicago's Bob Kelly, Notre Dame's first visit to Boston will be long remembered. It was fitting, perhaps, that Dancewicz, a Lynn [Mass.] boy, should open the scoring spree and then be followed by Kelly. Joe Gasparella, Elmer Angsman, and John Corbisiero also scored in these 30 minutes and Notre Dame led, 30 to 0, at the intermission. All attempts for the point after touchdown failed.

Actually, Dartmouth was whipped the second time the Irish got the ball, which led to a drive of 31 yards in nine plays climaxed by Dancewicz's 1 yard sneak thru center. Thereafter, the crowd's interest was focused on the extent of dam-

IOWA PRE-FLIGHT WINS, 13 TO 6, AS PURDUE'S FINAL DRIVE FAILS

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 14.—A crushing 51 yard drive in the waning minutes of one of the hardest fought football games Purdue fans have seen in a long time, fizzled out on the Iowa Seahawks' 5 yard line a half a minute before the final gun and the Pre-Flight eleven thus won a 13 to 6 victory over the Boilermakers, co-champions of the Western conference, today.

It was a game replete with brilliant play, but with the accent on a grinding clash of sturdy lines rather than on the expected open play of the two elevens, both exponents of the T formation.

The crowd in Ross-Ade stadium, estimated at 18,000, saw a parade of brilliant performers as big Frank Bauman, the Harvey, Ill., marine trainee; Ray Schultz, one time Chicago high school star at Lane Tech, and Boris Dimancheff, the Indianapolis civilian, time after time brought them to their feet with sensational action. To Bob Sullivan, the Springfield, Mass., youngster who played with Holy Cross last year, and the hard hitting Bus Mertes went back field honors for the Seahawks, but to their rugged lines went most of the honors.

Ground Gains Are Small.

The Seahawks' forward wall held the fleet Boilermaker backs to 127 yards by rushing while the Iowans picked up only 186 on ground plays.

The Boilermakers scored first in the second quarter when Dimancheff took a pass from Schultz and went 40 yards to tally. Stan Dubicki, who kicked five points after touchdowns in last Saturday's victory over Illinois, missed the try from placement. Just a few minutes later the Seahawks tied it up when Sullivan, a tricky runner, intercepted a pass and went 47 yards to score. Vic Schleich kicked the extra point.

That ended the scoring until Mertes took over at the start of the fourth preiod and personally provided the winning touchdown with two dashes, the first for 13 yards and the second for 27.

Bauman Has Punting Edge.

The scoreless first quarter was a battle between the two rugged lines with consequent exchanges of punts in which Bauman had the edge over Dell Taylor. Mertes' line plunging was the only bright spot in the Seahawk offense while Ed Cody and Chalmers Elliott did what little gaining the Boilermakers were able to accomplish.

Both teams came to life in the second period and it wasn't long until the Big Nine representatives broke thru to score, when the Seahawks started fumbling. The first two of three were recovered by their own players, but the third went to John Morton, the East St. Louis, Ill., boy on Purdue's 34. Cody lost two yards on a line buck and then Schultz passed to Dimancheff on the Seahawk 40 and he streaked over for a touchdown. Dubicki's kick was wide.

After receiving the kick-off, the Seahawks made one first down, a 10 yard slash off tackle bl Charley Woodward and then were forced to punt, the ball going out on the Purdue 36. Schultz went back to pass and shot one at Bauman but it bounced off his head into the hands of Sullivan on the Purdue 47 and the former Holy Cross V-5 trainee made a great broken field run to score. Schleich's placement was good and the Seahawks led, 7 to 6.

The Boilermakers tried the Seahawk line again as the third quarter got underway, but after making one first down were forced to punt and the Seahawks took over on their 30. Samuels interspersed passes with line plunges and moved the ball to the Seahawk 46 before punting, Dimancheff bringing the ball back to his 21. After Elliott, Dimancheff, and Cody had picked up 15 yards, Bauman punted to the Seahawks' 27. The Seahawks opened a drive then that took them to Purdue's 31, where the cadets were penalized 15 yards for holding. Elliott intercepted a pass by Taylor on the 26 as the quarter ended with Purdue in possession on their 31.

Mertes Does It.

After a statue of liberty play lost 4 yards, Bauman punted out on his 40 and the cadets took advantage of the break. Mertes picked up 13 off right tackle and on the next play went thru the same hole and picked his way 27 yards thru half a dozen Boilermakers to score. Schleich's kick was wide and the Seahawks led, 13 to 6.

After a couple of exchanges of punts had given Purdue possession of the ball on its 44, the Boilermakers staged their thrilling tho unsuccessful drive. Dimancheff and Cody made a first down on the Seahawk 42. Cody picked up 6 and then took a pass from Schultz on the 20. It took Dimancheff and Cody four plays to make first down on the 6. Elliott lost 3 and Dimancheff made 4 on a statue of liberty. Schultz, unable to penetrate the Seahawk line, tossed an incomplete pass in the flat and tried another to Bauman in the end zone with 40 seconds left, and missed. The Navy took over and Taylor ran into the line game. Statistics:

Huskers Find Hoosiers Too Hot, 54 to 0

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 14.—All of you boys who have football dates with Indiana's Hoosiers within the next six weeks would have been well warned if you had been down here this Injun' summer afternoon to see them whip Nebraska's Cornhuskers, 54 to 0.

It was the winners' third victory of the season, they having won from Fort Knox and Michigan, while losing a thriller to Illinois.

Nebraska Outclassed.

Aside from the gratification of 15,000 attendants at Indiana's 51st homecoming, today's doings were largely a perfunctory matter of setting down a score for the official records. The Huskers, composed largely of young civilians, weren't up to the playing par of proved artists such as Bob Hoernschemeyer, Jack Tavener, Rooster Coffee, Frank Ciolli, and a young man from Park Ridge, Ill., Del Russell, who scored two Hoosier touchdowns.

The outcome left Indiana with an edge in its all time series against Nebraska of four triumphs against three defeats and two ties in the nine games played between the two. It also elevated the Hoosiers' point aggregate for four games to 164.

Hoosiers Use 33 Players.

Before the day was over, Indiana had employed 33 players, with Hoernschemeyer and Tavener playing only about half the game. In spite of their absence, the Hoosiers rolled up 20 first downs to Nebraska's one, and excelled in rushing yardage, 344 to 38. Indiana completed six of 12 forward passes for a gain of 116 yards to the 37 which Nebraska eked out of three connections in 10 attempts. The Hoosiers also led in another department, being charged with 90 yards in penalties.

Hoernschemeyer ignited the proceedings early in the first quarter. After a neat exchange of fumbles John Cannady, the quarter back who played center today when Tavener wasn't around, recovered for the

MICHIGAN MATCHES FEAT OF '24; BATTERS NORTHWESTERN, 27 TO 0

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 14.—Michigan's alert, speedy, and powerful eleven today gave Northwestern the most one-sided defeat it has suffered in this series since 1924. The score, 27 to 0, duplicated the count of their meeting 20 years ago. You have to go back to the turn of the century, 1901, to find a more decisive triumph by the Wolverines over their Western conference rivals from Evanston.

A crowd of 33,000 watched Michigan score two touchdowns in the first period, one in the second, another in the fourth, and keep complete control of the competition from the opening kickoff to the final whistle.

Check Wildcats' Air Attack.

Only once did the Wildcats get inside Michigan's 30 yard zone. That was near the end of the first quarter when two forward passes moved the ball to the Wolverines' 28. A forward pass interception ended the scoring threat.

Northwestern advanced to its opponent's 44 yard line in the second period, to the 49 in the third, and to the 35 in the fourth. On every occasion Michigan's vigilant backs intercepted forward passes to break up the Wildcats' march.

Michigan's line held Northwestern's running attack in check all the way. The Wildcats made only three first downs by rushing as compared with the Wolverines' seven. Total yardage by rushing was even more impressive. Michigan rolled up 450 to Northwestern's 24.

Wolverines Smash N. U. Line.

Stopped cold on the ground, the Wildcats tried desperately to offset that disadvantage with their overhead game. They had fair success until they crossed midfield where invariably they found a Michigan back waiting to pluck the ball out of the arms of the receiver for whom the toss was intended. John Yungwirth, who threw all but one of Northwestern's forwards, clicked with seven out of 15 for 102 yards. Michigan, which hurled 10 passes, connected only twice, but its running attack was operating so effectively it didn't have to rely on aerials.

Deploying behind a line that outcharged its opponents most of the game, Michigan's back field had a very enjoyable afternoon. Northwestern had nobody fast enough to cope with the speed turned on by Joe Ponsetto, Eugene Derricotte, Bob Nussbaumer, and Bob Weise. They went 80 yards in 10 plays for the first touchdown. They raced 40 yards in five plays for the second, and 62 yards in 10 for the third. They wound up their work for the day by covering 66 yards in seven plays for the final touchdown.

Nussbaumer was the biggest ground gainer in Michigan's devastating attack with a total yardage of 147 yards in 14 trips with the ball. Wiese gained 119 in 21 attempts and Derricotte 69 in 13. Sparking the combination was Ponsetto, whose generalship both today and at Minnesota a week ago was beautiful to watch.

Conners N. U.'s Best Runner.

Dick Conners, reserve half back, was the only Wildcat who had any luck against the Michigan line. He carried the ball six times for 20 yards. Yungwirth, whose passing was the only bright spot in the Wildcats' play, wound up with a net loss of 10 yards in his five tries as a ball carrier.

Michigan's first touchdown drive started on its own 20 yard line, where the ball was put in play after Yungwirth had punted over the Ann Arbor goal. Nussbaumer was stopped without gain on the first play, but Wiese clicked for 9 and 10 yards on spinners thru center. Derricotte, faking a lateral, sped to midfield. Wiese got 2 at center and Nussbaumer whirled around his left end to Northwestern's 38. He was crowded out of bounds on the 20 on a reverse play. Wiese nibbled at left guard for 2 and Ponsetto lateraled to Derricotte for 4. Derricotte banged thru the middle of the Wildcat line for a touchdown. He literally ran over Bob Funderburg, the last Northwestern man who had a chance to stop him. Ponsetto

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 14.—Ohio State's power laden and unbeaten Buckeyes swept Wisconsin's Badgers off the grass of Camp Randall stadium today, but it was a job accomplished only after the youths wearing the flaming cardinal jersies had tossed terror into the ranks of their Big Nine title-minded opponents. The Badgers, despite a jolt at the very start, carried the battle into a fourth period 7 to 7 tie before losing, 20 to 7, before 40,000. It was Ohio State's second conference victory.

The Buckeyes revealed their intentions with a touchdown in the first few minutes of play and the game went on from there, with the Badgers invariably on the defensive, until the third quarter, when the passing, running, and kicking freshman named Earl [Jug] Girard, spark-pluggged his mates into a touchdown. This apparently aroused the Buckeyes to the idea that serious business was at hand. Anyway, they hammered persistently at the Wisconsin goal toward the finish, twice going over.

Horvath Gives One-Man Show.

The Ohioans came up with a Girard of their own, but his name was Les Horvath. With more support than the Badger flash enjoyed, Horvath was almost a one-man back field. He lugged the ball 24 times for an imposing total of 124 yards. He threw two passes for 14 yards and in the last half minute of play when the Badgers were trying to wriggle out of a jam by passing from their own end zone he captured one of the pitches, subsequently carrying it over for the last score.

The eel-like Girard, altho a marked man, managed to scamper around the premises for a net of 57 in 13 tries, one of his runs, along with two of his passes, setting up the arrangements for the Badgers' touchdown. The two passes netted 52 yards, the second putting the Ohioans back on their 1 yard line, whence Girard had the added pleasure of attending to the seven points that brought on the 7 to 7 knot.

Buckeyes Roll Quickly.

It took the Buckeyes only a bit more than six minutes to complete their first scoring expedition. The procession formed as soon as Horvath grabbed the opening kickoff and brought it back to Ohio's 25 yard line. The Buckeyes quickly made three first downs, helped by two fumbles which were recovered for fancy gains. The pounding really became serious for the Badgers when Horvath went over his left end to the 2½ yard mark. Two plays later Dick Flanagan drove over and Cline kicked the point.

The Badgers rallied quickly but also subsided quickly. Bob Hecker took Jack Dugger's kickoff and sprinted 26 yards against his former teammates, putting the base of operations on Wisconsin's 47 yard line. Hecker added 5 more and Girard was called on in the next play, but juggled the ball. However, he recovered the lost ground. Then the Badgers fumbled while Irv Pittleman was handing the ball to Girard and Russ Thomas captured the oval for Ohio. The remainder of the first period was quiet.

Two Buckeye Threats Fail.

Twice in the second quarter the Ohioans were only a few yards from the enemy goal. Ohio led off with a punt and the Badgers were forced to return it, the boot by Girard going only as far as Wisconsin's 31 yard line. Ohio couldn't make its passes connect, but Horvath ran around the Badgers' right end to the 18 yard mark. Passes continued to fail and the Badgers got the ball on downs, promptly kicking out of danger. With passes and some running the Ohioans hurried back to the Badgers' 5 yard line where they were stopped when John Davey recovered a Buckeye fumble.

Ohio was forced to punt after taking the kick-off in the third period and that's when the Badgers started age the Irish players could inflict. Until Notre Dame scored, the Irish had possession of the ball 14 times to two for Dartmouth and this pattern was continued, altho Kelly and other first team men were excused from service in the second half.

Dartmouth had a minus 16 yards by rushing as compared to 458 for Notre Dame and the Indians' six first downs, as should be expected under the circumstances, were accomplished by three passes and by three penalties on Notre Dame. Dartmouth gained 102 yards from five successful passes in 17 attempts.

Everybody Was Good.

It is impossible to single out any one of Notre Dame's players for honorable mention, so great was the team superiority, but Kelly, unquestionably the key back in Notre Dame's play, firmly established his reputation in this city when he ran 51 yards on the opening play from scrimmage, a sweeping sprint around Dartmouth's right end. It ended as he was tackled from behind on Dartmouth's 15 yard line before he slowed to outmaneuver the safety.

Notre Dame missed a first down by the width of your hand in four plays and this was the only valiant defense effort the Indians mustered all day. Indeed, Notre Dame punted only once this afternoon, a superb 57 yard drive by Kelly.

Dancewicz Gets Going.

On the second down after Dartmouth's goal line stand, Dick Bennett kicked out on his own 31 yard line. After Kelly lost 2 yards, Dancewicz went to the air and hit lanky Bill O'Connor for a gain of 11 yards. Chick Maggioli plunged for the first down and a moment later Dancewicz made a running pass to Kelly, who was dropped on Dartmouth's 8 yard line. Angsman got 7 yards in two plays and Dancewicz then stepped over the line on a sneak. Kelly's place kick for the point was wide.

The Irish scored four times in the second period. The first of these thrusts got under way on Dartmouth's 48 just before the first period ended. Kelly and Maggioli had advanced to Dartmouth's 38 when the teams changed goal.

Blast Dartmouth Line.

With a flanking left end and with Kelly also wide, Dancewicz passed to the latter for 12 yards. Angsman and Kelly ripped the white-shirted line to advance to the Indians' 14 yard line. Maggioli went thru for 2 yards on a quick opening and Kelly slashed inside Dartmouth's right tackle for 8. On the same play Kelly scored but again he missed the point.

Notre Dame's third touchdown drive covered 49 yards in five plays. George Terlep ran 19 yards on the first of these. Then, on fourth down, Joe Gasparella, needing 1 yard for a first down, raced thru center on a sneak for 21 yards and the touchdown, a maneuver which completely exposed Dartmouth's defensive weakness. Terlep failed to add the point.

Indians Take to the Air.

Dartmouth now advanced to Notre Dame's 18 on two forward passes—the Indians' record for the day. Notre Dame took over on its 32 yard line by throwing the passer for losses and counter-attacked to score in seven plays. Angsman got his touchdown, No. 4 for the Irish, on a 5 yard plunge. Kelly's place kick for the point was blocked and the ball was recovered by Skoglund in the end zone. The referee signaled the point but later reversed his decision since a kick traveling beyond the line of scrimmage is unplayable.

Notre Dame next got the ball on Dartmouth's 30 yard line and scored in six plays. The principal ingredients were Dancewicz's passes to O'Connor, Steve Nemeth, and Tom Guthrie. Corbisiero went the last 5 yards in two plunges. Terlep's failure for the point left the half time count, 30 to 0.

Second Half Is All Irish.

The second half was no contest, with Notre Dame scoring at will. Nunzio Marino ran 54 yards for touchdown No. 6, a brilliant dash behind perfect blocking down the north side line. Terlep's successful place kick, first of his three, sent Notre Dame ahead 37 to 0.

Touchdown No. 7, came on the second play of the last quarter, a 1 yard plunge by Terlep that ended an assault of 10 plays covering 54 yards. Terlep again kicked the point.

A little later Charles Holt, Dartmouth quarter back, fumbled and Pete Berezney recovered for the Irish on Dartmouth's 34. On the second play, Terlep ran 32 yards around defensive left end to reach the goal and his kick made the score Notre Dame, 51; Dartmouth, 0.

Three plays accounted for touchdown No. 9 with Nemeth running 60 yards to the goal. Notre Dame's third team finished and scored from the Indians' 20 yard line, where Joe Kelly had recovered another Dartmouth fumble. Clasby went over with 55 seconds to play and his kick made the final tabulation, Notre Dame, 64; Dartmouth, 0. Statistics:

GEORGE TERLEP GAINS 20 YARDS FOR NOTRE DAME BEHIND GOOD BLOCKING AND INTERFERENCE

Lawrence Is Routed, 45-0, at Marquette

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 14 [Special].—A variety of Marquette university backs alternated in starring roles tonight to give the Hilltoppers their first victory of the season, a 45 to 0 decision over Lawrence college.

A makeshift Marquette lineup started the game and many reserves were called in before the night was out. In all, 36 Marquette players took part. Outstanding among the hitherto unsung Hilltop backs were Paul Glasener, a regular at the University of Iowa last year; John [Rocky] Alcock, freshman from St. George High school, Evanston, and Sammy Sauceda, Elgin.

Scoring Starts Early.

Marquette's scoring parade began suddenly midway of the first quarter on a march that originated on its onw 27 yard line. A pass, Jerry Benka to Bob Quinsey, carried to the Viking 45 yard line and after Bob Teik picked up 3 yards, Paul Copoulos broke away around right end for 42 yards and a touchdown. Mel Mochalski's try for extra point failed. Later in the first quarter Copoulos again went around right end, this time for 48 yards and another score. Mochalski added the extra point.

An element of surprise contributed to the Hilltoppers' next tally, in the second quarter. On fourth down and with 15 yards to go, on the Lawrence 39, Benka passed instead of kicked and Sammy Sauceda, Mexican half back from Elgin, made a high catch and did some nifty side stepping to score. Sauceda also added the extra point, to make it 20 to 0.

Shortly before the intermission, Bob Gannon, Marquette reserve end, intercepted a Lawrence pass on the Viking 30 yard line and lateraled, on the 20, to Center Dick Pooler who went all the way. Sauceda missed the bonus point.

Lawrence Threatens.

A 75 yard march opened the third quarter for Marquette, with Russ Krueger finally scoring from the 15 on a dash thru left tackle. Marquette then stopped Lawrence's only serious threat on its own 19, and Glasener's passes and running featured an 81 yard march that was culminated by his 14 yard toss to Roy Riglerink for a touchdown early in the fourth quarter. The former Iowa star also tacked on the extra point to make it 39 to 0.

Alcock then went into the game and produced first down on the Viking 27, 15, and 4 yard lines. Full Back Bill Heinkel plunged over for the final touchdown.

Buckeyes Top Badgers in 20 to 7 Battle to touch off the explosives. Girard pitched to Ed Bahlow, but the ball was called back and Wisconsin penalized for offside to its 33. Girard broke loose inside his right end and wove his way to Ohio's 33, the Buckeyes temporarily losing the services of Bill Willis and Matt Brown on the play.

Jerry Thompson ran for 8 yards and Girard plunged for a first down on Ohio's 22. Girard shot a pass into the end zone, but Bahlow was too well covered to make the catch. Jack Mead was similarly guarded when he reached for a long pass. The drive failed and the Ohioans punted to midfield whereupon the Badgers took off again, this time with success.

The first play of the drive was a 35 yard pitch by Girard to Bahlow. Two running plays lost ground, so Girard went back to pitching, this one being grabbed by Mead on the 1 yard line after the ball had slipped thru the hands of Brown. Girard tried running and lost ground. A pass to Mead in the end zone also failed and the flashy back then drove thru Ohio's left tackle for the touchdown. Girard followed with the kick that tied the score at 7 to 7.

The Ohioans went to work on the deadlock early in the final period when they went down to the Badgers' 3 yard line where Girard intercepted a pass. The Buckeyes worked back to the 18 yard line where the Badgers drew another reprieve on a 15 yard holding penalty on Ohio. Bob Brugge offset the penalty damage by scooting up to the 7 yard line and after a 5 yard gain by Horvath, Ollie Cline dove over the goal. He tried for the extra point but missed.

Soon after the second touchdown, Brown intercepted a pass and got to the 14 yard line before being nailed. The Ohioans went to the 2 yard mark before losing the ball on downs. Girard succeeded with a couple of short pitches but when he attempted a third the luck changed. It was intercepted by Horvath, who, a few seconds later plummeted over the goal. Tom Keane kicked the point that made it 20 to 7. Statistics:

Duke Scares Navy Eleven, but Loses, 7-0

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 14 (AP).—In a bruising battle between two hard fighting lines, Navy gained a 7 to 0 victory today over Duke, but the Blue Devils of Durham scared the Middies as they dominated last half play and drove deep into scoring territory on three occasions.

Navy won, but they were unimpressive, and it required the good right arm of Hal Hamberg, now a second string back, to turn the trick midway in the second period with a 28 yard aerial scoring play to Charles Guy, substitute end.

ARMY ROUTS PITT, 69-7.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 14 (AP).—For a few minutes at Michie field today it appeared the the Army and Pittsburgh football teams had just one thing in common, a determination to hold down the score—Army's score—but after that neither team could do it, with the result the Cadets smothered the Panthers, 69 to 7.

The speedy Army team punched over just one touchdown in the first period, but after that there was a parade of touchdowns which rolled up the largest score since the Cadets defeated Knox college, 67 to 6, in 1931.

YALE WHIPS LIONS, 27-10.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 14 (AP).—A 17 year old 158 pound full back from Little Rock, Ark., was the difference today as Yale continued down football's victory trail by coming from behind to snap Columbia's winning streak, 27 to 10, in Yale bowl.

Roger Barksdale scored two touchdowns to top the point getters, and contributed several nonscoring runs which kept Columbia's back to the wall.

PENNSYLVANIA WINS, 46-0.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 14 (AP).—Pensylvania's first team had too much power and deception for an inexperienced William and Mary squad today and rolled up a 46 to 0 score. It was Penn's third and easiest victory of the season and the first defeat for William and Mary.

SOCCER TEAMS MEET TODAY IN KELLY CONTESTS

BY OFFSIDE.

Four of Chicago's leading soccer teams clash in the Mayor Kelly cup finals, sponsored by the National Soccer league, this afternoon in Winnemac park stadium. The opener at 1 p. m. sends the Necaxas against the Schwabens and the Vikings battle the Hakoah-Centers in the second half of the double header at 3 o'clock.

Necaxas, who dropped their first game of the fall campaign a week ago to the Vikings in the league's A class final, will be at full strength today. Manager Jimmy Niotis will have Francisco Torres back in the lineup after his suspension two weeks ago and Miguel Gomez will return to his post as goal keeper.

Plans Three Lineup Changes.

Keeping in mind the 2 to 1 defeat handed his club by the Mexicans in an overtime game in the cup semi-finals, Manager Herman Rapp of the Schwabens plans three changes in the starting lineup. Alfred Mueller and Fred Brinkman of the Chicago Sports club, have joined the team and Bill Hemmings, who has been on the side lines as a substitute, will go in at center half. Henry Soufal and Maxie Jordan will be at their regular positions as outside right and inside forward.

The Hakoahs will be strengthened for today's battle by the addition of Lt. Justine Rosenbusch, who is visiting here while on leave, to the squad. Lt. Rosenbusch was captain and a star defender for the New York Hakoahs and will play alongside Leo Hony at full back. Maxie Pearlman, veteran forward, is recuperating from injuries suffered a week ago and is a doubtful starter.

Vikings Eye Victory.

With Jimmy McDermott showing signs of regaining his form of last season and Sailor Jim McGuire, who is in training at Great Lakes, developing into a scoring ace, Manager Jocke Johanasen of the Vikings is looking forward to a victory. Mons Sebby also has returned to the team and Steve Wisienski has allowed only one goal in four games.

All other league games originally scheduled today have been canceled and the entire proceeds of the double header program will go into the league's treasury. Lineups:

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oct. 14 (AP).—Alabama overwhelmed Millsaps, 55 to 0, today in the Tide's final warm-up contest. The Tide first stringers, sticking to straight football, failed to score until late in the first period, when Full Back Norman Hodges plunged over to end a 66 yard drive, and for the remainder of the game Coach Frank Thomas gave his reserves an opportunity. They responded with six touchdowns in the second half.

TODAY'S GAMES.

Card-Pitt vs. Chicago Bears, in Wrigley field.
Cleveland at Detroit.
Washington at Boston.
New York at Brooklyn.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Chicago Bears, still grimly insisting that all is not lost for the 1944 campaign, will try to bring their torment to an end this afternoon in Wrigley field. It so happens that the combined Chicago Cardinals-Pittsburgh Steelers, their opponents, are getting tired of being kicked around, too. This includes the current season and past ones when the once mighty Bears found these dual opponents soft pickings.

Green Bay hadn't whipped the Bears since 1941; Cleveland had gone without a victory over the Halas entry since 1938. These two teams put a stop to the defeat string in league games this year. The Cardinals last beat the Bears in the first game of 1940 and have paid for it with seven consecutive beatings. The Steelers never have won from the Bears, having lost seven since the series started in 1934.

Protect Home Record.

That's not all the Bears will be protecting this afternoon. They haven't lost on their home sod since Nov. 2, 1941, which was the date of Green Bay's 16 to 14 triumph. Tho the Bears are at their lowest physical ebb since long before their glory years, they will be favorites this afternoon to win by 14 points. The game could just as easily go the other way because the Card-Pitts have superior physical equipment.

The Bears' season, to date, has been paradoxical. The defending champions beat the College All-Stars, the New York Giants, and the Washington Redskins in exhibitions. This represents top flight competition. They have lost three times and unfortunately two were in league starts against the Packers and Rams. The other one was inflicted by Washington in an exhibition in the east.

Battle of T Formations.

This is the first of five consecutive Sunday games in Wrigley field and its outcome is just as vital to the business office as to the coaches and players. If the Card-Pitts should win today it could be a blow to the box office in succeeding games on the north side.

It will be a battle of T formations, with 35 year old Gene Ronzani operating at quarter back for the Bears and young John Patrick McCarthy operating for the Card-Pitts. The Packers buried this team under a flock of touchdowns last Sunday while the Bears were being upset by the Rams, but Card-Pitt followers saw the promise of better days with the 152 pound McCarthy directing the team. His percentage of pass completions was low, but they say this wasn't Johnny's fault. Many of his pitches, thrown behind a protective screen of burly linemen, were incomplete thru poor fielding by his targets.

In a stormy week, Bear coaches have delivered searing orations to their players. At least two were fined for lackadaisical play against the Rams. It's doubtful if Ray McLean, the clever breakaway runner, will do much playing because of a chest injury. Doug McEnulty, with a hip bone bruise, may not even be in uniform. Bulldog Turner still is favoring an ankle injury, and Fred Mundee, the No. 2 center, has an injured hand.

Have Stronger Squad.

The Card-Pitts, man for man, have a stronger squad. Their line is superior in weight, experience and numbers to the Bears'. They have fine running backs in Johnny Butler, Bob Thurbon, and Johnny Grigas. But in execution of the T the advantage should be with the Bears.

The top game today matches the unbeaten Cleveland Rams against the Detroit Lions in Detroit. When it's over the Packers may have first place all to themselves in the Western division. If the Rams do win it will set up a natural for a week from Sunday when they meet the Packers in Green Bay. Washington should have an easy time with the Yanks in Boston. New York plays at Brooklyn in a game which could go either way.

LATIN, HARVARD, AND TODD WIN IN PRIVATE LEAGUE

Pacific Loses 14 to 0 Battle to California

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP).—The University of California's Bears, putting together two swift thrusts, maintained their unbeaten pace today when they took the measure of a fighting College of the Pacific eleven, 14 to 0.

The Bears shoved over a touchdown in the opening quarter when Left Half Joe Stuart raced 40 yards, behind a couple of well executed blocks. From then until the game had only 12 seconds to go Coach A. A. Stagg's Pacific Tigers made a real battle of it.

With the contest nearing its close, California coupled a 57 yard advance in three plays to chalk up another touchdown on a lateral, Stuart to Dave Hirschler.

Bob Muenter, College of Pacific full back, suffered a broken leg when he collided with Roger Harding, California center, in the third period.

Phillips Defeats Lindblom, 6-0, for 5th Victory in Row

Fleet Horace Chandler, high scoring left half back for Wendell Phillips in the City High School Football league, went over in the final quarter of play yesterday to give Phillips a 6 to 0 victory over Lindblom in a Central section game in Yates avenue stadium. The triumph was the fifth consecutive victory for Phillips, which paces the section.

Phillips, which had averaged 30 points per game in four previous contests, found it difficult going against Lindblom and the game was a scoreless tie until midway in the fourth period when Chandler went over from the 3 yard line.

Tilden moved into second place in the Central section with a 27 to 0 victory over Kelly in Shewbridge field. Tilden started the scoring in the second quarter when Bill Gay went around end for 55 yards. Joe Dunlap crossed from the 5 yard line for another touchdown and Tilden led, 14 to 0, at the half. Tilden added another touchdown in the third quarter and the final score came when George Ribikawskis went thru tackle from the 8 yard line.

In another Central section game, also in Shewbridge field, Farragut defeated Englewood, 19 to 7.

Fenger Undefeated.

Fenger continued undefeated and routed Hyde Park, 27 to 0, on Pullman Tech field, to remain in a triple tie with Parker and Bowen for the South section lead. Calumet defeated Hirsch, 13 to 6, in a South section night game.

In the North section, Lane Tech called on Alex Gichanski and Aldo Bizzotto to score two touchdowns each in routing Lake View, 58 to 0, in Lane Tech stadium. It was the third straight victory for Lane, which appears to have a clear path to the North section title.

Schurz scored in every period, leading, 26 to 0 at the half, to wallop Roosevelt, 52 to 6, in the other North section contest. Roosevelt's score came in the final period.

Two Scoreless Ties.

Two scoreless ties occurred in West section play, as Kelvyn Park and Tuley went four quarters to 0 to 0 in Hanson park, while Crane and Foreman were getting no place in Key Branch stadium. Tuley threatened against Kelvyn in the second quarter, but the half halted the Tuley drive on the 7 yard line. In the final period Crane twice drove to the Foreman 10 yard line, but was stopped.

Marshall and Steinmetz rounded out the West section schedule, in Hanson park, with Marshall winning, 19 to 0. Joe Miksan contributed two Marshall touchdowns and Lourie Zimmerman came up with a third.

OAK PARK WINS, 13-12

Oak Park opened its defense of the Suburban league championship by beating Evanston, 13 to 12, in Evanston yesterday, with all the touchdown scoring done by Evanston's Buck Chaney and Don Souchek of Oak Park, altho Fred Schneider was the one who unevened everything when he kicked the point after touchdown in the third period and gave Oak Park its winning margin.

Waukegan defeated Proviso, 14 to 6, in Maywood, and New Trier routed Morton, 34 to 12, in the other of the Suburban league games.

In the South Suburban league, Howie Wilson scored two touchdowns to give Blue Island a 12 to 6 victory over Argo. The game was in Blue Island and Bud Karren scored for Blue Island.

La Grange continued undefeated in the West Suburban league by defeating Maine, 25 to 6, in Maine, while Downers Grove was beating York, 19 to 6, in Downers Grove. In the third West Suburban game, Riverside routed Hinsdale, 32 to 0, in Des Plaines as Don Slocum and Dean Froelich each scored two touchdowns. Froelich also made two conversions.

Lake Forest academy and Elgin academy, of the Midwest Prep conference, played in Lake Forest, with Lake Forest winning, 20 to 6, as Jako Thellman scored two touchdowns.

WEBER EYES 5TH STRAIGHT IN LEO CONTEST TODAY

Undefeated Weber, giant killer of the Catholic High School league, and Leo's Lions, meet today in Shewbridge field in a game that will probably determine just who has the power in the south section. It is possible that after today's game, fans will have an idea of who is going to represent the Catholic circuit in the Kelly bowl contest on Dec. 2.

Both Weber and Leo go into the game with victories over Mount Carmel's Caravan, which prior to opening of the league season, was rated the team to beat. It turned out that way, Weber beating Mount Carmel, 6 to 0, and Leo handing the Caravan a 12 to 7 defeat. Weber and Leo also took turns defeating Loyola. Weber by a 6 to 0 score, after Loyola had been routed by Leo, 34 to 6.

League's Surprise Team.

Weber, surprise team of the Catholic circuit, had league officials so concerned at the start of the season that they voted permission for the school to use freshmen. Weber has won four straight, scoring on Mount Carmel when Milt Mayer intercepted Bobby Carroll's pass late in the fourth quarter and ran 55 yards for a touchdown. Leo, after starting slowly and losing to Tilden, 25 to 6, in a practice game, has mustered additional strength and has improved as the season progressed.

Weber succeeded in shackling Mount Carmel's backs and faces somewhat the same problem today in attempting to stop Don McAuliffe, Leo left half, one of the best backs in the city. McAuliffe last week scored twice in the first quarter against Mount Carmel on runs of 45 and 20 yards.

St. Rita Faces Joliet.

Elsewhere in the south section, St. Rita, which defeated De La Salle, 6 to 0, in its lone league contest, meets Joliet Catholic, which has yet to win a game from a Catholic league opponent. The game will be played on St. Rita field and will serve as a preview of St. Rita power for next week's Sisters of Mercy benefit game in Comiskey park against Leo.

The third south section game pits Mount Carmel against Loyola at Yates av. stadium.

Up north, the Fenwick Friars, who last week routed Joliet Catholic in a practice game, 41 to 6, return to league competition against St. Mel in Hanson park. St. Mel defeated St. George, defending north section champions, 18 to 14, last week, after the Dragons had been beaten by Fenwick, 26 to 12, the week previous. St. Mel will use its heavy line, which averages 185 pounds, to stop the strong Fenwick scoring combination of Roger [Moose] Brown, Dick Martin, and Coleman Caron.

St. Ignatius Battles De Paul.

St. Ignatius, which is undefeated in league play, meets De Paul in Key Branch stadium. In league contests, St. Ignatius has defeated St. Philip, 14 to 13, and St. Patrick, 38 to 0. De Paul after beating St. Patrick, 13 to 6, lost to St. Philip, 32 to 0. St. Philip and St. Patrick round out the north section title in Lane Tech stadium.

St. George and De La Salle meet in a practice game at St. George.

Eagles Rout Packers, 38-14, in Exhibition

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 14 [Special].—The Philadelphia Eagles threw the finest running attack in football into high gear in the Vanderbilt University stadium today to humble a crippled and disspirited Green Bay eleven, 38 to 14, in a National Football league exhibition.

Playing without Don Hutson, Irv Comp and Ted Fritsch, its three outstanding offensive threats, Green Bay, unbeaten leader of the western division in the national league, was no match for an Eagle team that sprinted into a 14 point lead in the first six minutes, added a 19 yard field goal and another touchdown in the second period and wound up with a touchdown in each of the remaining quarters.

A near capacity crowd of 20,614, including Maj. Gen. Harold George, commanding officer of the army transport command, and his staff from Washington, watched the Quaker City quintuplets of Jack Hinkle, Jack Banta, Steve Van Buren, Ernie Steele, and Mel Bleeker scamper to a total of 312 yards and 17 first downs by rushing.

Eagles Start Parade.

Philadelphia received the opening kick-off and marched 57 yards in nine plays to its first touchdown. Hinkle capped the drive with a sweep around the Packers' right end for 1 yard and the score. Quarter Back Larry Zimmerman added the first of his five successful extra points. Five plays later Tom Miller intercepted Lou Brock's pass and returned 5 yards to the 11 yard line. Hinkle went 11 yards around the Packers' left end on the first play for his second touchdown.

End Charlie Gauer scored the Eagles' second period touchdown on a 12 yard pass from Quarter Back Al Sherman after Van Buren had intercepted Rookie Paul Duhart's pass on the 28. Another interception of a Duhart pass, this one by Steele, who returned 19 yards to the Packers' 18 yard line, set up the third period touchdown. Bleeker scored it on the first play, bolting thru the Packer line to the goal.

Don Hutson Kicks One.

Rookie Full Back Arthur Macioszczyk contributed the last Eagle score, climaxing a 63 yard march at the outset of fourth period with a 2 yard plunge inside the Packers' left tackle. Green Bay managed to draw up within seven points of the Eagles' in the second period when Dan Perkins ended an 80 yard march with a 1 yard buck. Hutson, who was kept out of the game when his battery mate, Passer Comp, was stricken with an attack of appendicitis, came in long enough to kick the extra point.

The other Green Bay touchdown came in the third period when Duhart passed 37 yards to L. Brock, who continued 30 yards to the goal. Lineup:

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14 [Special].—Minnesota's Big Nine Gophers defeated Missouri's hard fighting Big Six eleven this afternoon, 39 to 27, after rolling up 27 points in the first half.

A crowd of 24,207 was provided one of the wildest offensive shows in years in Memorial stadium, and saw the Gophers fighting madly in the second half to stave off a Tiger rally that threatened to erase Minnesota's huge first half margin.

Minnesota won the struggle, but it remained for Bill Dellastatious, Missouri's 165 pound star, to provide the greatest individual show of the afternoon.

Figures in Four Scores.

Held in leash most of the first half, the hard running Tiger triple-threat half back raised havoc with the Gopher defense, ripping thru on cutbacks and short reserves for 19, 31 and 31 yards respectively for touchdowns.

Dellastatious figured in all four of Missouri's touchdowns, his pass to End Bob Eigelberger accounting for the first one. The Tiger back was almost unstoppable and except for the weaknesses of his team's own defense against the sweeps on laterals that carried the Gophers to long gains, might have led his teammates to a triumph.

But Minnesota's opening offensive was too much. Led by Wayne Williams, stellar triple threat, the Gophers passed and ran their way to four touchdowns in the first 30 minutes of the battle.

Gophers Gain Big Lead.

The first half was virtually all Gophers and it appeared that the game would be a rout, particularly with Missouri's defense vulnerable to forward passes. But the tables were turned in the final two periods when the Missourians actually outscored the Maroon and Gold and made touchdowns with ridiculous ease. Statistics:

BY HARRY WARREN.

Great Lakes' Bluejackets continued to sail unbeaten thru middle western gridiron waters yesterday, routing Western Michigan's Broncos, 38 to 0, in Ross field at the Naval center. Great Lakes now boasts victories over Fort Sheridan, Purdue, Northwestern, and Western Michigan. It settled for a tie with Illinois.

Altho Great Lakes used 39 men, almost its entire squad, it would have been hard to convince the Western Michigan athletes that a great majority of the 25,000 Bluejackets on the side lines were not in the Great Lakes lineup at some time during the afternoon, the Sailors' offensive drive being that great.

A freshman back field started for Great Lakes, but there was nothing wrong with it. It was made up of George Spencer, Bexly High school, Columbus, O., at quarter back; Gene Delaney, Mount Carmel High school, Chicago, and Don Mangold, who played as a freshman at Indiana university last season at half back, and Don Lesher of Lakeview High school, Chicago, at full back.

Sailors Score Quickly.

This combination took the kick-off on the 8 yard line, Mangold carrying it to the 44. Then without much interruption it marched down the field to score in 14 plays, Spencer lateraling to Delaney for the touchdown. Big Jim Mello, first string full back, came in to try for the extra point, but missed. Mello kicked only two out of the six attempts for the extra point during the afternoon.

The Sailors had to be content with a single touchdown in each of the first two quarters, tho they wasted little time in making the score 12 to 0 as the second period opened. Spencer pitched a 31 yard pass to Ernest Plank, formerly of Ohio State to set up the score, then Mangold took a lateral from Spencer and ran around his left end practically unmolested for the touchdown. The play gained 17 yards.

The Bluejackets really turned on the power in the third quarter, piling across the Western Michigan goal line three times. Spencer returned Ray Louthen's kick-off from his own 17 to the 34, and Edward Saenz, formerly of Southern California, made first down on the 49 in two cracks at the line. After Great Lakes was set back to its 35 yard mark for holding, Lesher raced around his left end and went 65 yards for a touchdown. A few minutes later Saenz intercepted a Western Michigan pass on the Broncos' 41 yard line, returned to the 4, then scored on the next play.

Interceptions Set Up Score.

Two pass interceptions figured on the next touchdown, one by each team. Louthen intercepted a pass from Jim Youel, formerly of Iowa, on Western Michigan's 45 and Youel in turn intercepted Louthen's pass and returned the ball from his own 37 to the Broncos' 42. After Bob Hanlon, formerly of Notre Dame, advanced to the 2 yard line, the Bluejackets were penalized 5 yards for offside but Mangold went on over from the 7.

Great Lakes took to the air for for its final touchdown. Arthur Teixeira, formerly of Texas Christian, passed to Ivan Woodward, ex-Louisiana State Normal, for 27 yards, advancing the ball to Western Michigan's 23. Ollie Vogt, a product of Marquette made 2 yards and lateraled to Claude Harrison, a Georgia Tech alumnus, who walked over the goal line.

Chicago Linemen Star.

Altho Western Michigan was completely outmanned and outplayed all afternoon, Great Lakes paid tribute to the defensive work of the Bronco line, particularly to Richard Leahy, former Fenwick of Chicago star, and Joseph Wagner, a graduate of Lane Tech, by using line play sparingly. The Bronco line afforded little protection to its backs, however, permitting the Bluejacket forwards to filter thru and nail Western Michigan ball carriers for repeated losses.

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

CHICAGOLAND industrial recreation leaders will have two opportunities next month to pick up some new ideas for use in their particular field and to pass on any of their own which may have proven successful. The occasions are the Purdue university industrial recreation clinic in Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 8 to 10, and the 10th Chicago recreation conference in the Sherman hotel, Nov. 22.

The Purdue clinic will be conducted on the same principles as the successful pioneer effort made last year. It will be sponsored by the university, the Lafayette Chamber of Commerce, and the Indiana Manufacturers association. Coöperating will be the Industrial Recreation association and the Eastern Indiana Recreation association. The guiding spirit again will be Dr. Floyd Eastwood, professor of industrial recreation at Purdue.

Registrations Limited to the Representatives of 50 Plants.

Registrations will be limited to representatives of 50 companies. This limit has been set in order to insure adequate discussion and increase the opportunity for personal contact. Dr. Eastwood reports that early registrations indicate the limit will be reached before the day of the conference.

The Chicago Recreation conference to be held Nov. 22 is more general in nature than the Purdue gathering, tho the industrial sports angle will receive considerable emphasis. There will be morning, afternoon, and evening sessions, plus a luncheon meeting at which Harry Allen Overstreet will speak on "Recreation—New Obligations and New Approaches." Howard Y. McClusky, assistant to the vice president of the University of Michigan and a former member of the American Youth commission, will speak at the night session. Additional information on the program may be secured from the headquarters of the Chicago Recreation commission, 160 N. La Salle st.

Illinois Tool Works Wins Four Softball Titles in Four Years.

Four straight championships in the same number of years, gained in three different industrial softball leagues is the record of which Manager Ray Summers and the Illinois Tool Works well may be proud. It is not the result of standing pat on high class material, for Ray has been forced to make a number of shifts in the lineup each season. This year the I. T. W. team played in the Riis park league and, as has been mentioned, won the title. Last year Ray's boys topped the North Av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. Industrial league after ruling the roost in the Irving Park Y league in 1941 and 1942.

Illinois Bell Telephone and Hohman & Hill got the jump on their rivals in the 20 team Chicago Association of Commerce Industrial Bowling league this winter, tho the race has all indications of being a tight one. League officials are Phil Stockhausen, chairman; A. F. Hooper, vice chairman; E. A. Westling, treasurer, and Clarence Hintze, secretary. Industries and organizations represented in the league are:

Illinois Bell, Hohman & Hill, Fellowship Forum, La Salle hotel, Junior Association of Commerce, Bearse Manufacturing Co., Railway Express, Hertz Truck Lease, Pyott Foundry, Thompson Elevator & Electric, Verson Allsteel Press, St. Clair hotel, Savoy Drug & Chemical, Crerar Clinch Coal, La Salle National bank, Globe Furniture & Stationery, Workman Calculators, Otis & Lee, Inc., Kemper Insurance, and Cardox Corp.

PULLING HIS SHARE.

IT'S 40 years since William X. Meyer became football coach at Crane Tech, a job which he held until 1919, but he's one of the thousands of oldtimers who are passing up well earned lives of ease to help the war program. Meyer refers to such well known veteran athletic figures as George and Walter Halas, Avery Brundage, and Joe Lipp as his "boys"—and that's just what they were at Crane. Now he is employment manager for the Hallicrafters company, producers of short wave radio war equipment.

Fur will fly [figuratively] and the pins will crash [literally] tomorrow night, when the first place Revere Copper & Brass and runner-up Motorola Radio teams of the Industrial Traveling Bowling league, meet for the first time this season. Last week Revere lost its first game of the season to Buick Aviation, which rolled 1,043. In the Women's Radio Industries league the Motorola girls went into the lead last week and are expecting some real competition from Admiral Radio in Tuesday's matches.

Thordarson Flashtrons Retain Lead in Division St. League.

The Thordarson Flashtrons, defending champions in the Division St. Industrial Bowling league have no intention of resting on their record. Last week they increased their margin in the present race to three games by taking three straight from Eicor, Inc., a first division rival. John Schmidt rolled high series of the season, a 617, and to show how close the competition is in the league, one game was decided by one pin, three by two pins, and another by four in the closest night of play of the season.

The Zippers continue to zip along in first place in the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad Bowling league, with a record of seven won and two lost. The rest of the teams, in order, are Dixie Flaglers, Dixie Flyers, Dixie Specials, Silent Knights, Dixielands, and Dixie Mails.

Members of men's and girls' softball teams from the four Chicago plants of the J. P. Seeburg Co. were guests of the company athletic association at a party Friday night in the Belmont hotel. Ralph Isacksen, personnel director, worked with the association in planning the affair and the influence of Jim Barron, vice president of Seeburgs, was seen in the fact that there were no speeches, that being his chief rule for the success of an undertaking of this kind. Instead, there were three professional entertainers, Joe Wallace, master of ceremonies, just back from an 11 month U. S. O. tour overseas; Ralph Foote, pianist, and Lois Pertell, accordionist.

Any industrial plants who have potential chess champions on their rolls are invited to send representatives to an organization meeting of the City Chess league at 8 p. m. Friday in the Chicago Chess and Checker club rooms, 155 N. Clark st. Sam B. McHenry, 1034 N. Lockwood av., secretary of the Illinois State Chess association, would like to hear from clubs interested in joining the City league.

U. OF CHICAGO'S HARRIERS LOSE TO MILWAUKEE

The University of Chicago cross-country squad met defeat at the hands of Milwaukee State Teachers college yesterday on a two mile course in Washington park, 21 to 34. John Adams of Chicago had the best time, 10:40. Adams, the most promising member of the Maroon thinclads, is from Francis Parker High school, and won the mile event in the private schools' league last year.

Milwaukee's points were earned by second, third, fourth, fifth, and seventh place finishes by Ralph Hobena, Don Kugler, Ken Lemmer, Duane Morris, and Al Laresser, respectively, while John Adams, Albert Friedlander, James Mulcahy, John Bokman, and Frank Higgins took first, sixth, eighth, ninth, and tenth places for Chicago.

The Maroons' next meet is with Wheaton college at Wheaton next Saturday.

CAMPAGNA JOINS C. Y. O. STAFF AS BOXING COACH

Tom Campagna, former boxing coach at the University of Maryland, has been added to the C. Y. O. boxing department staff, Lou Radzienda, C. Y. O. boxing director, announced yesterday. Campagna will conduct classes at 1 p. m. daily, Monday thru Friday, preparatory to the 14th Annual Catholic Youth Organization Boxing tournament Nov. 20. Classes also are conducted each afternoon at 5 p. m. by Dick Fitzpatrick, veteran C. Y. O. coach.

Radzienda announced that 53 entries for the tournament were received in the first week. Competition will be in two divisions, novice for boys with little or no boxing experience, and open, for experienced boxers. Entry blanks and further information may be obtained at the C. Y. O. center, 31 E. Congress st., or by calling Wabash 2114.

Northwestern was in trouble again when Frank Clawson fumbled the kick-off, Milan Lazetich recovering for Michigan on the Wildcats' 40. Wiese and Derricotte collaborated for a first down on the 28. After Wiese picked up 2, Nussbaumer caught a lateral from Derricottee and went 26 yards around his left end to the goal line. Ponsetta missed the try for point and the score was Michigan, 13; Northwestern, 0.

Interception Costs N. U.

Michigan's third touchdown was set up when George Burg intercepted Yungwirth's pass on the Wolverines' 20 and ran back to his 38. Again Michigan put on a demonstration of running power that didn't let up until Nussbaumer dashed around Northwestern's right end for a touchdown. There was only one forward pass to interrupt the continuity of the Ann Arbor ground plays. Ponsetto kicked goal to increase the score to 20 to 0.

Wiese scored the final touchdown after a 66 yard march that left the Northwestern line exhausted. Wiese went over his left tackle for 6 yards on the scoring play without being touched by an opposing athlete. Ponsetto kicked the point. Statistics:

Kansas State Trounced by Spartans, 45-6

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 14 [Special].—Michigan State combined a powerful ground attack with an aerial barrage to trounce Kansas State, 45 to 6, this afternoon, for the Spartans' third straight victory.

Led by Jack Breslin, Bob Breugger and Frank Brogger, the victors capitalized on Kansas State fumbles to score three of the seven touchdowns. Brogger recovered a Wildcat fumble in the opening minutes on the Kansas State 18 yard line. Breslin picked up three yards and Breugger went over for the first score.

Kansas State scored its lone touchdown in the final quarter against the Spartan third string combination. Jay Payton tallied the marker from the 1 yard line.

Spotting the Pins

BY ROBERT BEACH.

RALPH OLSEN, who, with Jack Samuelson, operates Bowling Lanes, 5221 Broadway, believes that the Bowling Lanes Ladies' Major is just about the fastest women's circuit in the country. "If you don't think so, investigate," said he. Investigation proves that:

The league began in 1941 as an eight team wheel and had one standout performer, Laura Stellmacher. The following season it increased to 16 teams, its present status. But while the number of teams has remained constant, the performance quality has gone up and up. The teams' rosters include the names of city, state, and western champions as well as the winner of Detroit's individual tourney.

Nina Van Camp's 205 average is tops. Carolyn Lueder's 187 is second, 18 pins behind. Then follow Eleanor Yaccino with 185, Betty McCarthy with 181, and Dorothy Miller with 180. After them are Marge Immel, 177; Betty Tamuel, 174; Ruth Bayna, 174; Irene Hillman, 174; Lee Liepe, 174; Evelyn Hoelzer, 172; Kay Freitag, 172; Cecilia Winandy, 172; Rickey Kaad, 171; Lauretta Harder, 171; Lillian Koehler, 170; Elsie Wencel, 170; Leslie Miller, 170, and Sally Ostrowski, 170. All told, 19 girls with an average of 170 or better.

Team performances of this season are headed by Lustre Cremes' 2,785 and Mario Restaurants' 2,776. Marios also have high single game, 1,026. Nina Van Camp's 712 is high series and her 257 is high individual, followed by Irene Engel's 250 and Mrs. Winandy's 247.

Tomorrow's Final Day to Enter Bomar's Diamond Belt Tourney.

CHATTER—Tomorrow midnight is the last call for entries to Buddy Bomar's Diamond Medal tourney, an individual event with a $2,000 top. A new entry record is certain to be established and the heat of competition promises to be terrific. . . . The Chicago team sweeper, to be held at Pla-Mor Nov. 4 and 5, will be a convenience for those out of town pinmen assembled in Chicago for Bomar's event at Marigold. Manager Clarence Jackson says it likely will be necessary to add another shift, bringing the total to 90 teams. There are still a few spots left on this last squad in an event which carries a $1,000 best award. . . . Hank Wilman's Mario Restaurant girls have shot two series over the 2,700 mark within a week. They got 2,764 in the Congress Classic and 2,776 in the Bowling Lanes Major. . . . Those O'Keefe Coals are just keeping their heads above water in the Windy City Major. Their 10-2 mark is only a game better than the 9-3 of the second place Corey Steels. Johnny Small tops the averages with 206, with Paul Krumske's 205 second. . . . Deadline for entries to the city tournament is midnight of Nov. 10. . . . The quota of the Lawrence Bowl's Croname Ladies' league toward the C. M. B. A.'s "Miss Chicago Bowler" ambulance plane fund was $180. The girls held a dance and raised $950!

W. W. G. A. to Name Officers Tomorrow

The Women's Western Golf association, one of the few organizations in the game to carry on during the war years, will hold its annual meeting and election in the Racquet club, 1316 N. Dearborn st., at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The W. W. G. A., thru the last three years, conducted its open and amateur tournaments so successfully that they were comparable in calibre to most prewar events.

To carry out the war time motif during the 1944 season, proceeds of the open, won by Mrs. Mildred Didrickson Zaharias at Park Ridge, and the amateur, won for the second straight year by Dorothy Germain at Onwentsia, were directed to the installation of putting greens for World War II veterans at the new Vaughan General hospital. These were made possible not only thru gate admissions to the two tourneys, but also thru the work of the Midwest Greenskeepers' association.

The ticket which will be presented by the nominating committee tomorrow, and which is tantamount to election follows:

President, Mrs. Charles Dennehy, Onwentsia; first vice president, Mrs. Wrisley B. Oleson, Glen Oak; second vice president, Mrs. Barrett Schudder, Onwentsia; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harold M. Dudley, Ridge; treasurer, Mrs. Harry A. Newby, Exmoor; handicap chairman, Mrs. Philip G. Lenz, Beverly, and rules chairman, Mrs. George Weinhagan Jr., Milwaukee.

Herron, Oregon; Mrs. C. A. Jaqua, Indiana; Mrs. Paul J. Kalman, Minnesota; Mrs. S. B. Kent, Ohio; Mrs. M. B. Killian, Texas; Dorothy Kirby, Georgia; Mrs. William L. Cloudbusters and Virginia Tie, 13 to 13

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 14 (AP).—Virginia's Cavaliers held the North Carolina Pre-Flight eleven, rated second in the nation, to a 13 to 13 tie here today, and missed scoring the winning touchdown by only six yards.

The Cavaliers spotted the Cloudbusters a touchdown in the first half, then counted twice the second half. A blocked punt recovered in the end zone led to one tally on the Chapel Hill navy team.

TULANE, 21; RICE, 0.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 14 (AP).—Tulane's green wave overcame the handicap of fumbles in the second and third quarters today to score a 21 to 0 victory over Rice institute. After two 15 yard penalties and fumbles had stalled Tulane's first quarter drives, the Greenies' second team executed a 65 yard scoring drive that paid off in the last minute of the first half. Freshman Full Back Marvin McCain crashed over from the 1½ yard mark after Ben Ellender had completed passes to End Ray Olsen and Quarter Back Leonard Finley to set up the scoring play.

PROF. NED DAY TO SHIFT CLASSES TO BENSINGER'S

Ned Day today moves to Bensinger's Recreation, 29 W. Randolph st., to resume his task of conducting THE TRIBUNE's free bowling school. The national individual match game champion completed a three day run at Bryn Mawr Recreation last night, holding forth before the largest crowd yet to attend any of his classes.

His schedule today calls for a three hour session of instruction, starting at 2 p. m., at which he will advise, recommend, suggest and demonstrate the methods by which average bowlers may improve their games.

Meets Billy Rusch.

He will top off his one day stand at Bensinger's by meeting Billy Rusch, whose consistent bowling was one of the high spots of the 1943 All-Star tournament, in a five game match.

Tomorrow Ned will appear at Goldammer's Twentieth Century Recreation, 3253 N. Cicero av., managed by John Kelly. He will follow the same procedure of the three hour instructive work in the afternoon and in the evening will engage in a series of matches against Catherine Fellmeth, Herb Freitag, and Jake Lenzen.

Tuesday will find the young professor at the Bowlium, Sheridan rd. and Montrose av., managed by Harold Weber. After the usual clinic in the afternoon, Day will face Oscar Petersen, runner-up in Barney Hochstadter's Diamond Medal tournament last spring, in one three game match, and Dan Gullickson, one of the qualifiers for last year's All-Star tournament, in another.

Nina Has 205 Average.

On Wednesday Day will move to Bowling Lanes, 5221 Broadway, operated by Ralph Olsen and Jack Samuelson, where, after his afternoon discourses and explanations, he will meet Nina Van Camp, who leads the Bowling Lanes Ladies' Major league averages with a 205 mark in a five game match. This will be the first of Day's two appearances at Bowling Lanes, he being scheduled to appear there again Wednesday, Oct. 25, meeting Wally Freitag or Bill Hargadon in exhibitions.

Thursday, Friday and Sunday Day will appear at Stevenson's Recreation, 757 E. 79th st. On Saturday he will conduct a class at Hyde Park Recreation, 5122 S. Lake Park av., Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday of next week Day will devote to patrons of Park Manor Bowling Center, 100 E. 75th st., and on the following Wednesday, Nov. 1, is scheduled to wind up the Tribune school at Milo Wiesner's Recreation, 823 W. 35th st.

DUCK SHOOTING UNDER STATE'S CONTROL LAUDED

Opening Day Hunters Say Experiment Success.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Banner, Ill., Oct. 14.—Illinois' first experiment with supervised public shooting grounds was a success, according to the 39 hunters who brought in widgeon, teal, shoveller ducks and mudhens from the Rice Lake area near here today, opening day of the 1944 waterfowl season.

Most of the hunters who occupied state owned blinds brought in from three to seven ducks and as many mudhens as they cared to shoot in view of the ammunition shortage, but even those who had little success were enthusiastic about the future prospects for public shooting. The average sportsman, the man who can't afford to belong to a private duck club or pay $7 to $15 daily shooting fee, now has a fair chance of pursuing his sport without worrying about future bankruptcy.

Coal Miners Give Views.

Lee Tosi, Pekin, and Walter Smith, Canton, both coal miners, occupied one of the 17 blinds. They came in at noon with two widgeon, a wood duck, a ringneck duck, and 22 mudhens. Both said that the method of drawing for blinds and other supervisory tactics were fair, but they complained about the opening day rule that shooting could not start on the public property until 8 a. m. During the one hour rowboat trip to their blind they saw hundreds of ducks, and believe they could have made limit kills if they had been permitted an earlier start.

Francis X. Lueth and Harold Gray, game biologists in charge of the Rice Lake wildlife' area, said that the complaint about the starting hour was general among all the hunters, and that efforts would be made to have the drawing for blinds earlier in the morning, with shooting to start no later than 7:30.

Hunting Best in Early Hours.

At nearby private clubs most of the ducks were killed between 6:39 a. m., the official opening time, and 8 o'clock. Club shooters with property on Clear lake found more than 70,000 ducks on that backwater, and when they started shooting the birds fanned out to Rice lake public grounds and other nearby sloughs. By 8 o'clock, however, the harassed birds took refuge in quiet grounds away from the main concentrations of hunters. By 3 p. m. the temperature was 70 degrees and the ducks were enjoying a siesta.

Clyde Eaton, Havana, another of the opening day shooters on Rice lake, also approved the management policies and commended the hunters on their shooting etiquette. "I had always heard," Eaton said, "that public shooters were wild and tried to hog all the birds, but I saw no such performances here today. Hunters were taking their own birds and letting the high fliers continue on toward other blinds."

4,000 AT GRASS LAKE.

If nimrods who yesterday ushered in the Illinois duck hunting season were as active in other parts of the state as they were at Grass lake, near Antioch, the inaugural day was one of the best in many years; department of conservation officials reported last night.

Between 3,500 and 4,000 hunters participated in the shooting at Grass lake, and the kill of mudhens was estimated at between 15,000 and 20,000. The toll of ducks was light —only about 150.

The department estimates that 80,000 coot still are available to hunters in the Grass lake district.

HINKEL TO LEAVE GREAT LAKES FOR POST IN PACIFIC

Lt. Comdr. Paul D. [Tony] Hinkle, athletic officer at the Great Lakes Naval Training center, has received orders to report for duty in the South Pacific, it was learned last night.

Lt. Comdr. Hinkle, sports director and football coach at Butler university before entering the navy as a full lieutenant in March, 1942, is expected to leave for his new post tomorrow. His successor at Great Lakes likely will be Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown, football coach on leave from Ohio State, who now is serving in that capacity at the center.

In his first year as football coach at Great Lakes in the 1942-'43 campaign Lt. Comdr. Hinkle developed one of the strongest service elevens in the nation. The Bluejackets, led by Minnesota's Bruce Smith, won eight games, lost three, and were held to a 13 to 13 tie by Notre Dame. In addition to leading the Sailors to the national service gridiron championship, Lt. Comdr. Hinkle coached the basketball squad, which won 34 out of 37 contests during the 1942-'43 season. The Great Lakes football and basketball teams also were winners last season.

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Pvt. Lloyd E. Mangrum, American professional golfer, is recovering in a United States general hospital in England from injuries sustained when his jeep overturned during a blackout in France.

Mangrum, member of a mechanized reconnaissance unit, was injured near Alencon when his driver swerved to avoid a truck. The golfer's left arm was broken, and his left shoulder bone was chipped.

Hoosiers on the Husker 28 yard line. On the first play, Hunchy swept around his right end with one of those get-out-of-my-way maneuvers. Tavener then stopped by to kick the first of his six extra points, giving him a season total of 12 to date.

Bob Miller Scores.

Before the first period was over, the Hoosiers romped 73 yards in a march climaxed by a four yard touchdown jaunt in which Ciolli gave yeoman blocking service for Half Back Bob Miller, late of Chicago's Taft High. Biggest factor in this progress was a pass from Hoernschemeyer to Abe Addams, filling in at quarter for Cannady. This pitch brought the ball from the Hoosiers' 47 yard mark to the Nebraska 31. Mike Modak and George Sundheim pursued this advantage with several telling smashes at the Husker line.

A touchdown run by Ed McLean was nullified by a clipping assessment, but Sundheim, a La Grange, Ill., product, finished the job off with a 3 yard punch at center, after Hoernschemeyer had connected on a pass to Ted Kluszewski on the Nebraska 3 yard line.

Nebraska made its boldest move in the third quarter, after Russell had hurled a scoring toss to Kluszewski. The Hoosiers kicked off, and Doug Nelson, Husker sophomore back who is rated a fine basketball player, went 55 yards to the Indiana 25 yard stripe. This impetuous move was canceled when the Hoosiers took possession on downs.

Nester Blocks Punt.

Before the third quarter ended, Indiana had traveled 57 yards to another score, with Russell punctuating drives by Sundheim and Dick Deranek with an eight yard scoring sweep at right end.

Carl Nester of East Chicago's Roosevelt high blocked a Nebraska punt, which was recovered by Ciolli on the Husker 18 yard line. On first down, Half Back Ralph Thompson sailed around the defensive right end for a touchdown.

Late in the game, Russell counted his second touchdown on a 28 yard end sweep, and in the late seconds, Bill Armstrong got into the scoring summary by accepting the third consecutive successful Indiana pass of the series. Tavener missed the try for his seventh point just as the game ended.

OPEN FALL MEET ON WEDNESDAY AT SPORTSMAN'S

Chicago's most successful racing season, from both an artistic and financial standpoint, will enter its final stage Wednesday when Sportsman's Park, the sporty half mile plant in Cicero, opens a 22 day meeting, the last six days of which will be sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

John L. Keeshin, the trucking magnate who is president of Sportsman's Park and who has with General Manager Bill Johnston prepared the establishment for another record breaking whirl, has provided for the distribution of approximately $80,000 in purses during the first week of racing.

Introduce New Innovations.

Keeshin has introduced several innovations in the sport and now steps forth with another departure from routine. It has been racing's custom to provide a share of the purse only for the owners of the horses finishing fourth or better. Keeshin believes it will make for even better races by giving the owner of the fifth place horse a share while an additional incentive comes in the form of a $50 war bond to trainers of horses which win races of a mile or longer.

Sportsman's also will continue its unique jocky contest. The leading riders at the conclusion of the meeting will divide $2,000 in war bonds, the winner getting $1,000; second, $500; third, $300, and fourth, $200. Points are awarded on the basis of four for a winning mount, three for place, two for show, and one for fourth. The war bond pot last spring was $1,650, divided among Marcos Pena, Eddie Franklin, Jackie Martin, and Tony LoTurco.

The Inaugural handicap Wednesday will be a $2,000 race for 3 year olds and up at a mile and one-sixteenth, while a $3,000 distance event, the John A. Brown Memorial handicap, will top next Saturday's card.

Prepared to Handle Crowds.

General Manager Johnston reports the track is prepared to accommodate even greater crowds than those which set new Sportsman's Park records last spring. The early 14 day meeting drew total attendance of 166,851, an increase of 58,802 over the 1943 spring meeting and a daily average of 11,918. The mutuel handle was $8,479,245, an average of $605,660, or approximately 40 per cent higher than in 1943.

Stall applications from well known owners and trainers promise well rounded cards on all racing days. Among the applicants is Robert McGarvey, who will race his Night Shadow, Holdall, Bolus, Icangetit, and So Sure. Monte Weil will rely on Valdina Malden, Soverton, and Observer.

The Happy Hour farm will be represented by the marathon runner, Starcress, Happy Pilot, Martian, and Rosy Brand. Roy Selden has Take Away, several times winner at Arlington and Washington Park; Huri Hom Hari, and the mud running Bushwhacker.

Burgoo Maid Wins Illinois Owners Race

Burgoo Maid, a daughter of the one time Kentucky Derby hero, Burgoo King, and owned by Ruth Sidell of Chicago, yesterday captured the $9,625 Illinois Owners handicap before a crowd of 19,586 at Hawthorne.

Altho most of her races have been over the shorter distances, Burgoo Maid took an early lead, maintained her margin courageously and had two and one-half lengths to spare at the end in the event for which only Illinois owned horses were eligible.

Espino Gold Second.

Espino Gold, which races for Mrs. F. Nugent, was second, two and one-half lengths in advance of St. Jock, which runs in the colors of Miss Sidell's father, S. D. Sidell.

Many did not believe Burgoo Maid could stick out the mile and a sixteenth, even with Jockey Jess Higley up, and she paid $12.40, $6, and $8.80. Espino Gold was even more overlooked, rewarding at $18 and $12.40. The filly turned the distance in 1:44 3-5, extremely creditable time, over a fast track.

Betting Totals $1,275,557.

Wagering on the feature race hit $169,289 and for the day the total was $1,275,557.

Jockey Steve Brooks booted home both ends of the daily double, which paid $156.20, altho his victory in the first race was something of a consolation, coming after his mount, Royal View, had finished second to Bud-On. When the stewards found that Bud-On, ridden by Billy Nichols, had impeded Toy Top, which finished third, the winner was set back to last place. As a result, Royal View, at $18, was the winner, Toy Top was second, and Bonridge was third. Headline won the second race and paid $11.60.

'SUPER-FUEL' TO GIVE ALLIED PLANES MORE SUPERIORITY—DAVIES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—A new "super-fuel" will give planes of the allies "even greater superiority over the Japanese air fleets," Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum administrator, said today.

The new fuel, developed by technologists of the American petroleum industry, probably will be used chiefly in carrier based planes and in giant bombers such as the B-29 Super-Fortresses, Davies reported. He said it will go into production as soon as military authorities give the word, and only minor changes in a refiner's processing technique will be required.

The United States and its allies are manufacturing about 500,000 barrels a day of 100 octane aviation gasoline, and this month, for the first time since the beginning of the war, the output of this fuel will exceed requirements for combat and training purposes.

Davies predicted the total output of aviation gasoline will "drop materially" when the "super-fuel" goes into production because a barrel of crude will produce only about half as much of it as of 100 octane gasoline. For this reason, American refineries are not expected to shift entirely to the new fuel, but to limit their output to quantities sufficient for the requirements of carrier based planes and new giant bombers.

GRAINS RALLY ON REPORT U. S. WILL BUY FLOUR

Short covering and reports that a resumption of government buying of flour on a large scale was imminent resulted in a rally of about 1 cent a bushel in grain futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after scattered selling had caused a small decline early.

Trading was not heavy and the grain markets were easily influenced, but buying orders predominated late in the session and closing sales were near the day's top prices. Wheat gained ⅛ to ¾ cent, corn ¼ to ½ cent, rye ⅛ to ½ cent, and oats closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Barley was unchanged to ⅜ cent lower.

Brokers said speculators were not inclined to take the selling side of wheat freely in view of the government support program, altho a shortage of box cars for moving wheat is holding up receipts in the southwest. Many cars fit for the shipment of grain from country points were reported en route to the Pacific coast.

ASKS CIVILIAN PROTECTION IN POST-WAR ERA

Generally adequate provisions have been made for industry and returning service men in the post-war period, but not for civilians who will depend on the social security program to tide them over unemployment periods after the wars in Europe and the Pacific end, Floyd W. Reeves, professor of administration at the University of Chicago, said yesterday.

"Altho aids have been provided for veterans, and machinery has been established to facilitate industrial reconversion, no major action has been taken to broaden the coverage or increase the benefits of social security or provide for the education of youth or the retraining of adults," he told the International City Managers' association in the Medinah club.

CIGARET HUNTS TO CONTINUE, SAY MANUFACTURERS

The scarcity of popular brands of cigarets is likely to continue, tobacco men said yesterday. They explained the shortage was the result of much increased demand and war restricted supplies. Stocks of all types of leaf tobacco maturing in warehouses were reported at the lowest level since mid-1939.

The war food administration has attributed the shrinkage of tobacco stocks to high domestic consumption, large shipments to the army and navy, heavier exports including lend-lease, and smaller production. Tobacco production has been under control of the government since 1933. Thru the program farmers were paid to curtail their crops.

Blame Federal Interference.

Industry men charge the government curbs on the production and sale of leaf tobacco by farmers have prevented the stocks available for cigaret manufacture from keeping up with the expanded demand. They said the efforts of the government to maintain a high level of leaf prices has resulted in artificial curtailment of crops.

A representative of the industry predicted the vast increase in consumption, along with "comparatively little if any" increase in tobacco production during the last 15 years, will further deplete stocks of manufacturers and possibly may result in "unpalatable cigarets and manufactured tobacco." He also said that cigaret consumption would continue to increase after the war.

Government tobacco purchase programs were started in 1939 with the avowed purpose of maintaining an export market for American tobacco when British funds in the United States were turned to the purchase of war materials.

Maintain British Outlet.

The government has said its purchases for the British empire were about the same amount as was sold to Britain in normal years.

In October, 1943, the government announced growers would be permitted to plant 20 per cent more land to burley and flue cured tobacco, mainly used in cigarets.

In July this year the WFA ordered cigaret producers to cut their purchases of 1944 crop flue cured tobacco to 74 per cent of the amount used for manufacturing in the year ended June 30. However, on the basis of larger crop predictions, WFA last month increased the allocations to 96 per cent.

The WFA said that if production reached the Sept. 1 increased estimate it probably would further boost the allocation to manufacturers and dealers.

The agricultural department Tuesday boosted its estimate of the over-all tobacco crop on Oct. 1 to only 4 per cent less than the record 1939 crop. Flue cured crop prospects were improved and growth of burley was better than usual.

LOW AUSTRALIA CROP MAY BOOST WHEAT EXPORTS

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 14 [Special].—Canadian officials believe wheat from Canadian and United States surpluses may be used to supply countries that normally look to Australia for their requirements, in view of the statement this week by Australian Commerce Minister William Scully that drouth may cut the commonwealth wheat crop to the lowest since 1914.

Australia normally supplies New Zealand with wheat and shipped to China and East Indian territories in peace. Shipments also were made to the United Kingdom with some sales in European countries. Exports in peace time often ran from 100 to 150 million bushels annually.

Both Canada and the United States have abundant wheat supplies this year, and areas usually supplied by Australia can be provided with whatever they need if shipping can be arranged, officials said.

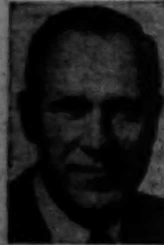
U. S. AIR LINES NEAR PRE-WAR PLANE TOTALS

Increased Services Are Expected.

United States air line fleets are nearing pre-war strength and increased passenger and cargo service is expected because of the return to the lines of planes taken over by the army, a survey disclosed yesterday.



L. W. King, regional vice president of American Airlines.

The air lines on Dec. 31, 1941, had in operation 341 commercial planes of all types. Of these, 176 planes were requisitioned for military service. Including the latest reallocation, 134 planes taken over by the army will have been returned for air line use. After conversion from military cargo to commercial passenger and cargo use, the lines will have 300 planes in service.

Big Lines Have 204 Planes.

The four leading companies have 204 planes available, compared with 228 on Dec. 31, 1941. American Airlines has 67 planes, compared with 79 on Dec. 31, 1941; United Air Lines, 55, against 67; Eastern Air Lines, 36, against 40, and Transcontinental and Western Air, 46, against 42.

Of United's fleet of 55 DC-3 transports, 10 are in the process of conversion and 45 are flying 13 hours daily per plane, or approximately 2,100 miles daily each, compared with 8¼ hours and 1,200 miles when United had 67 planes.

Despite fewer planes, United is flying 94,500 air miles a day, compared with 81,000 in October, 1941. Company officials predicted that an all-time high record of 100,000 miles a day will be reached by early December.

Improved Service Possible.

A United spokesman said the increased number of planes in operation will permit improved service out of Chicago, and a new all-cargo flight between Chicago and the Pacific coast is planned. Of the 10 planes being converted, five will be ready by Dec. 31 and the rest are expected to be finished by spring.

Increased utilization of equipment, better scheduling, and improved maintenance made it possible for United to shatter previous traffic records despite a handicapped fleet, he said. In September, 1944, 57 per cent more passenger revenue miles were flown than in September, 1942, and 29 per cent more than a year earlier.

L. W. King, regional vice president of American, said that as rapidly as aircraft are allocated to that line by the army, they are reconverted as passenger ships or air freighters.

"Reconversion means practically rebuilding the planes at a cost of $50,000 each, and requires in excess of 20,000 man hours of work," King said. "Thus the return of aircraft has little effect on schedules for six to eight weeks."

FEEDER LINE FORMED

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 14 (AP).—Incorporation of Parks Air Transport for the post-war operation of 35 feeder air line routes in 15 midwest states was announced today by Oliver L. Parks, president of Parks Air college, and the new corporation.

The transport service was incorporated under the laws of Nevada, with 3½ million dollars authorized capital stock, Parks said. Other officers of the new company are Philip C. Wagner, St. Louis, vice president and general manager, and John W. Bryan, Sikeston, Mo., secretary and treasurer.

OCEAN SERVICE READY

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—American Airlines can convert to peace time commercial service over the North Atlantic "on 24 hours' notice," A. N. Kemp, president, told reporters today.

"We have a complete organization in the air and on the ground in the North Atlantic which can be converted to commercial operation at any time military circumstances permit," he said.

Operation by the line for the army transport command in the 12 months ended with July, 1944, included 2,680 Atlantic crossings, flying a total of 11,634,309 miles, and carrying 23,987 passengers, Kemp said. Of the total mileage 6,078,425 miles were flown over the North Atlantic, 2,296,165 over the South Atlantic, and 3,259,719 over other oceans.

Docile Lambs Give Up Under Price Control

Canning Beef Taken

The war food administration has directed packers operating under federal inspection to set aside 80 per cent of all canner and cutter beef for government procurement, beginning today, Donald E. Smith, acting regional director of food distribution for the WFA, said yesterday.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

The "hold the line" edict, which has been more effective in preventing price advances in sheep and lambs than in the markets for other classes of meat animals, is proving a boomerang by reducing supplies below desired levels. The success of the fight to control prices was blamed yesterday by Chicago stock yards traders for the rapidly developing shortage of sheep and lambs thruout the country. Even buyers for the army and navy, who have a priority above all other buyers in the meat trade, were said to be unable to get all the lamb meat they want.

Tho the lamb industry lived up to the name of the docile animal in markets, showing little of the fight that characterized the struggle to regiment cattle and hog raisers, it appears that the lamb has upset crop planners more than the other animals. Lamb production has fallen below the pre-war level, but cattle and hogs are produced in larger numbers.

Fewer Lambs on Farms.

Spokesmen for the war food administration reported that the 1944 lamb crop was third lowest since 1930. One federal expert on live stock predicted that the sheep population would be lowest in 14 years on Jan. 1, 1945. Last month the lend-lease administration obtained a total of 3,638,000 pounds of lamb and mutton, 45 per cent less than in September, 1943, and 75 per cent less than last January when buying of this meat was at a peak.

Success of the fight to control lamb prices was attributed by members of the trade partly to the fact that competition from illegal markets is less in lamb and mutton than in other kinds of meats, a factor which has figured prominently in failures of federal agents to hold their grip on pork and beef. The lamb industry is in fewer hands and easier for the office of price administration to keep under surveillance. There is no ceiling price on live lambs, but thru control of the markets for lamb meat and wool, the OPA has regulated indirectly the level of prices paid to farmers.

Cannot Keep Workers.

Sheep men of the western ranges explained that the reduced income from lambs [prices now are $2.00 a hundred pounds under the war's highest level] has made it impossible to keep experienced workers needed in caring for flocks at lambing, and at shearing time, both vital seasons in the life of the lamb. Farmers of the corn belt, who are feeding 15 per cent fewer lambs than last year and the smallest number in many years, said their profit margin has been almost wiped out, feed costs considered.

Lamb prices currently average 66 per cent above the market just prior to the war. Cattle show 76 per cent price gain and hogs 159 per cent increase.

Maine Central Asks ICC to Approve Refunding

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—The Maine Central railroad asked interstate commerce commission authority today to issue 9 million dollars of first mortgage 4 per cent series B bonds to help pay off $9,878,000 of 4 per cent series A's due Dec. 1, 1945. It proposed to sell them to two life insurance companies and to Kidder, Peabody & Co. at 98½.

Egg Futures Advance for Fourth Day in Row

Egg futures prices climbed for the fourth consecutive day on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, gaining 0.35 to 0.75 cent a dozen. Trading was active as buyers found offerings scarce.

SHORTAGE OF BRICKS ACUTE THRU MIDWEST SAYS MANUFACTURER

Chicago and the midwest area are contending with an acute shortage of common brick, caused by a large demand for the product and a simultaneous lack of man power in the plants, John Goodridge, president of the Illinois Brick company, said yesterday in discussing the announced decision of the OPA to grant an increase of $2.50 per thousand in the price of common brick.

"The price raise granted by OPA has been permitted in the hope of encouraging the resumption or increase of manufacturing by the various plants, and in recognition of the much higher cost of producing brick," Goodridge said. "Wage scales have been increased and the costs of supplies are higher, particularly coal and fuel oil.

"The man power shortage has prevented operating of brick plants thruout this part of the country, with the result that demands are being made upon us for common brick ordinarily supplied builders by plants in Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and even Kentucky."

Illinois Brick company's plant in Blue Island has been running continuously since April, 1943, but only at 50 per cent of capacity because of lack of brickmakers.

SEC APPROVES SALE OF OGDEN HELD PROPERTY

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 14 (AP).—The securities and exchange commission has approved the sale of Central States Power and Light corporation's "Iowa-Minnesota" electric utility properties to Interstate Power company for 2¾ million dollars, subject to adjustment.

The sale is in compliance with provisions of the holding company act and in keeping with Ogden corporation's plan for the liquidation and dissolution of a subsidiary, Central States Utilities corporation, and the indirect subsidiary, Central States Power and Light.

The commission also approved the sale by Interstate, another Ogden subsidiary, of its electric utility and water properties in the "Benmidji-Croakston district" in northern Minnesota, to Otter Tail Power company for 3 million dollars, subject to adjustments.

BAN INDIVIDUAL GAS QUOTAS FOR PRIVATE FLYERS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—The civil aeronautics administration announced today that no individual allotments of aviation gasoline will be made to private flyers, except those flying in commercial nonscheduled operations, in schools or other such enterprises or for companies which own aircraft.

Pilots of civil planes are prohibited from sightseeing, barnstorming, or pleasure flying, but may fly enough to maintain their skill or in transacting business. They will be rationed only by the amount of gasoline available from dealers, the CAA said.

Responsibility for rationing of aviation gasoline for private aircraft, other than scheduled commercial operations, recently was assigned to the CAA.

Sen. Murray Will Urge Small Business Loans

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—Declaring that small enterprises may face a struggle for survival at the end of the war, Chairman Murray [D., Mont.] of the senate small business committee said today he would seek "prompt action" on legislation authorizing loans to small concerns. Murray also said his committee had begun looking into "incentives in the form of new tax policies" that would encourage small firms.

Stock Market Closes Mixed; Utilities Lead

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—After much indecision during the last week, stock market buyers supported utilities today, but continued to shy away from many rail and industrial leaders.

Revival of the power and light company group was attributed to election optimism in Wall street. Most customers inclined to liquidity, however, pending week-end European developments and commitments were lightened in numerous instances. Special situations buoyed individual stocks. Dealings were among the lightest for the last month despite blocks of as many as 10,000 shares of low priced stocks. Closing prices were irregular.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was unchanged at 55.5 for the second day, but on the week was down 0.1.

At peaks for 1944 were United Corporation preferred, aided by the proposed securities and exchange commission amendment to the reorganization program; Consolidated Edison and Erie preferred A.

RAIL BOND AVERAGE AT PEAK.

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—Rail bonds advanced today by margins sufficient to lift the Associated Press carrier average 0.1 to 99.2, a new peak for the year. Utility and industrial averages were unchanged.

Advancing fractions to a point or more were Alton 3s, North Western 4½s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5s, Kansas City Southern 5s, and M-K-T adjustment 5s. Declining were Rock Island 4s of 1988, Erie 4½s, and Morris and Essex 3½s.

Reflecting declines in a large number of foreign bonds, including Belgian, Denmark, and several South Americans, the foreign average dropped 0.2.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices were higher in turnover of 13,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Active issues included Aro Equipment, up ¼; Commonwealth Edison, unchanged, and Serrick, down ⅜. Among issues at 1944 highs were Ken-Rad Tube, up 1½, and International Harvester, up 1.

NEW MAXIMUM TRUCK LOADING SCHEDULE READY

Schedules of maximum load weights will be distributed to all Chicago truckers in a new truck the conservation campaign, Marion W. Isbell, OPA area director, said yesterday. The schedules were worked out by the OPA and the motor transport advisory committee, he said.

The committee learned excessive tire wear has occurred in the hauling of building materials and seeks a new agreement among such truckers for checking load weights at quarries, controlling speed, and maintaining yard rosd in good condition, Isbell said.

Arthur G. Eaton, director of WPB's government division, said in a letter to Public Work Commissioner Hewitt, that tires for large trucks may be available for the city in larger numbers. "We believe that action recently taken by the rubber bureau will make more of these large tires available for your most urgent requirements," he wrote.

RULES SHERMAN ACT AFFECTS UNIONS ONLY IN SPECIAL CASES

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today that labor unions were not subject to terms of the Sherman anti-trust act except in special cases. In a two to one decision, the higher court reversed a District court ruling rendered in November, 1942, which found that activities of local 3, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers [AFL], were "unlawful and contrary to" the anti-trust act.

The action had been brought by Allen Bradley & Co. and 10 other electrical equipment manufacturers in December, 1935. They alleged that because of a union boycott electrical equipment manufactured outside New York City could not be sold in that city, even tho such equipment bore a union label.

Judge Charles Clark in the majority opinion virtually upheld the allegations of the plaintiffs in respect to the union's activities, but based the reversal on earlier Supreme court decisions that labor unions were not subject to the Sherman law.

INT. HARVESTER PLANS TO MEET PEACE RIVALRY

Designs New Farm Machinery.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Ingenious new pieces of farm equipment, including a one man pickup hay baler and a corn harvester picker, will help the International Harvester company to meet the challenge of new competition after the war, a spokesman for the company said yesterday. Among the enterprises which proposes to take a larger interest in the farm implement business is the Ford Motor company which hopes to use the Willow Run bomber plant to make farm tractors and machines after the war.

Harvester's engineering department has produced a number of developments, including some farm machines which already have been put on the market in limited numbers and others that must await the end of the war before being placed in production.

Plan Tractor-Implement Unit.

Fowler McCormick, president of the company, has indicated that one post-war objective is to place on the market for about $1,000 a tractor and the essential farm implements to work with it. The $1,000 price is contingent on post-war prices being at about the 1940 levels.

The post-war planning of the company is emphasizing designing which will give the one family farm all the advantages of mechanized equipment available to larger farms. The smaller farms provide a large amount of potential business because of the 6,096,899 farms in the country reported by the department of agriculture in 1940 3,577,710, or 58.7 per cent, were less than 100 acres.

Altho much of the new equipment now designed will not be suitable for farms of 50 acres or less, farms of 50 acres or more will offer a large market. About 3,810,000 farms are of this size.

New Products Scheduled.

New products scheduled for substantial production by Harvester after the war, in addition to the baler and corn picker include:

Tractors equipped with a system of hydraulic control of farm implements which will greatly lighten the farmer's tasks. Any desired adjustments in the action of the implements, either lifting or downward pressure, can be made merely by touching a lever. The farmer will not have to get off the tractor to adjust the action of the implements.

Lighter weight tractor mounted implements which will reduce operating costs and increase ease of handling.

A forage harvester to harvest green grasses for silage.

A new field ensilage harvester of a size that makes it suitable for most farms which produce corn or sorghum silage.

A new corn picker-sheller which harvests, husks, and shells corn in a continuous process, similar to the harvesting and threshing of grain by a combine.

Self-propelled Combine Planned.

A new self-propelled harvester-thresher, or combine, for harvesting grain, soybeans, rice, clover, and other seed crops.

A mechanical cotton picker for small farms. Larger cotton pickers for larger farms have been demonstrated recently in the south.

Harvester is in an advantageous position for reconversion because it has been able to carry on limited production of farm implements. However, in order to bring out its new machines, a substantial amount of retooling must be done. Production of its products cannot be substantial until man power restrictions are lifted. Further, a large amount of factory space must be cleared of war machines to provide room for civilian operations.

National Casket Votes Dividend of 75 Cents

National Casket company yesterday declared a dividend of 75 cents. The last previous payment was 50 cents in May.

Motor Makers to Get Peace Tools Under New WPB Plan

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—Procedures designed to give the automobile and other manufacturing industries the machine tools needed for reconversion were set up today by J. A. Krug, war production board chairman. He also took a preliminary step toward peace-time activity in the construction industry by consolidating existing WPB divisions in that field into a single construction bureau.

Krug said the bureau would provide "a mechanism thru which construction work can be actively promoted whenever diminishing war requirements make that possible." He had stated earlier in the week that no expansion of civilian building was possible now.

Get Place on Order Book.

The machine tool order gives the automobile companies — claimants for 90 per cent of all the machine tools needed for reconversion—assurance that their requirements would find a place on the order books of machine tool builders, even tho the priority rating requested by the industry is not granted.

Krug's action will reduce the number of ratings granted, so that unrated orders may share in the 25 per cent of machine tool production which is reserved for nonmilitary purposes. "Many machine tool builders are now in a position to devote more than 25 per cent of their capacity to such orders," he said.

"Essential civilian" orders carrying priority ratings will still get preference on the order books over unrated orders, Krug said, but from now on a minimum of such ratings will be given.

Immediate Planning Heeded.

"War needs must come first, but WPB recognizes that industries that face reconversion must begin planning now," Krug said in explanation of the new policy.

Formation of the new construction bureau, under Arthur J. McComb of Montclair, N. J., as director, will wrap into a single unit the following WPB agencies: The building materials division, construction machinery division, plumbing and heating division, the bulk of the facilities division, materials control division, and some lesser units. The facilities committee, which concentrated on war plants, eventually will be dissolved.

Need 3 Years to Refill U. S. Suitcase Stock

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—If all government restrictions were lifted today, it would take the luggage industry three years to replace the stocks of suitcases, trunks, and overnight bags which were available immediately before Pearl Harbor, the Luggage and Leather Goods Manufacturers of America said today.

Stores devoted exclusively to luggage and leather goods in large cities have the best stocks now, the association said. Department stores have the smallest stocks and some have discontinued such lines, it added.

Many Outlets Are Added.

Outlets have increased greatly, the association continued. Retailers such as automobile supply shops and hardware stores added luggage lines as a fill-in for products cut off by the war.

Manufacturers have been hindered by shortages of leather and of hinges, locks, and similar parts. But for civilian manufacture, the industry usually found enough substitutes to continue output up to the percentages allowed. Man power became a problem and currently is a severe one.

Plan to Emphasize Lightness.

When normal production is resumed emphasis will be on lightness. Increased air travel is expected to make lightweight luggage much in demand. Manufacturers are studying plastics, plywood, and metals as a means of cutting weight. They are experimenting with plexiglass, fibreglass, and other plastics, impregnated canvas that looks like leather, and lightweight aluminums and plywoods for frameworks. The hundred-odd pre-war numbers will be reduced.

Transportation companies are being consulted to learn the sizes of compartments and baggage space planned for post-war railroad cars, passenger planes, steamships, and buses. Luggage men plan to design their products so as to fit them conveniently into the allotted spaces.

FEW CUTBACKS IN SHIPS, SAYS MARITIME AID

Superior, Wis., Oct. 14 (AP).—L. R. Sanford, Gulf and Great Lakes regional director of the maritime commission, said today no shipbuilding cut-backs "are planned prior to the victorious conclusion of the war in Europe."

"Even after that date, the demand for tonnage to European ports will continue to be extremely heavy," he said in presenting the maritime "M" award to the Globe Shipbuilding company.

Simons, who will become advertising and sales promotion manager of General Electric's air conditioning and commercial refrigeration division at Bloomfield, N. J.

Dr. Harlow S. Person, consultant in business economics and management in New York and former president and managing director of the Taylor society, will address the Society for the Advancement of Management Tuesday in the Stevens hotel.

The American Society of Safety Engineers has announced the election of W. Deak Keefer, vice president of Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, as general chairman of the society.

The appointment of Robert A. Vogeler, formerly of Libby, McNeill & Libby, as manager of its middle west branch sales office in Chicago, was announced by Federal Telephone and Radio corporation.

California Ends Largest One State Pack of Fruit

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP).—California has just completed the largest pack of fruit ever put in cans in one state. Preliminary estimates made by packers and announced by the war food administration set the pack at 28,653,557 cases of 687,685,368 cans, No. 2½ size, almost 50 per cent larger than 1943's 19,430,390 case output.

CIVILIAN GOODS PRICE PLAN SET FOR NAZI FALL

OPA Prepared with Full Program.

Within 48 hours after the fall of Germany the office of price administration will announce a complete pricing plan under which more than 25,000 manufacturing plants may price the goods they produce for civilian use, Rae E. Walters, regional price administrator, told THE TRIBUNE last night.

Walters said the plan, which will affect all but about a score of large companies which will return to the production of consumers' durable goods, has been fully developed, but will not be announced until V-E day because it is being constantly changed in accordance with fluctuations in wage levels and other manufacturing costs.

Price Controls to Remain.

He emphasized, however, that price controls will be kept on all consumer goods "until supply and demand come back into balance and they are no longer needed."

The price control system, he said, will be simplified for plants reconverting to civilian goods. Any firm, he said, which wants to resume output of its former products and sell them at its 1942 prices "will not even need to call at our offices."

"But we must make sure that any manufacturer who needs a new price can get a decision quickly, so we are authorizing the 93 OPA district offices in the United States, one of which is in Chicago, to set final ceiling prices for all reconverted products not on the key list of 12 major items. These latter are automobiles and parts, refrigerators, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners and other electrical household appliances, radios, phonographs, pianos, heating and cooking equipment, clocks, and watches.

May Need New Ceilings.

"These are the industries which may need new ceiling prices. They have been almost entirely out of production since 1942. They represented 8.5 per cent of total consumer expenditures in 1941. The problem in this field is substantial, but not as great as others we have handled successfully in the past."

Firms whose production costs are higher than in 1941 and who thus require price adjustment will be able to present applications to field offices and receive price ceilings based on a set of standards arrived at in Washington, D. C., Walters said. He added that "these will be standards that can be quickly applied without needless red tape and without referral back to Washington."

GRAPHIC SECTION

Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

OCT. 15, 1944

AN ARTIST SEES THE WAR IN FRANCE

THE PAINTINGS reproduced on this page are the work of a Tribune artist who was with the American forces that landed in Normandy and now are pounding at the gates of Germany. He is Gary Sheahan, whose paint brushes, pens, and pencils have pictured for Tribune readers many dramatic moments of the war both in the Pacific and in Europe.

Sheahan's pictures of the landings in Normandy appeared in the Graphic Section recently. Now he depicts the action in France, especially the work of the hospital units.

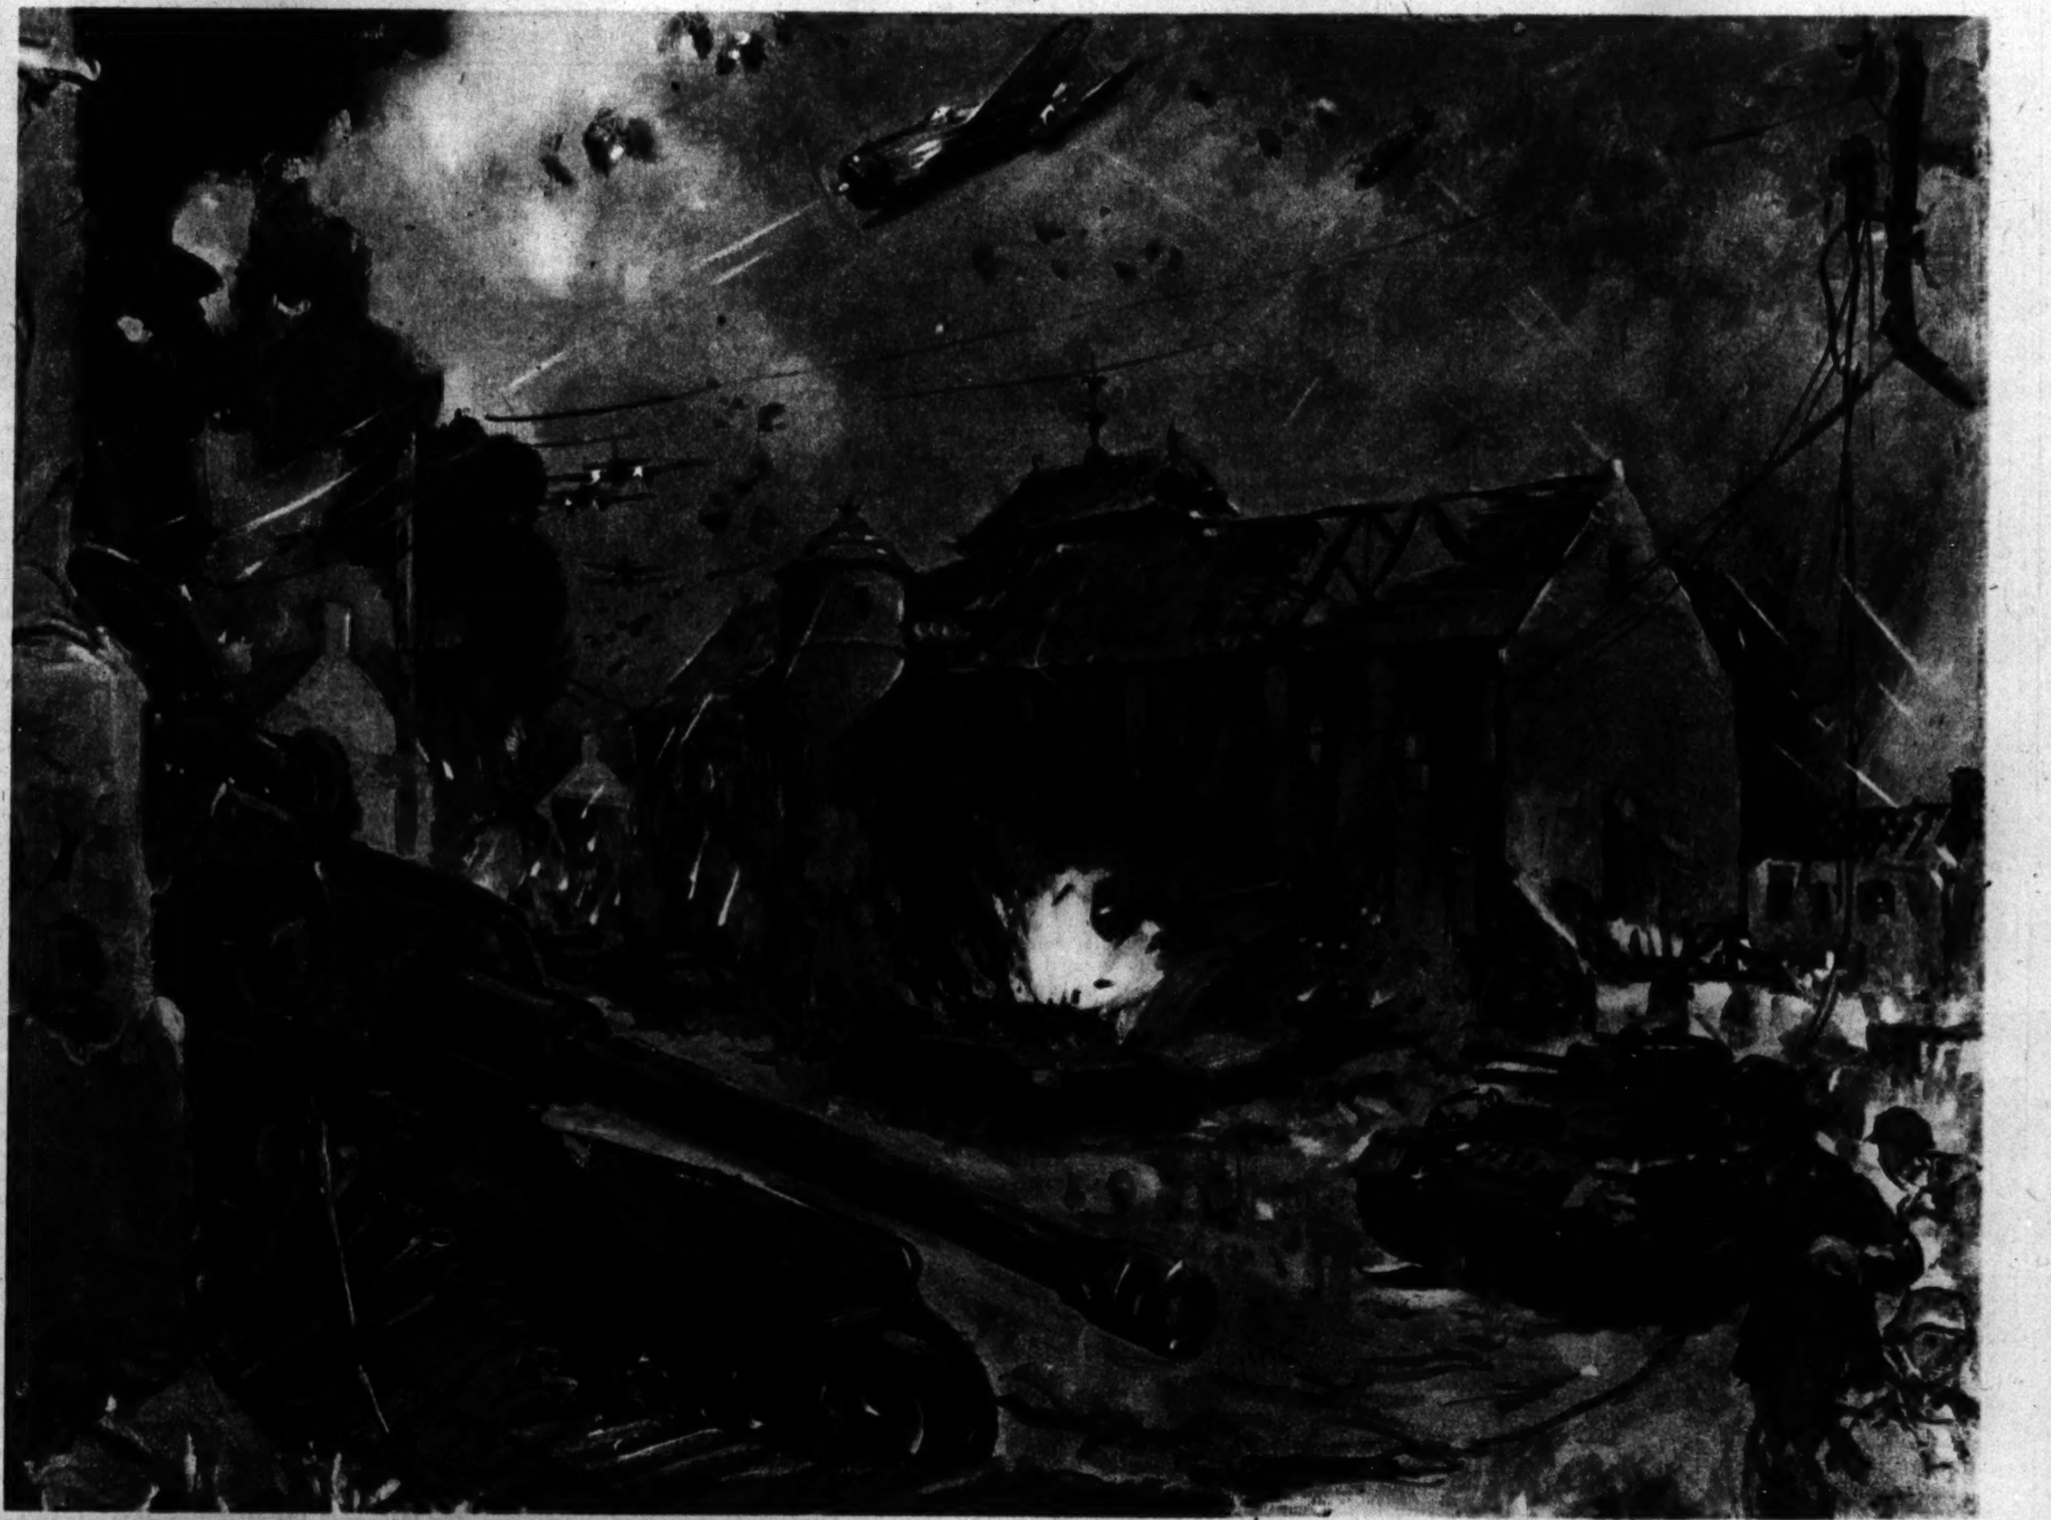
In describing the work of the evacuation hospitals, entrance to one of which is depicted at the bottom of the page, Sheahan writes:

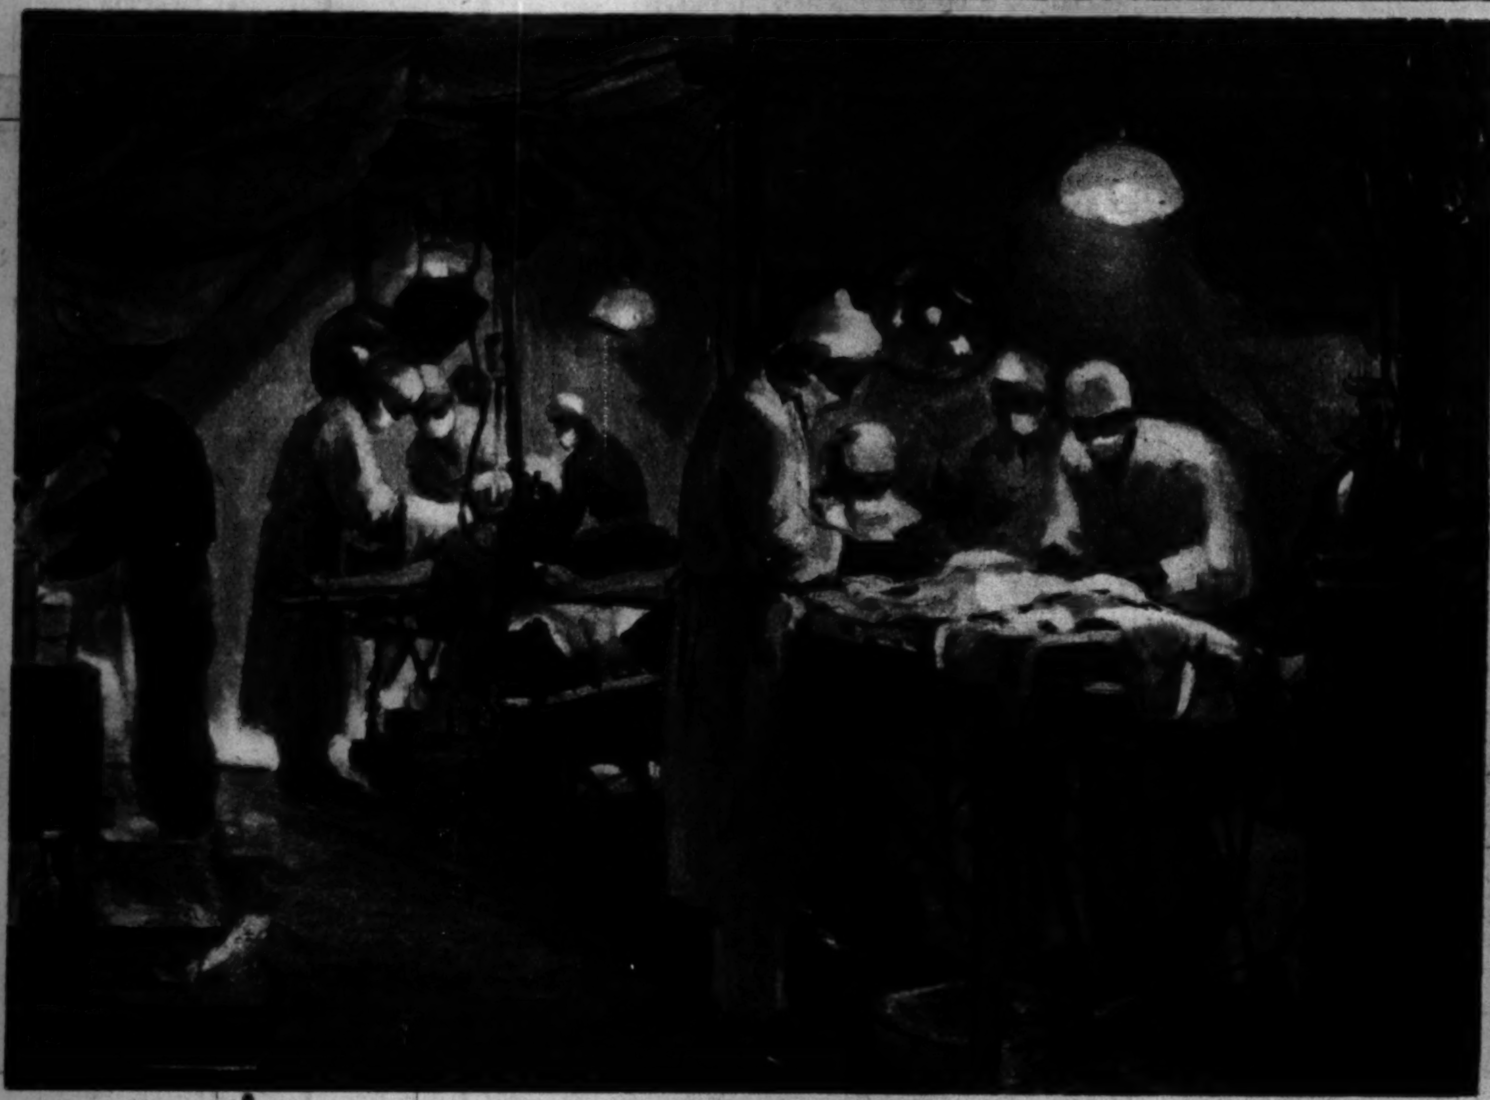
"It is at these hospitals that the wounded men are given the first real hospital treatment after being picked up on the battlefield. Situated far enough behind the lines as a rule to be out of artillery range, the mobile units have adequate facilities and staff to give necessary surgical treatment to injured men before they are taken in 9th air force transports to base hospitals in England.

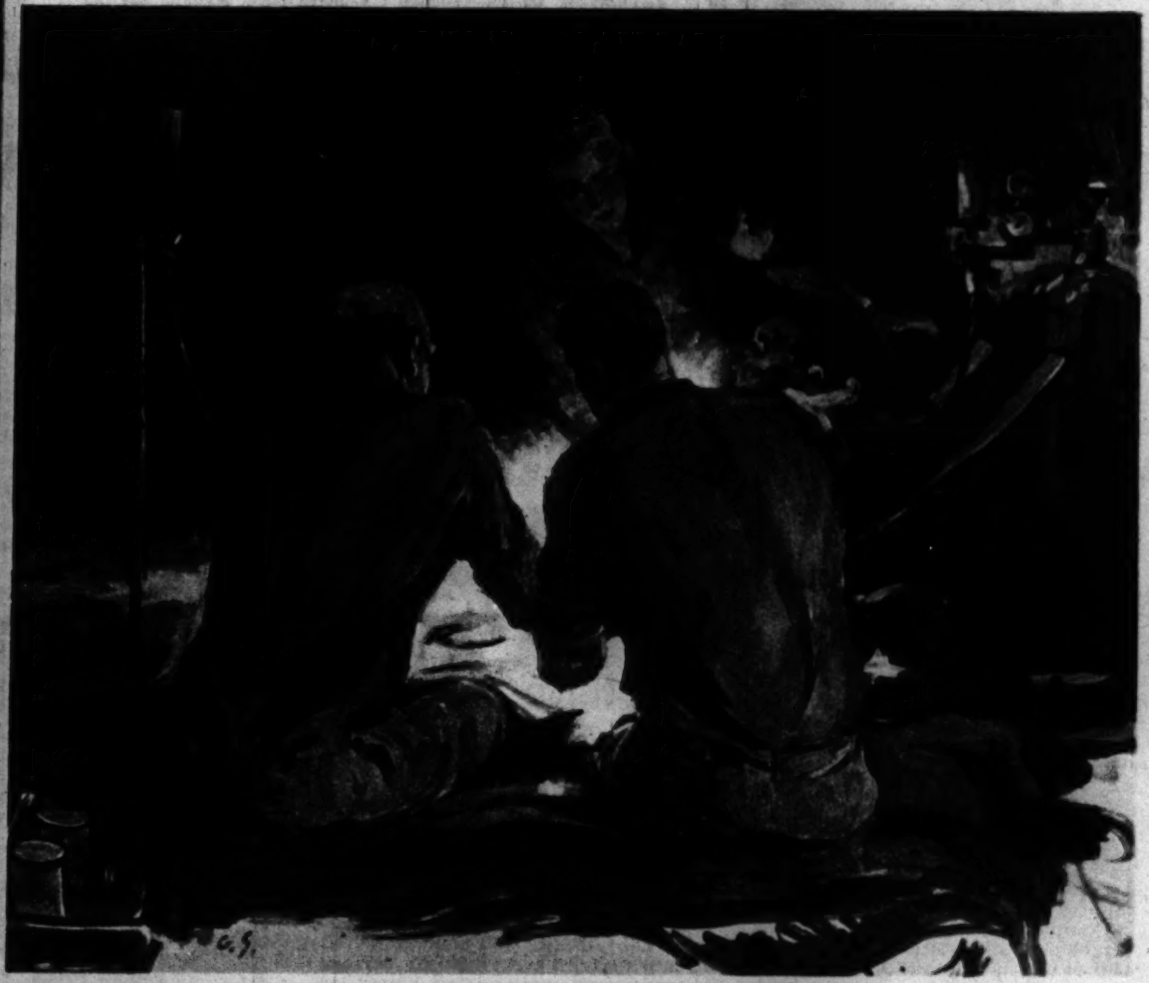
"The wounded are picked up on the battlefield by medical corpsmen, given first aid, and taken to a collecting point in the rear. Only the most urgent surgery is done here. From the collecting point the injured are taken to a clearing station, where less critical cases can be given surgical treatment if necessary. The next stop is the evacuation hospital, which is completely equipped for regular care."



Ninth air force Thunderbolts strafe a concentration of German tanks caught at the crossroads in St. Gilles, Normandy. The planes dive low to drop their bombs, then return to strafe the area. Burned out tanks, some of them nearly buried by rubble, attest to the airmen's marksmanship.

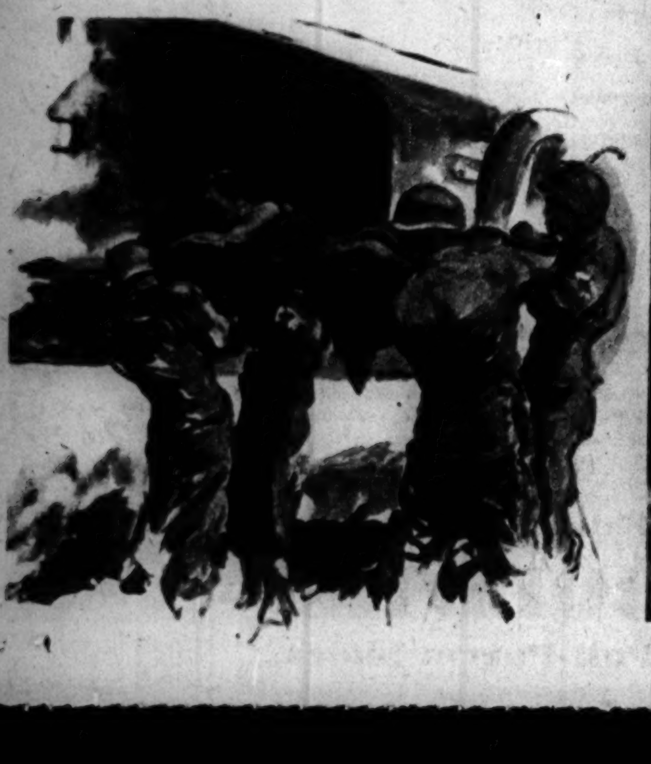
Below: Inside one of the operating tents of a mobile evacuation hospital. Each tent has six operating tables. The earth floor is covered with a dustproof mat. Sheahan painted this picture wearing a sterile mask. It took him four hours—the same time that was consumed by the operation at the table in rear.

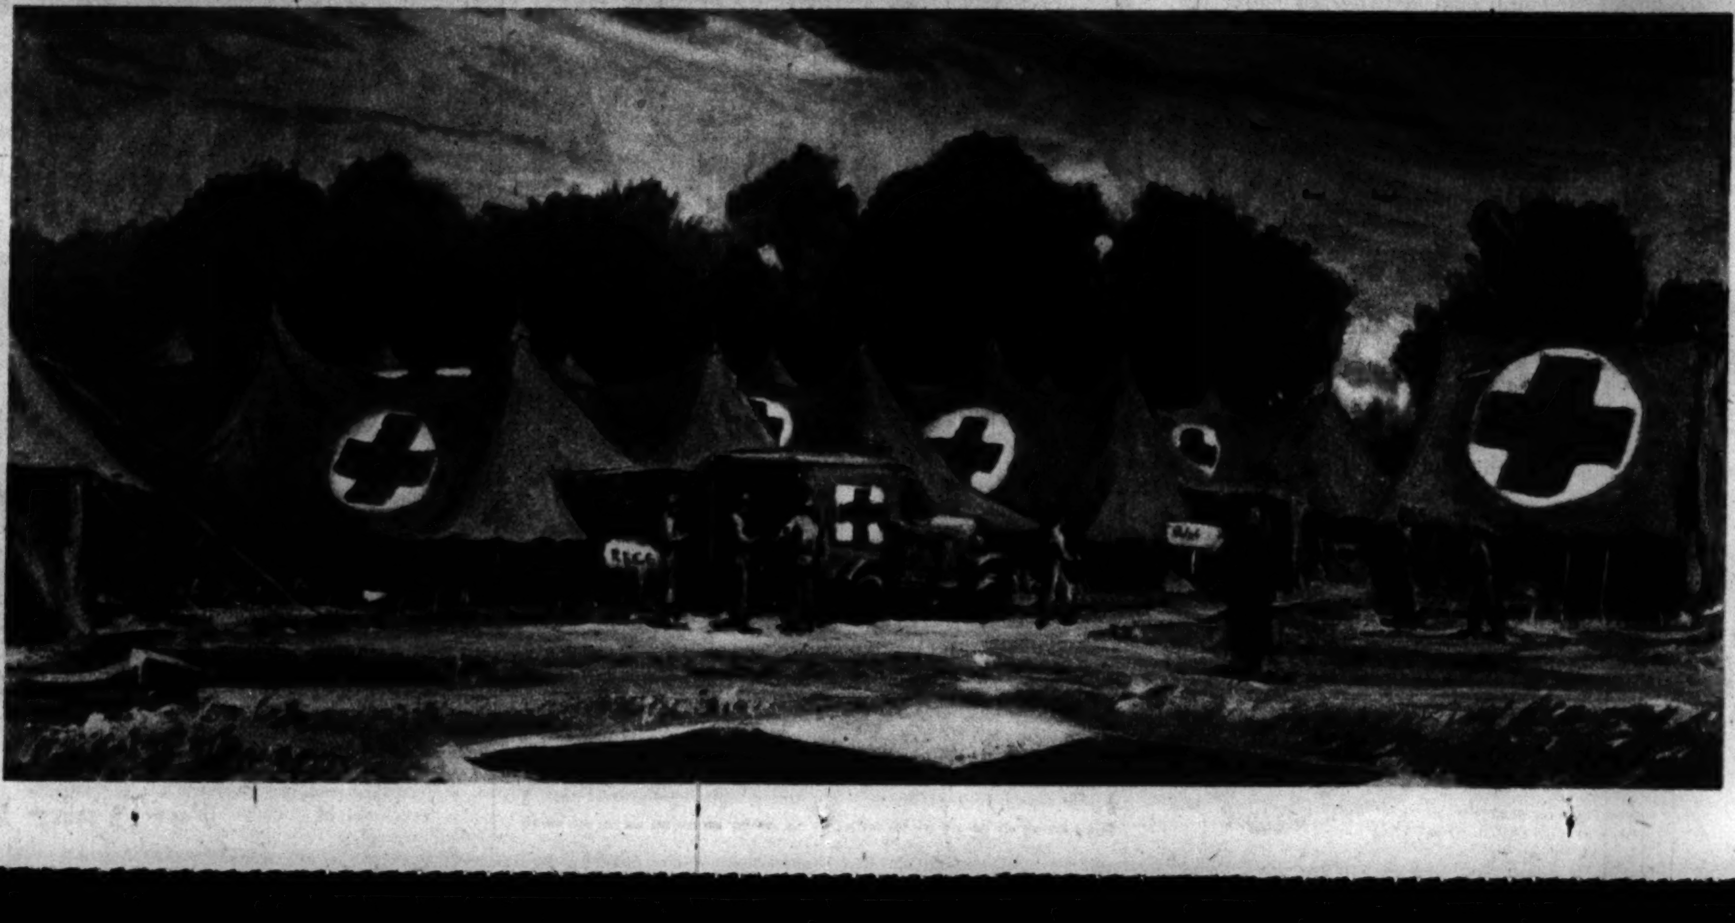




Above: Capt. Donald E. Cassels of Chicago and Maj. James Elliott of Palo Alto, Cal., give emergency treatment to a seriously wounded officer in the "shock" tent at a Normandy evacuation hospital. All wounded suffering from shock are taken to this tent before anything but first aid is given. When released by the doctor in charge they are given surgery or whatever treatment is necessary.

Below: A soldier wounded in the Normandy fighting is placed in a C-47 for the one hour flight back to a base hospital in England. The C-47s are part of the transport wing of the 9th air force.





At left: The entrance to a typical evacuation hospital in Normandy. Completely housed in tents, it contains operating rooms, X-ray rooms, shock tent, dental and other labotories. It has running water and its own lighting plant.

Inside War Time India

This is the second article of a series of four based upon first-hand observations of the author in a journey in war time India. In the first installment the author introduced his readers to the strange sights and smells of Indian towns such as Karachi, described in detail the wretched plight of the millions of underprivileged natives under the rule of their white masters.

By ALEX SMALL

AT EVERY garrison town of importance in India there is a special station for the cantonment because the garrison keeps apart from the population, even is kept away from it. That point has been considerably relaxed under the stresses of the present war, but it represents normal practice. Thus the cantonment is a town by itself. Perhaps miles away will be the "native town" where the dark skinned inhabitants of India live and have their bazar.

Separate from this and the cantonment is a third city, Civil Lines, where the local members of the oligarch race have their offices, their businesses, their shops, their dwellings, their clubs, their polo fields, their lending library, their Church of England. This type of municipal organization has broken down or is not apparent at the very big places such as Calcutta and Bombay, but is well marked at Delhi and Lahore and is glaringly apparent in smaller places. Sometimes, as at Bangalore, Rawalpindi, and Peshawar, cantonment and Civil Lines seem to merge together and it is difficult to distinguish the two.

This kind of organization grew up after the Sepoy Mutiny (1857). It is a military precaution, necessary where small garrisons must preserve their unity by themselves and not be overwhelmed by a surrounding mass of the natives whom they must keep in order. It serves also to avoid giving cause of a disaffection, as might happen with drunken British soldiers loose in a bazar.

Civil Lines represents the determination of British civilians to live apart from, differently, and better than the nearby inhabitants. It expresses their conviction that they and Indians cannot and should not mingle with each other. The cleaned-up and sanitary sections should be for the race which manages, commands, loafs, and plays; the stinks, shanties, and slums for the race which obeys, toils, whines, and futilely curses.

From Lahore (capital of the Punjab, one of the 11 provinces of British India) to Delhi, there's a main trunk road, roughly paralleling the eastern slopes of the Himalayas. The chances are you will be unable to find a motor car, or any gas to put in it, for war time restrictions, to save fuel and tires, are even more stringent in India than in the United States. Some people in some places find plenty of black market gas, of course, but that's another story.

So it's back to the crowded train again, with its sweaty fretful people. You'll find this will have to be your way to travel over India. Even if you get American military privileges, the planes go only to the few American bases, and often will be of little use. It's overnight by the Frontier Mail (India's best train from Peshawar, which is the end of the world at the foot of the Himalayas, to Delhi, where it splits into two sections, one for Calcutta and one for Bombay), and thru a country growing ever greener and past the factory chimneys of India's new war time mushroom industries, you roll into Delhi Junction.

"Whoever holds Delhi, holds India." That is an old saying of the people, and it seems to have been true, less from any strategic position than from the spell which Delhi has cast on people's minds. It is the ancient city of blood and glory, which for more than 2,000 years time and again has been swept by catastrophe or has decayed into ruins and has always risen again. Today it has taken on new life since the capital of British India was brought back to it in 1911 (really only completely established there since 1931), as a center of India's new industry, as the abode of power, and as a microcosm of all the varied life of India.

Delhi stretches for miles along the right bank of the river Jumna, and, disregarding outlying sections, of recent growth and in good part filled with the slums of the newly imported factory workers, it may be divided into three parts. Northernmost is Civil Lines, with its well paved roads, lovely gardens, its neat suburban houses, many of them mansions, its spacious compounds behind stone walls. Here are three of the few comfortable hotels in all India, and here are the buildings occupied formerly by officialdom, first when Delhi was only a district of Punjab province (before 1911) and later by the central government while it was waiting for the new capital to be built.

Those buildings now are again occupied by officialdom. Lack of space has caused part of the huge governmental machine and war activities to spill over into Civil Lines. Here too is the stately mansion, behind well guarded walls, of the district commissioner, who is in effect the local ruler of Delhi, now an administrative unit by itself. Being the central capital, it is almost exactly like the District of Columbia.

Here in a low stone building on Alipore road is the district commissioner's office, place of dread to the ruled. Here they go to find if they may live in their houses or be tossed out to make room for white skinned crusaders from the western world. Here those who wish to leave India go for passports, to be told, in official style, that it "does not please" the D. C. to let them have passports. From this building come those official proclamations which tell that this representative of the British raj "is pleased" to forbid processions or gatherings or to suspend or prohibit the publication and sale of a newspaper.

It is the formula of the old French monarchy—car tel est notre bon plaisir (for such is our good pleasure).

Civil Lines on its western side, farthest from the river, is bounded by Delhi ridge. On it stands, conspicuous far and wide, the Mutiny monument, a reminder to any of the subject people who may get unconstructive ideas. It is a fine example of the artistic taste of Victorian British colonials. The rupees and annas of Indians paid for this landmark to their defeat and dishonor. They also paid for statues at crossroads to the heroic officers of the mercenary troops, British and Indian, who died on that broiling September day of 1857 storming Kashmiri Gate and ending the last vestige of an independent India.

A Sikh on guard.

By an oversight which no non-British can understand there is no statue to Major Hodson, who, after the battle, shot dead in cold blood the three sons of the old King of Delhi, before their father's eyes.

Behind Delhi ridge stand the extensive grounds of the Delhi university which is to be. Work on it has begun already and the plant is functioning. The roadway on top of the ridge is a favorite place for strolling by the subject race on Delhi's sultry evenings. There I've heard the shrill screams of flocks of wild peacocks and been warned not to step off the road. The fields are said to be full of cobras, which come out at sunset from under rocks where they take refuge from the heat of daylight.

In open fields of Civil Lines you may see Indian boys noisily playing cricket or hockey (their preferred sport), and sometimes troops of equally noisy little gray monkeys. Beyond are the walls which inclose the second part of Delhi, the native town, sometimes called Old Delhi, sometimes, for the sake of clarity by its original name of Shahjahanabad.

The walls still stand in good part as when they were built 300 years ago, tho breaches have been made in them for modern traffic and sections near the Kashmiri Gate were crumbled down under the pounding of the solid shot of British guns during the Mutiny.

The center of the life of Shahjahanabad is Chandni Chowk ("Moonlight Avenue"), a broad dusty thorofare lined with the rickety buildings of the orient. Once it was said to be the most splendid street of the east, but that was long ago and it has now sadly fallen. Much business is transacted here, however, and two of the proudest British banks are not above keeping up branch offices in Chandni Chowk. Aloofness from black skins is a principle for compromise when there's a piece of change to be picked up.

Off this avenue are the narrow lanes of the ordinary Indian bazar, filled all day long with a milling, huckstering mob, where the rickshas (the only practicable mode of transport down here) worm their way amid the clang of their bells and the stereotyped picturesque curses of their coolies. (Most of these curses are pointed personal remarks about the ancestry of any one who gets in the way.)

Many of the lanes here, after the fashion of the east, constitute bazars for some one commodity. There is the Street of the Leather Merchants (regarded as unspeakable low fellows by orthodox Hindus), the Street of Spices, odorous with a different pungency from the ordinary stinks, and the Street of the Silversmiths. Here tiny boys, for a few annas a day, pound with little hammers from dawn till after dark, making the bangles and other ornaments which Indians love to load on their women, using designs centuries old, with never a spark of new inspiration.

In Chandni Chowk you also see the "communal" problem, one of the curses of India. There are public fountains, but each is marked in three scripts (English,

GROOVE OR RUT?

By MAUREEN DALY

(Author of "Seventeenth Summer" and "Smarter and Smoother.")

Your life is your own, and you don't have to follow a pattern just because "everybody's doing it."

MAYBE there has been too much talk. There has been too much emphasis put on the importance of being a smooth gal or a smart Joe in high school—strictly solid, on the ball, in the groove, and on the beam. You hear about it over the radio, see it in the movies, read about it in newspapers and magazines. The high school crowd is talked about as if a new race had sprung up, with new language, clothes, and customs.

High school fellows are depicted en masse as jitterbugging Donald O'Connors with bow ties and plaid sport coats, and all hep young gals, the strictly tickin' chickens, are supposed to look and act like pint-sized Betty Huttons, only louder and livelier. Grownups stand back amazed and mutter, "What's youth coming to?" and the fellows and girls stand back, equally amazed, and wonder who started it all! And who did?

It used to be that the four years of high school were just an educational phase between grade school and college; now, according to the story going 'round, a guy or gal as a freshman goes into another world and doesn't get back to this one until four years later!

If you're a typical slick chick high school gal these days you wear your hair long and well brushed with just a little curl on the end, a bow or a flower pinned at the side, hip-length sweater and knee-length skirt, thick wool socks, flat brown moccasins or brown and white saddle shoes with friends' names inked on the white leather.

You spend at least an hour a day after school or in the evening having cokes in a favorite drug store with the rest of the fag bags, talking about the shrewd dudes in the he-man department (smooth Joes to you).

You don't find much time for homework, but spend all week looking forward to Friday night jam sessions or to a date with your O. A. O. (that means one and only, and that's what the hep crowd call their current boy friends).

That's the pattern. Maybe you fit into it, maybe you don't, and maybe you'd rather not—thanks anyway, fellows.

And if you are a typical smooth operator of the Sinatra variety you go to school (10 minutes late) with pants cuffs rolled above the ankle, loud plaid shirts, bow ties, and two-tone jackets. You know the better versions of the little moron jokes, like to hang around juke box joints, and spend most of your time with a group of smooth Joes known as the wolf pack, banded together by mutual interest (i. e., gals). You like to talk about staying out till the whee hours of the morning, and your favorite expressions are presumably "Are you kiddin'?" or "What's buzzin', cousin?" And whether they're thinking of you or 10 other guys, that's the picture that's been conjured up today of the typical high school fellow!

All the guys and gals have been bunched together as smooth characters and corny characters—the smooth characters are usually those who wear the same clothes, do the same things, like the same music, talk the same way, and follow the same pattern that has been drummed up as being typically teen-aged. And the corny characters are usually those who find this teen-aged patter very interesting but still would rather be themselves, talking, dressing, and behaving as individuals rather than falling into line as just one of the mob. No matter what kind of sweet conversation has been handed out, the most important aim of every guy and gal is to emerge from high school as an independent, self-thinking individual!

Swing music is stimulating, jive talk is amusing, and boy-gal dates are wonderful—but don't let anyone talk you into believing that those are the only three things high school students have on their minds.

You might have other plans for your life. You may be a fellow who hasn't had time to learn to dance because he has a laboratory rigged up in his basement and has other important things to fill an evening. You may be a gal who would rather spend one quiet evening discussing books with some one who is interested than have her telephone jingling with six other Joes six other nights in the week. So think it over. Maybe there has been too much talk. Your life is your own, and you don't have to follow a pattern just because everybody's doing it. You're strictly new material—even a good guy or gal can get stuck in a rut when he thinks he's right in the groove.

Paris Never Gave Up

A Tribune Man's Story of 50 Months Inside Occupied City

By ROBERT SAGE

This is the first article of a series on life in Paris during 50 months of German occupation. The author, member of The Tribune's Paris bureau, was one of a handful of American men under [illegible] who spent the entire occupation period in Paris at liberty and without working for the Germans.

PARIS never really gave up. In the 50 months between the day the French tricolor came down from the Eiffel tower and the day it went up again, with the Stars and Stripes beside it, Parisians waited, hoped, lived as they could, endured what they must, stood in line for groceries, wore overcoats in their houses and offices in cold weather, learned the value of silence and "correctness" in the presence of the enemy, kept their mouths shut and their ears open.

During those four years I shared the daily life of the Parisians. I talked with them—in French, for I met few who knew English, or who dared speak it if they did. But they talked freely to me in their own language, freely and without fear, because I was an American. They knew Americans were their friends. Americans had saved them in the first World war; they had faitlf that they would be rescued again.

Now the Yanks are in Paris, and the Yanks are asking as many questions as they answer. They ask me what happened inside the captive city during those 50 months. Was it one continuous agony? Was it "as bad as Warsaw and Athens"? I do my best to draw the picture.

Nothing is entirely black or entirely white—tho it may be a pretty dark gray. It is true that a large part of the population did not tremble every time the doorbell rang. But it is also true that tens of thousands were persecuted—sent against their will to work in Germany, imprisoned, in some instances tortured and murdered.

If certain classes lived in luxury thruout the occupation, others were underfed, undersheltered, overworked. The worst of it for me was the way the city was cut off from the rest of the world. No mail from the United States, never an American newspaper, no magazines, no new books. But the radio was a lifesaver. We could not talk to America or to England, but we could listen to them.

Why the Germans permitted this, why they never made a house-to-house search to confiscate the radio receivers, was a question on which speculation was constant. The favorite guess was that the enemy, having his own propaganda to spread, decided to spare—for his own purpose—the means of listening. He did try to control the listening, so that German propaganda could be heard and the allies' broadcasts jammed out, but the effort soon became a complete failure. The allies used so many frequencies that a turn of the dial was enough to find a clear channel. So we did get the news. But we got no pictures.

We didn't know what Eisenhower looked like. We never saw a photograph of De Gaulle or a picture of a landing craft or a "duck." The first jeep I ever saw was driven by Germans.

What I did witness was the rebirth, under the surface, of the French nation, an incredible revolution. For Paris is France, and I was in Paris and I saw the process of change. France in the period between wars had gone to pot from bad politics, quarreling parties, easy living, and general apathy. German rule had a welding effect; under the heat and the pressure of it a new unity was created, an accumulating dynamism which was terrific. The pent power of it burst at the hour of liberation, and that was the hour the Yank forces saw with amazement when they came in.

They came into a deliriously happy, flag-decked city which welcomed them with kisses and flowers, tears of joy, and unrestrained laughter. Everybody was dressed up—in gay clothes which had been hidden away for this precise moment. Wine that had been reserved for "the day" was opened. Shoes with soles of real leather, kept idle thru years for this occasion, were dusted, polished, and worn. Women whose faces had been pale were now brightened with happiness and the last of their hoarded cosmetics. Their dresses were mostly old ones made over, but made chic with the magic of a bit of ribbon or a flower.

Paris danced that night, under difficulties. For four years the Germans had forbidden it, in public. There was no electricity for lighting. But Paris had to dance. So ancient kerosene lamps and acetylene torches were brought into service thru Montmartre and Montparnasse. In a few spots the light, very feeble, was made by hooking electric bulbs to storage batteries. One proprietor went wildly reckless and lighted his place with half a hundred candles—obtainable only in the black market at 60 cents each.

Champagne flowed—and many a Yank soldier spent a month's pay in a few hours, but he had the fun of initiating French girls in the latest American steps on crowded floors under flag-draped ceilings.

Not all of the night spots reopened, however. Thirty-seven of them, which had flourished under German management or which had catered chiefly to Germans, collaborators, and black market profiteers, were forbidden. The others were told by the police they could do business until 2 o'clock in the morning, providing they used no electricity. But nobody looked at the clock, and there was no ending of the merriment until the wine (or the money to pay for it) was gone.

Paris is reading newspapers again, real ones. The Parisians always have been great newspaper readers. The average man likes to read half a dozen of them a day, with contrasting political slants. Before the war there were several papers with circulations of more than 1,000,000, and one or two approached the 2,000,000 mark.

But thru the occupation, when the press was controled by Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels, the French read only one, knowing that the others were like it. All the "news" they contained was what could pass thru the Goebbels filter. The headlines were dictated by the Germans. So was the space allotment for each article, and the position it must occupy on the page. There was always a picture of a German soldier in action.

The first thing a Parisian did when he rose in the morning was to turn on his radio. In the early days of the occupation all he could hear aside from the German offering was London. Later, however, American broadcasts came thru. For the last two years there were news bulletins broadcast by the united nations from Algiers. And the French also tuned in Switzerland, especially for the weekly commentaries of Rene Payot.

Those who could not listen got the news from their friends who could, and it traveled fast. From personal experience I would say that the time it took for any important news item from the allied radio to become known thruout Paris was on the average between five and 10 minutes.

The French soon learned that in spite of all the rules issued by German or Vichy officials they were not going to be deprived of their radios. They did not even take the trouble to be secretive about it. I have walked along the streets and heard thru open windows the familiar "Yankee Doodle" signature tune of the American broadcast or the BBC's "Ici Londres."

Even the allied radio was not always a pleasant thing to hear. Sometimes it aroused hopes which were so long delayed in their fulfilment that despondency resulted. In the spring of 1942, when Paris first began to hear stories of the "impending invasion," many a listener, completely ignorant of the vast preparation which must be made for such a campaign, believed the landing would be made that summer. But the summer passed, and all of 1943 passed, and the invasion still was only a promise.

The disappointment was compensated by good Mediterranean news, but with "nothing happening" in the north, Paris was depressed, and the gloom was enhanced by Nazi propaganda, which insisted that invasion was impossible.

Then came 1944, and with it the "clouds of planes" that a French premier once had prayed for in vain. Vast fleets of bombers, American and British, were pounding French bridges, railroads, working tremendous destruction, but still no landings.

Parisians, discouraged by the long waiting and by the German propaganda which told them the promise of invasion was a bluff, began to wish the allies would leave them alone.

"If they're going to smash up the whole country without doing anything more," people said, "they might as well leave us the way we were."

But all this was forgotten on the historic morning of June 6 when the allied radio, instead of more promises for the future, burst suddenly and gloriously into the past tense—not "will land," but "have landed." From that day to the day, less than two months later, when liberation came, the loveliest music that reached the ear of Paris was the "Yankee Doodle" tune that heralded more news, all good.

Paris still listens, but now she also reads. There are 16 newspapers—frail, thin things, only two pages—and they cost 2 francs a copy. But they tell the news the way Paris wants it told—and you can read them openly, spread them out in a restaurant or at a sidewalk cafe.

Next Sunday—Fear, the specter of Paris.

FLINT
CUTLERY

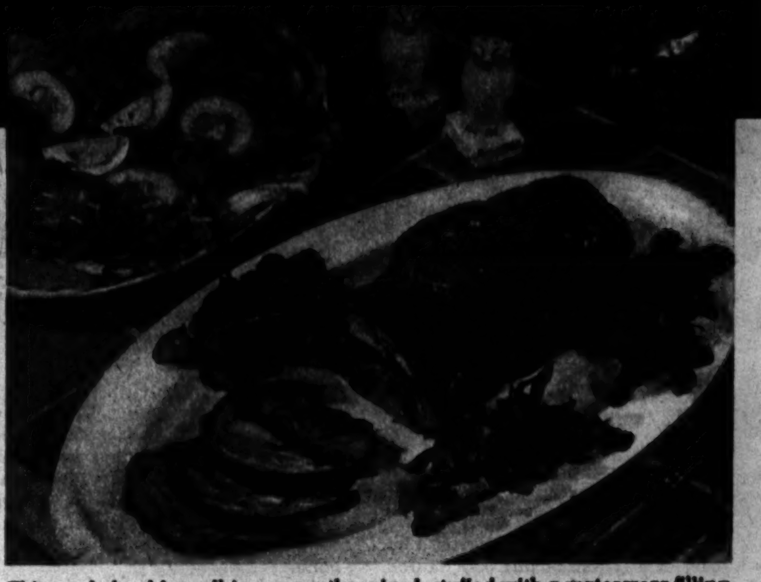
By MARY MEADE

HOMEMAKERS have become more versatile in cooking meats since old favorite steaks, roasts, and chops have become rarities. They've learned how to make delicacies out of cuts which formerly they wouldn't have purchased at all, perhaps. I've heard expressions of surprise and delight from several women with years of cooking experience upon preparing for the first time something like a pepper roll of veal. It's spicy and filled with a watercress dressing which helps to give it a gourmet flavor.

PEPPER ROLL OF VEAL

Shoulder of veal
Salt, pepper
1 bunch watercress
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 onion, finely minced
1 teaspoon chili powder
Few grains red pepper
½ teaspoon celery salt
1 quart boiling water
½ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon mixed pickling spice
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons drippings
½ cup dry bread crumbs

Have shoulder of veal boned at the market (keep bones for soup). Wipe meat with damp cloth. Spread open flat. Season with salt and pepper. Chop watercress rather fine, add minced parsley, onion, chili powder, red pepper, and celery salt. Spread this filling over cut side of meat and press flat. Roll like jelly roll, folding in any loose ends of meat. Tie in a firm roll. Cover with boiling water, add vinegar and salt. Tie mixed pickling spices into a cheesecloth bag and drop into the pan. Simmer, covered, for two hours. Remove meat from liquid, place in baking pan, and brush with drippings. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and then with salt and pepper. Bake about 45 minutes in 350 degree oven, until meat is browned. Remove strings before sending meat to the table. Make a sauce from cooking broth by thickening with flour-and-water paste and adding a teaspoon of sugar.



This veal shoulder roll is pungently spiced, stuffed with a watercress filling.

Another, simpler dish made with very ordinary meat, ground beef or lamb, is meat cups filled with "self-creamed" potatoes. The self-creaming is the result of cooking the potatoes in milk.

MEAT CUPS WITH CREAMED POTATOES
(Serves six)

¾ pound ground beef or lamb
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Combine ingredients. Line ungreased muffin pans with meat mixture about ¼ inch thick. Fill with creamed potatoes and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes.

Quick and easy to prepare are meat cups (ground beef or lamb) with creamed potatoes.

To prepare the potatoes, peel and dice six, place in a saucepan with 1½ cups milk, salt and pepper to taste. Cover and cook slowly about 20 minutes. Remove cover and cook until thick. Season and fill meat cups. There'll be more potatoes than you can use in the meat cups, so reheat them just before serving time and serve separately.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

STEAK PIE

1 pound round steak cut in cubes
¼ cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1/16 teaspoon allspice
¼ cup bacon fat
1 cup sliced onion
2½ cups hot water
3 cups raw potatoes, diced
1 egg or 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 cup flour
⅓ cup shortening

Roll meat in flour which has been mixed with seasonings. Brown in hot fat, adding onions when nearly finished. Add half the water, cover tightly, and cook 1 hour at low temperature. Add potatoes and cook until tender, about 15 minutes. (Carrots may be added with potatoes if desired.) Thicken if necessary. Stir egg into flour and shortening, mixed as for pie crust. If necessary add a few drops of cold water to dampen all of flour. Roll out into circle about ¼ inch thick and fit over meat (turn meat into a casserole if skillet cannot be used in oven). Cut several openings in pastry to allow escape of steam and bake in hot (450 degrees) oven until pastry is browned, about 20 minutes.—MRS. C. R. JOHNSON, 428 S. 15th av., Maywood, Ill.

Arabic, and Nagari), as "Water for Moslems" or "Water for Hindus." There's a noted mosque here, too, the so-called Golden mosque, and a noted Sikh godwara (temple). A ferocious looking guard stands before the godwara, his beard ragged, his long hair done up in a bun, like all Sikhs, who do not permit knife, scissors, or razor to touch their skin.

Between godwara and mosque stands the main kotwali (police barracks) of Shahjahanabad. Authority knew what it was doing by putting the kotwali just where it is. In times past there have been fine affrays starting from either mosque or godwara, between Moslems and Sikhs, the latter fundamentally of the Hindu religion.

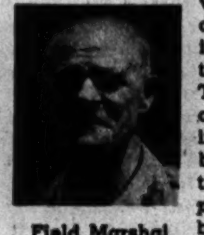
At the kotwali gates stands a permanent sentry who, besides his ordinary duties, keeps an alert eye both up and down the broad expanse of Chandni Chowk, looking for any Hindus who may be approaching the mosque with musical instruments, or for any Moslem who may be taking a kick at one of the numerous (and presumably ownerless) cows lying down on the sidewalk or roving across the street, oblivious of screaming ricksha runners, honking taxi drivers, and clanging tramway bells.

(NOTE: These are the two most frequent immediate causes of "communal" disturbances in India: Music in front of a mosque, or abuse of a cow. The deep seated causes are complicated, but certainly in part economic.)

In Shahjahanabad (Old Delhi) you can get a good idea of how the city dwellers of India live. In other cities — Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Allahabad, Jamshedpur— you will find only slight local differences. Here are the merchants, waxing relatively fat by shrewd bargaining and by merciless exploitation of their help. Here are ricksha runners, who make as much as two rupees on a good day. Here are swarms of little boys, baskets in their hands, who will follow any shopper for hours thru the bazars, putting each bundle in the basket, and then staggering under the total weight for miles to deliver it at the purchaser's house. For this they used to get one anna; now, with the prices consequent on "currency expansion," they ask for as much as three or four annas.

During the heat of the day, except in the relatively cool months of December and January, the discomfort of the people is extreme in these tiny shops — even tho one side is entirely open to the street — and in narrow lanes cluttered with filth, where a gutter of trickling putrid water represents the only drainage. When the sweltering breathless night closes down on them, they reach the extreme in human misery. From six to ten people crowd into each of the tiny rooms behind the closed shops or at the head of steep rickety slimy stairways. Men, women, and children are piled on each other — drenched in sweat, gasping for breath, harrassed by vermin.

Those who don't have even so humble a habitation simply lie down on the street or in doorways. They are certainly suffering no more than the others. The less poor often sleep out in the street, too, but bring with them their charpoys (low frame bedsteads with crisscrossed cord and rope as a mattress). The really fortunate take their rugs or charpoys out on a terraced roof, where they get a breath of any air which may be stirring.



Field Marshal Viscount Wavell

On its southeast side Chandni Chowk is bounded by open fields, which lie between the Old Fort and Delhi's gigantic mosque, the Jumma Masjid. Once these fields were covered with the mansions of the aristocrats who attended the courts of the emperors and of the last kings of Delhi. But after the Mutiny the British tore down all these rich stately houses to have a clean sweep for artillery and machine gun fire. The barren space is a constant grief and humiliation to the older families of Delhi. "What splendor stood here," they say, "when we were our own masters and Delhi was our own capital."

Those fields are also a constant reminder to the whole population not to get unconstructive ideas about the firmness or duration of British domination.

Beyond Shahjahanabad's southern walls, open spaces, some isolated public buildings, and rows of neat one story barrackslike houses for Delhi's horde of government workers blend into the third newest southernmost part of Delhi—New Delhi.

New Delhi is a city in itself, a city deliberately tacked on to another and older one. Its creation was decided in 1911, after the capital of British India was moved from Calcutta to Delhi. Serious work on it was undertaken only after World War I., and the government was able to move in completely only after 1931.

It is therefore a "planned" city, till now the world's most ambitious example of centrally controled urban architecture. Its thorofares are all wide and most of them well shaded, arranged to cross and converge on open spaces, such as those of Washington. It's all very logical; only the newcomer goes a bit daft trying to find his way around.

The tone is definitely "colonial" — long rows of bungalows, some of them palatial, and looking much like each other, stand in spacious gardens.

Far to the southern end of New Delhi stands the great groups of buildings which is the city's reason for being — the government. First you come to an enormous circular colonnaded building, in the red sandstone and granite scheme of the whole group. This is the council house, where meets the federal lower house — the legislative assembly, with 141 members, about one-third now in jail— and the upper house, the council of state, with its 60 members. Here also meets, at irregular intervals, the chamber of princes, which represents the collective interest's of India's 562 native rulers.

(NOTE: The figure given above is the latest for the number of "independent" Indian nobles, but this varies somewhat from year to year, partly because of reclassifications.)

Beyond the council house stand the twin blocks of the secretariat, where is done all the ordinary work of administering India. The corridors swarm with doormen, peons, messengers—all the hangers-on of such an institution, each one inordinately proud of having some sort of government job. A good number are ex-soldiers, veterans of campaigns fought for the oligarch race. Behind the doors you will find the babus, the ones who were able to pass the examinations and get a clerical job. Among them you find the white skinned masters who hold the key jobs and get the fat salaries.

Most of the south block of the secretariat is occupied today by general headquarters, the central administration of India's army, navy, and air force. Here the war

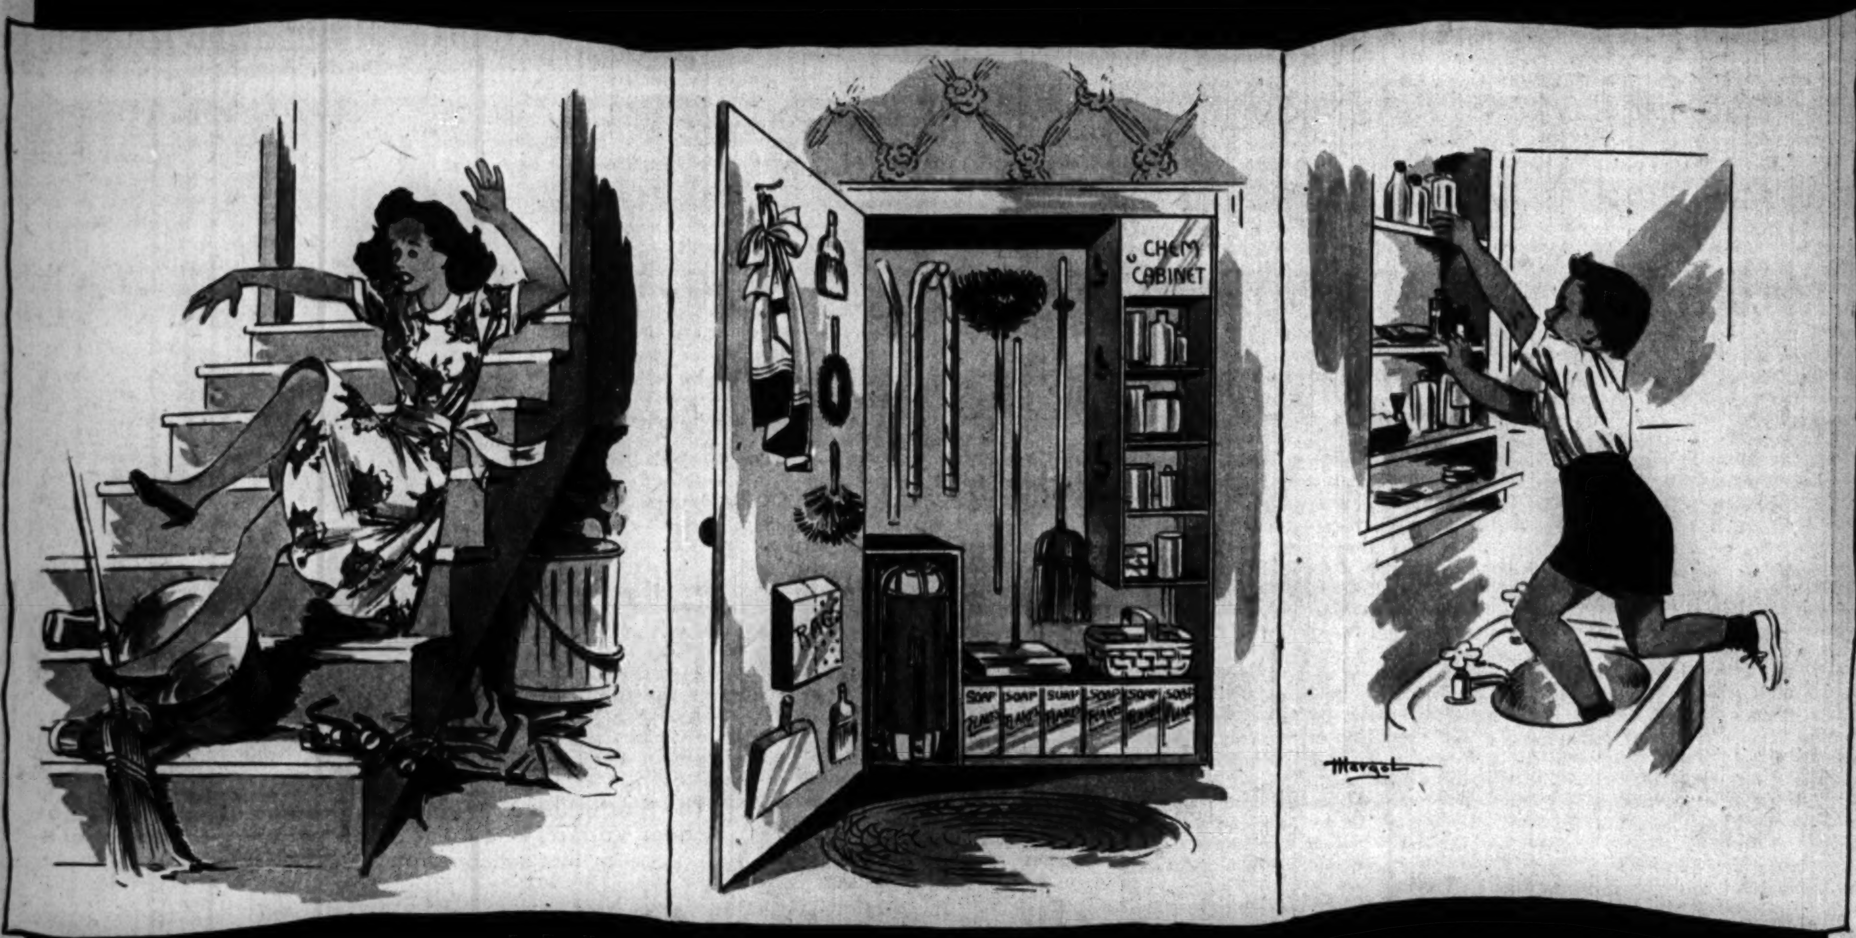
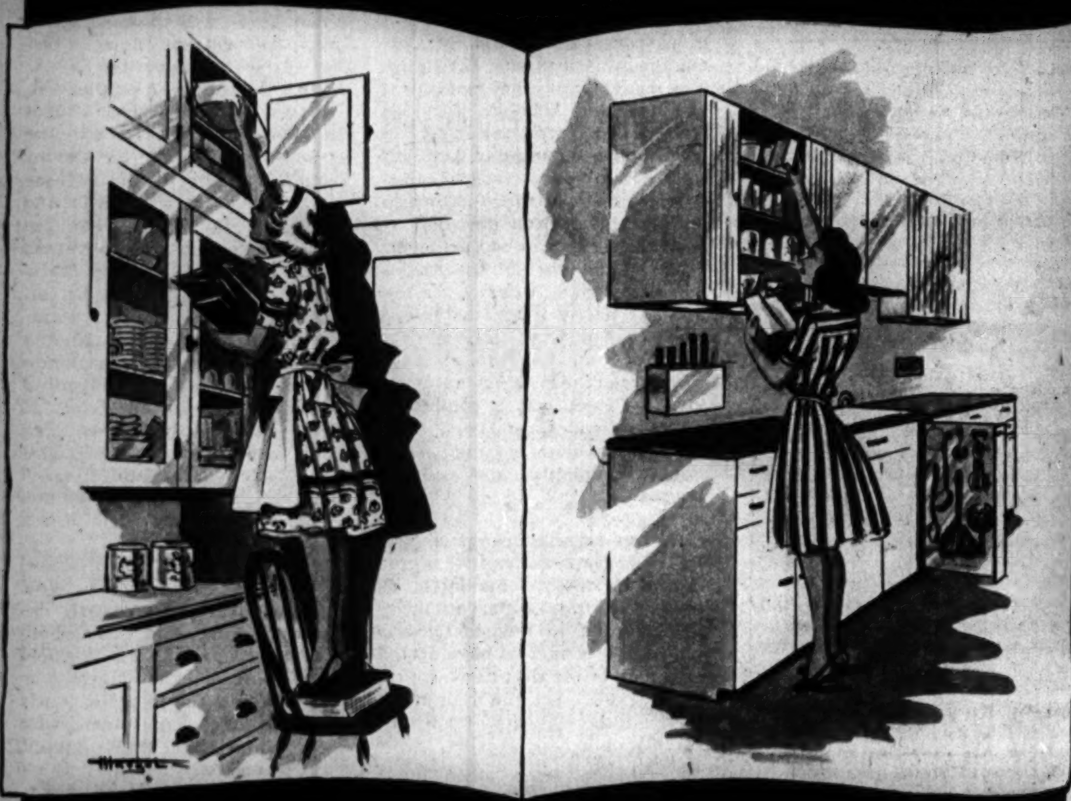
Making HOUSEWORK SAFE for Housewives

FATIGUE IN HOUSEWORK is not only disturbing to the well being of housewives; it's one of the greatest causes of household accidents, and the architects of the country are doing something about it in their plans for the post war home. During the annual national safety congress of the National Safety council a few days ago leading architects presented their ideas for designing out home hazards and building in safety in order to prevent as many as possible of the 32,500 annual home accident fatalities.

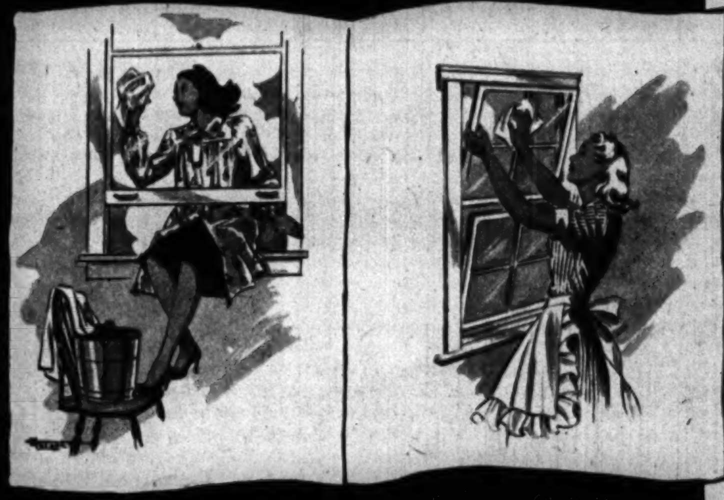
The sketches by Tribune Artist Margot on this page show some of the more important ideas that will be incorporated in that new home, be it small or large.

At left: Cluttered cellar steps, unprotected medicine cabinets are all too frequent causes of home accidents. The post-war house will have a compact storage cabinet such as that in the center, with hooks, shelves, or containers for all household maintenance items. A metal box will contain dust cloths (it's perforated for the oily ones); a secure cabinet for poisons such as insecticides will prevent childhood tragedies.



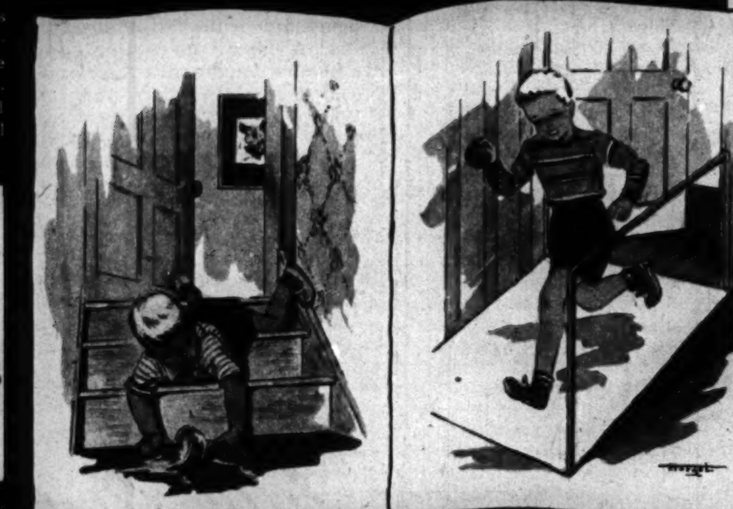


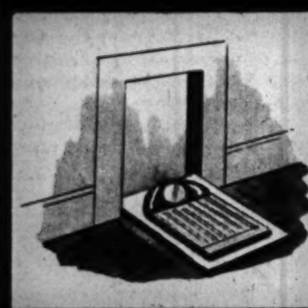
No more climbing on chairs to reach top shelves of kitchen cabinets. Tops of the new kitchen cabinets will be no higher than 6 feet 3 inches. Sliding or accordion doors will not bump housewifely heads. Built-in hanger for knives, inset lighting fixtures on bottom of cabinet, handy electrical outlets, and a sliding rack for bulky kitchen items will be featured.



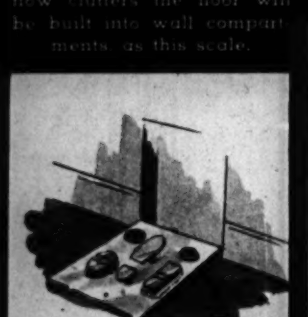
No longer will it be necessary to sit on the window sill to wash the outside of the glass. Windows will be made to tilt or swing inward so that they can be washed without danger of a bad fall. Falls annually account for about one half of the accident fatalities in the homes.

At right: Short flights of steps sometimes are more dangerous than long ones because they are less noticeable. They'll be replaced by small ramps. Longer flights will have sturdy handrails.





Bathroom equipment that now clutters the floor will be built into wall compartments, as this scale.



Shoe shining kits are another stumbling block that will be put out of the way.

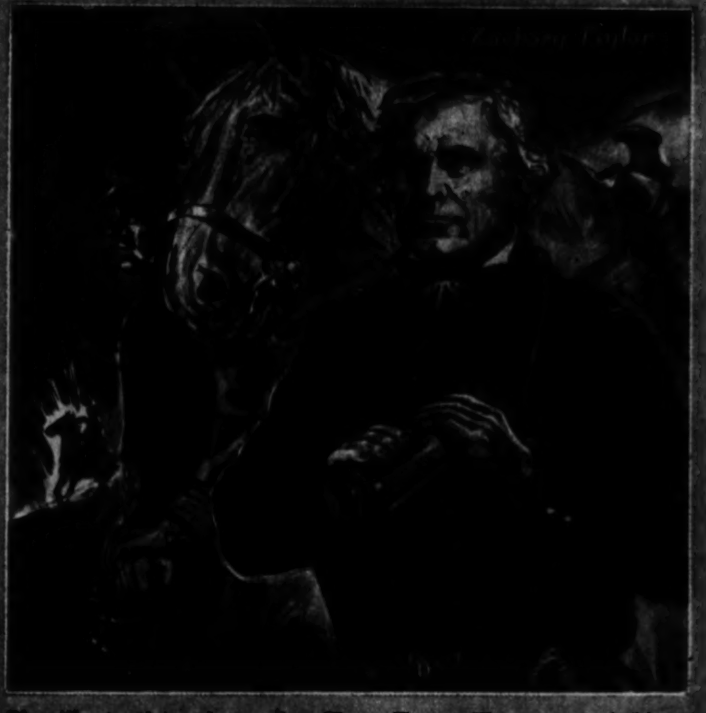
Romantic Figures of American History



The illustration above, by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Varnak, is another of the series appearing currently in this section with biographical sketches.

AN AMERICAN army of fewer than 5,000 men on Feb. 23, 1847, defeated a Mexican force of four times its number at Buena Vista, eight miles south of Saltillo, Mexico. On the American side the battle was fought for the most part by volunteer soldiers, some of whom fled from the field in panic, but the regular artillery and some other troops stood firm, and thru their gallantry and the inspiration provided by their leader victory was achieved.

The commander of the American army was Zachary Taylor, and the battle fought at Buena Vista ended that part of the Mexican war that was confined to the northern Mexican provinces. Taylor was a competent military leader, endowed with practical wisdom, common sense, honest simplicity, and resolute purpose.

He was born in Orange county, Va. Biographers cannot agree upon the date of his birth, as many as four different dates being found in various biographies. He is said to have stated once in a letter that he was born Nov. 25, 1785, but the date of his birth that appears upon his tombstone is Nov. 24, 1784. While he was still an infant the family moved to Jefferson county, Ky.

His first military service was in 1806, when he took part briefly in operations growing out of Aaron Burr's southwestern schemes. Two years later Taylor was commissioned a first lieutenant in the 7th infantry.

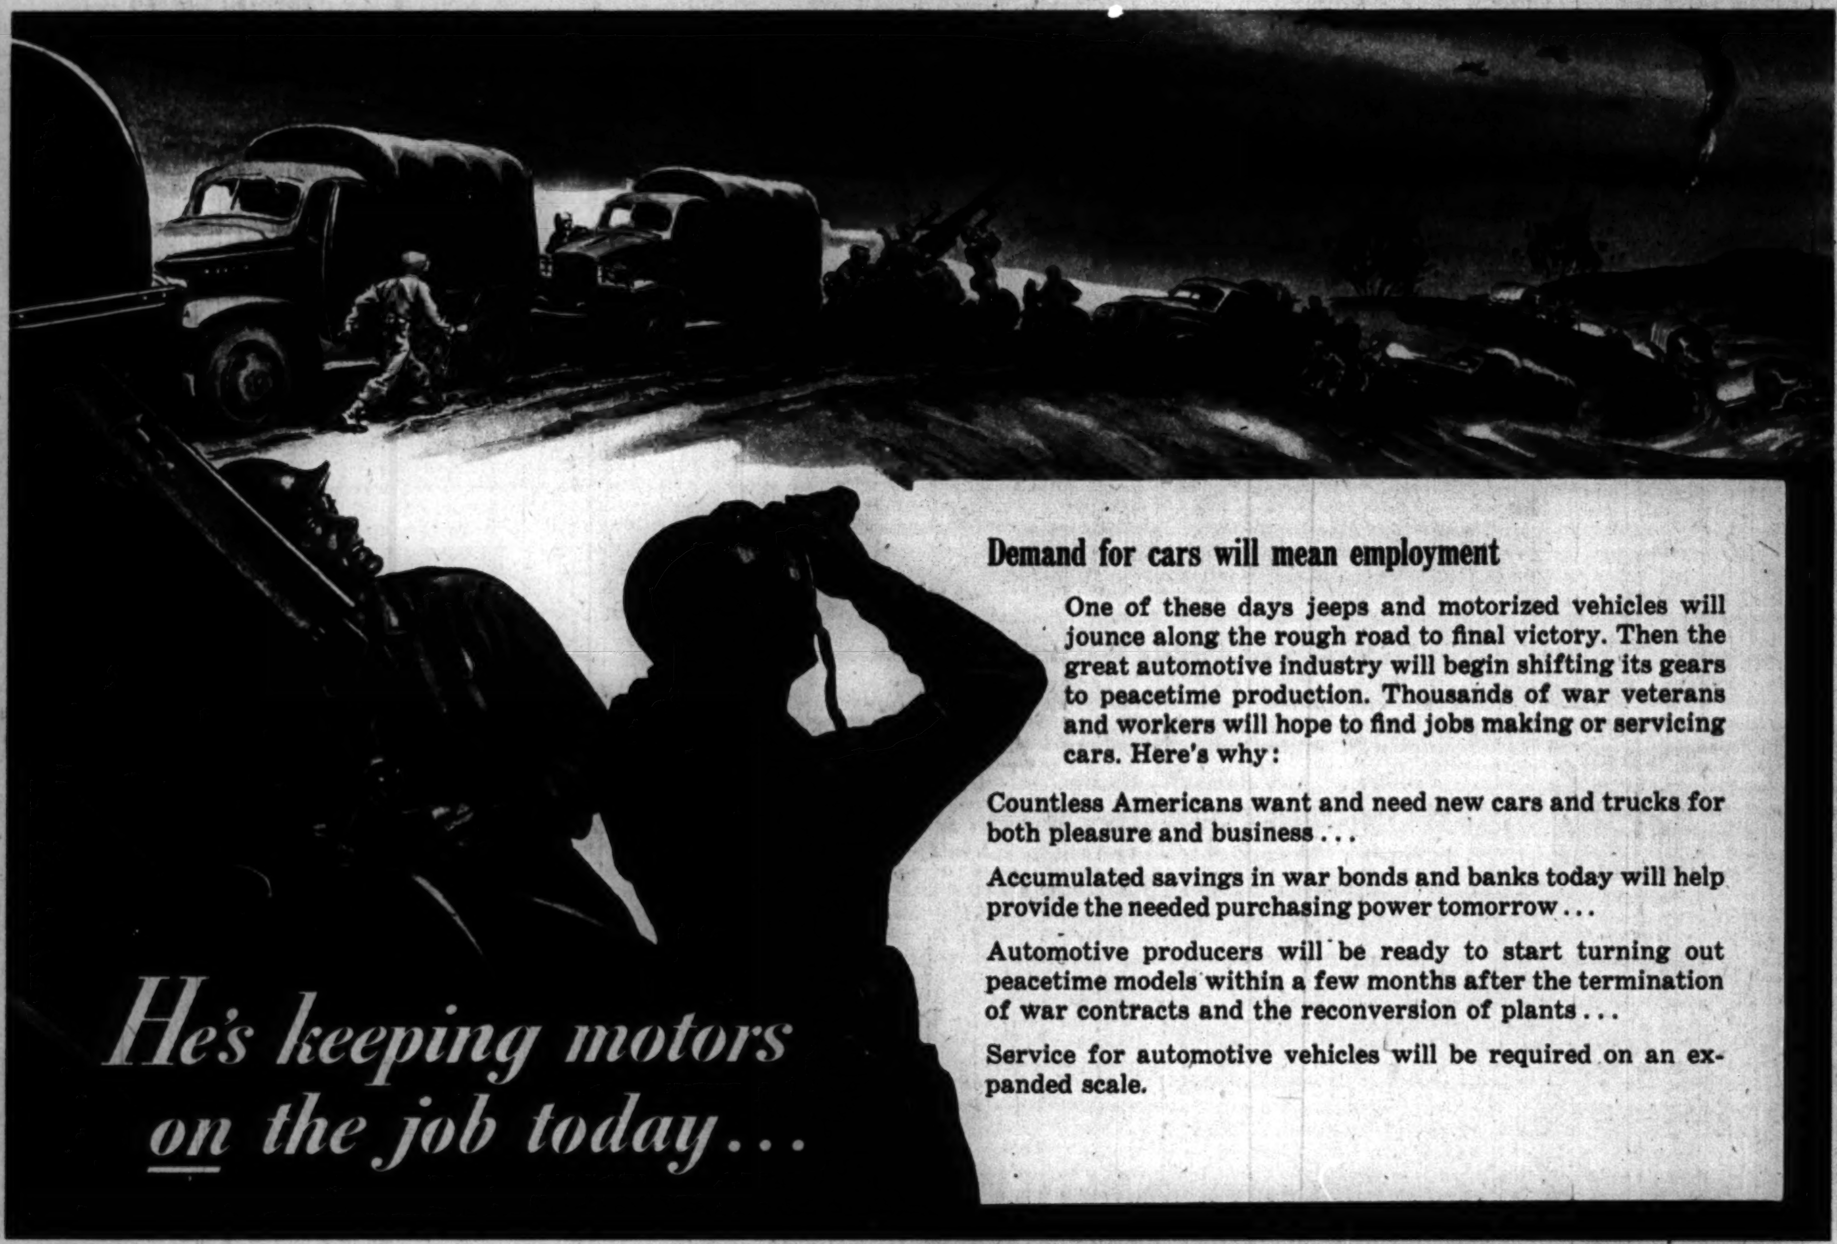
As a captain and later as a major he fought thru the Harrison Indian campaigns and the War of 1812. There then followed for him 20 years of garrison life routine, broken near the end by service in the Black Hawk war in 1832. At the outbreak of the Seminole war in 1837 Taylor, then an infantry colonel, was ordered to Florida. For three years there he fought the Indians, gaining promotion to the rank of brigadier general by brevet. Being ordered to Louisiana in 1840, he acquired a plantation at Baton Rouge. When Texas was taken into the Union he was sent there to protect its southern border.

With the outbreak of the Mexican war in the spring of 1846 Taylor found his base of supplies at Port Isabel menaced. Maneuvering to protect it, he defeated the Mexicans at Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma, both in Texas. The Mexicans retreated across the Rio Grande to Matamoras. In due time Taylor occupied Matamoras and established his base there. Now a major general as a consequence of his victories, he advanced upon Monterrey. On Sept. 24 (1846) Monterrey surrendered after three days of bitter fighting. "Old Rough and Ready," as Taylor had come to be known to his soldiers, was acclaimed a popular hero.

From Monterrey he advanced to Saltillo, reaching there Nov. 16. His army was greatly reduced not long after this to help provide troops for Gen. Winfield Scott's invasion of Mexico by way of Vera Cruz. Reluctantly Taylor took what forces were left to him back to Monterrey, but instead of remaining there he pushed southward again, meeting and defeating Santa Anna's army at Buena Vista. This battle ended Taylor's military career.

At the Whig convention in 1848 he was nominated on the fourth ballot over Scott, Henry Clay, and Daniel Webster. A split in the Democratic party insured his victory, and he was inaugurated President March 5, 1849. His service as chief executive lasted only 16 months—months marked by perplexing problems arising over the admission of new states, over the slave issue, and over charges involving members of his cabinet.

He was taken ill on July 4, 1850, and died five days later.



He's keeping motors on the job today...

Demand for cars will mean employment

One of these days jeeps and motorized vehicles will jounce along the rough road to final victory. Then the great automotive industry will begin shifting its gears to peacetime production. Thousands of war veterans and workers will hope to find jobs making or servicing cars. Here's why:

Countless Americans want and need new cars and trucks for both pleasure and business...

Accumulated savings in war bonds and banks today will help provide the needed purchasing power tomorrow...

Automotive producers will be ready to start turning out peacetime models within a few months after the termination of war contracts and the reconversion of plants...

Service for automotive vehicles will be required on an expanded scale.

Nickel, too, will be employed...in peace

Just as Nickel joins hands with steel and other metals to give Allied fighting men the finest battle equipment—so Nickel will help produce the peacetime trucks and cars that all the world will want.

Not only in the automotive field but in the other major industries, Nickel will be in great demand because of its ability to add toughness, corrosion resistance and other special qualities to metals.

Nickel and its alloys, including Monel, and Stainless Steel, will again turn to its peacetime purpose of helping to build better cars, homes, trains, tools and tractors—products that serve men and create employment.

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER PRESENTS STORY IN PICTURES OF THE NOVEL

"A TREE GROWS IN BROOKLYN"

ILLUSTRATED BY SCENES FROM MOVIE VERSION OF THE BEST SELLER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE Thru deserted side streets of Brooklyn walks lovable, unreliable Singing Waiter Johnny Nolan (James Dunn). No man ever loved his family more, gave them less than Johnny. In their tenement home facing the court where grows a scrawny tree the Nolans eke out an existence. Katie, his wife, bitter at his improvidence; Francie, his daughter, loving him dearly for his infectious good nature; Neely, his son, carrying on in the rough and tumble of life, distressed by his sister's love of books, loving her loyalty to him.

1 This time Johnny's footsteps take him home—sometimes he is gone for days after a successful night's work. Now he has a treasure of $3. He feels so good about it he offers Katie (Dorothy McGuire) his tips. Francie (Peggy Ann Garner) adores him even more and so does Neely (Ted Donaldson).

2 It's not always like this. Sometimes Katie and Francie and Neely have to play north pole, pretending they are polar explorers on short rations. Neely can't quite make the game seem real. His stomach doesn't appreciate whimsy.

3 Katie gets a break when the woman in the smaller apartment above them moves. She grabs it quick because the rent is less. And they'll get to keep the woman's piano until she can afford to have it moved.

4 One morning Officer McShane (Lloyd Nolan) has to help Johnny home. Pitying Katie, whom he loves, McShane tries to console her, only to have her thank him and assure him the Nolans need no help.

5 But a day comes when they do. Johnny goes on one of his "walks," and the family finds him dead in a hospital. "Pneumonia" is the official cause—pneumonia and alcoholism the real one.

6 At right: Johnny's death embitters Francie until she finds Katie is to have another baby.

7 At left: Comes Officer McShane one day to seek the hand of Katie. She knows that at the proper time she'll marry him.

8 At left: Aunt Sissy (Joan Blondell) has had a baby, too. When they can be out and around she and Katie take the kids out for a party. And Francie gets her first bid for a date! Neely is disgusted.

9 At left: Francie is so excited, feels so grown up, she says to her mother: "I've got a nickel, mamma. People leave tips. Can I do it?" Katie's thrifty soul urges her to say no, but her new happiness, her new bond with Francie, convince her that yes is the right, the happy word.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have long enjoyed your column, and it grieves me to note its brevity. But it grieves me even more to note the relegation to bit parts of that master actor, king of the jutting-jawed heroes, Kane Richmond. Please do this sad-eyed citizen the unforgettable service of printing a picture of this dashing, stalwart Irishman, and of telling me, if you are able, where I can obtain a photograph of him and if any better screen roles are in the offing for this handsome brute.

Kane Richmond

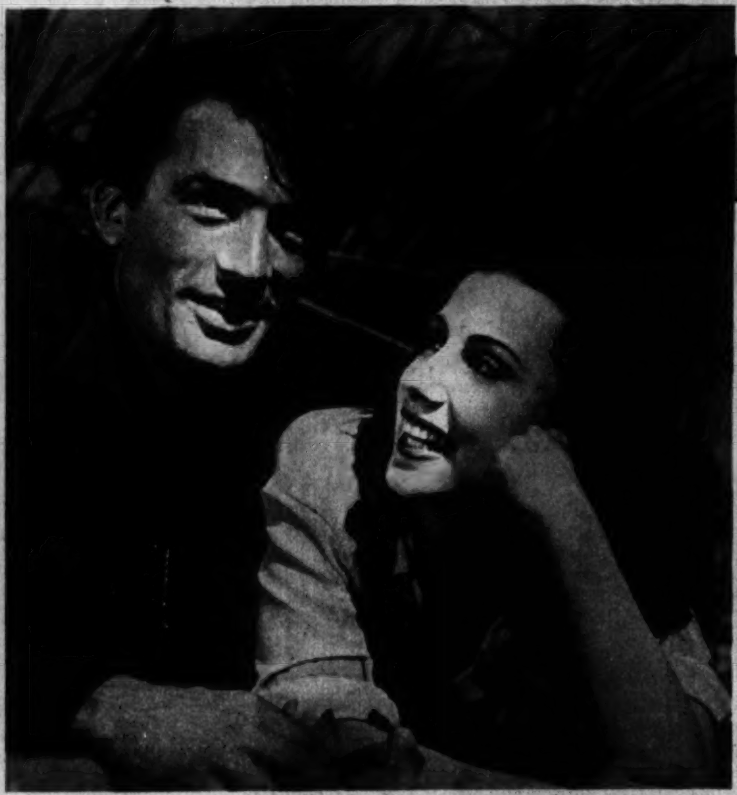
I hereby offer the wish that your column may long continue to be a joy and a blessing to those who cast eager eyes at the silver screen.

Most hopefully, R. J. G.

Dear R. J. G.: Kane Richmond was in "Ladies Courageous." Have you seen it? You can write him care of Universal, Universal City, Cal. In case he doesn't send a picture, here's one for you this bright Sunday morning. You're welcome. And thank you!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

ROMANCE BY THE PECK



It was with Tamara Toumanova in "Days of Glory" that Gregory Peck gained his first film renown.

(Copyright: 1944: The Chicago Tribune.)

Hollywood.

GREGORY PECK is the hottest thing in town. Some say he is a second Gary Cooper. Actually he's the first Gregory Peck.

Critics went all out about him in "Days of Glory"—but not the picture.

He co-stars with Ingrid Bergman in "Spellbound," which Alfred Hitchcock directed. He's the only male star except Gary Cooper whom Ingrid Bergman has ever been able to look up to. Peck is 6 feet 2. This lanky young man has not been built up by desperate Hollywood studios scurrying to alleviate the acute male shortage.

He's an amateur amateur magician. He can do three card tricks passably well.

Greg was a pre-medical student at the University of California when he took part in a school production of "Anna Christie" and decided to give up medicine and become an actor. He got his first real break in the Katharine Cornell play "The Doctor's Dilemma." That decided him to become an actor. But before that he was a member of the Barter theater in Abingdon, Va. He's still Bob Porterfield's best friend.

He was stroke on the Bear crew that rowed at Poughkeepsie in 1938.

Peck's first professional experience in showmanship was as a barker on the Midway at the New York world's fair. He lasted a month at that, then became a guide at Radio City.

In a contest he won a two year scholarship to the New York Neighborhood Playhouse. Between semesters he won the Barter theater award.

In "The House of Dr. Edwardes" Peck is the patient of a psychiatrist. He is being persuaded to rest.

Guthrie McClintic saw him in a Barter theater play and engaged him for the tour with "The Doctor's Dilemma."

Made his Broadway debut in "The Morning Star."

Played juvenile lead opposite Jane Cowl in "Punch and Julia."

Also played male lead opposite Martha Scott in "The Willow and I" and opposite Geraldine Fitzgerald in "Sons and Soldiers."

Received no less than a dozen motion picture offers before he accepted the RKO-Selznick contract with proviso that he do a play in New York once a year.

Gregory Peck's wife, Greta Rice, is a nonprofessional.

He is modest, intelligent, and conservative. He is prouder of his small son than he is of star billing. He's a collector of "how to bring up babies" information. He boasts that he pins a mighty neat diaper on his young son.

Greg says that if as an actor he has to have a hobby, the help shortage has fortunately provided one for him. He is a pretty fair and passably energetic gardener.

He laughs at himself as easily as he does at any of Hitchcock's famous quips.

He talks babies, gardening, and war with any of the crew who will listen.

With Alfred Hitchcock he discusses stagecraft and psychiatry.

Greta and Gregory Peck do very well without night clubs. Their favorite entertainment is visiting with half a dozen friends. Greg likes discussions—any subject.

He swims and rides, but his tennis is bad, and he's never mastered golf.

Since his arrival here 16 months ago Greg hasn't had much time for outdoor sports. Neighbors watch him take his exercise on Sundays when he mows his lawn, digs in the garden, and washes the car.

He's just a workingman with a pretty good job at something he likes to do.

Peck is a quick study. He learns a page of dialog merely by reading it thru twice.

He always had stage fright at dress rehearsals. This tenseness lasts several days of shooting on each picture.

He doesn't believe the "hoity-toity" attitude stage actors have toward the screen is justified. For his money some of the best actors in the world are right in this town.

He's under the spell of Alfred Hitchcock. Says, "It's a privilege to work under his direction."

Some day Greg hopes to play Frederick Henry, Hemingway's hero in "Farewell to Arms."

He'd like to do one rootin', tootin' western. His enjoyment of horseback riding has something to do with this ambition.

Greg has the greatest admiration for Edmund Gwenn and Barry Fitzgerald, also for Jimmy Cagney and Humphrey Bogart.

He also likes Ingrid Bergman—Claudette Colbert and Teresa Wright, too.

If in future pictures Greg encounters temperament he isn't going to be very sympathetic. "Miss Bergman," says he, "just goes into a scene and does a wonderful job without any fuss."

"The Informer" is the movie he'd most like to see again.

Gregory Peck grew up in La Jolla, Cal.

He could swim like a fish when he was 8. Every summer he built a boat, which seldom was seaworthy.

Young Greg secretly liked acting, but decided it was for sissies and girls.

During high school he avoided dramatics like the plague.

Greg's father was a druggist in San Diego. He'd always wished that he was a doctor. Greg had a great devotion to his father—still has. He decided that if his father thought doctoring was the ideal career, doctoring was for him.

Ingrid Bergman is the love interest in "The House of Dr. Edwardes."

At the University of California Greg's career in medicine ended with chemistry and calculus. He knew medicine wasn't for him long before he got to cadavers.

Acting was still on the sissy side in Peck's estimation.

Greg left school. Got a job driving a truck for the Union Oil company. Didn't like it, so went back to school. Then came the school production of "Anna Christie." With that one appearance he discovered he really liked acting.

When he finished school he left for New York armed with a letter from his father to a friend.

The friend got him the job as barker at the world's fair.

But he still liked acting better.

He applied for the job as a guide at Radio City. Then came his scholarship to the New York Neighborhood Playhouse, which was followed by the Barter theater award. And he was on his way up.

Peck says he could have saved himself lots of wasted effort if he'd recognized back in the fifth grade that acting was for him.

Now he loves it—and wouldn't you?

is being won by the usual bureaucratic process of filling out forms, and losing them in the files. A good section here is devoted to propaganda, called by its more genteel name of public relations. That's a story by itself, for selling this war to Indians requires that stalwart taste for practical jokes which only the British possess. Any people with a less ferocious sense of humor would falter at the task.

The western end of this block houses the political department, which is largely concerned with the delicate business of preserving smooth relations with the native princes. At present that amounts largely to seeing they come up to the scratch with handsome contributions to the war loans and any other fund which the viceroy may indorse, and also keep up the flow of recruits from their domains. In one office here will be found a particularly slick merchant of the hands-across-the-sea, blood-thicker-than-water type. He peddles his wares to any one who will listen to him and pays particular attention to stray Americans. He wants them to get the proper idea of the way things are managed in India. Above all, he wants them to know that Indians dearly love their masters from the western world, with the exception of some eternal malcontents like Gandhi, who are in jail anyway, where they deserve to be.

This pillar of imperialism is a good living example of why the British empire works and gets itself such a good press even from those who ought to know better. He has spent much time in Washington, saying just the right things in the right tone to the right people. He is familiar with New York, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, and every big American city out to the Pacific coast. He has out-snobbed the snobs and been ingratiatingly chummy with the roughnecks.

From his office in the secretariat at New Delhi he continues the good work with a considerable measure of success. Thanks to him, for instance, many American correspondents not only sent out the official story of the disturbances of August, 1942, following the arrest of Gandhi and the whole all-India congress committee — they could not have sent anything else — but actually believed it. One of his specialties is playing off representatives of the right thinking American press against those whose newspapers think unconstructively.

Closing the perspective of this group of buildings at the west is the most important and imposing of all — the viceregal lodge. It's a facetious name for a dwelling which in bulk makes the White House of Washington look like a simple cottage. Here lives and reigns the viceroy and governor general, personal delegate to the king emperor and parliament at Westminster, accountable to no one but them, one of the few remaining despots of the world who rules at his good pleasure.

The present viceroy, Field Marshal Viscount Wavell, is said to be less authoritative, more open-minded, and less convinced of the necessity of pompous display than his predecessor, the marquess of Linlithgow, who retired in October, 1943. Perhaps so; but thus far there is no indication that he holds anything but the familiar view that the place of Indians in the world is to carry the white man's burden.

This group of government buildings, by its mass, is imposing, but its domes and neo-classical colonnades speak of no relation to India. It might as well be in London, Washington, Chicago, Berlin, Moscow. From its three flagstaffs wave three enormous Union Jacks, defiantly flinging out Churchill's message, "We mean to hold our own."

The best comment on this group of enormous showy buildings is attributed to Clemenceau. He had been taken far out into the plain, where for miles lie the ruins of the successive cities which were Delhi. Last he was shown these new government buildings, then being put up. "These," said the old Tiger, "will make the finest ruins of all."

From one end to the other, from the northern limit of Civil Lines to the airport, which lies at the extremity of New Delhi, is a distance of about eight miles.

Next Sunday — I succumb to the bearer system.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

This well disciplined Doberman pinscher spurns a handful of food offered him by a stranger. Many dogs trained for civilians also are taught this lesson.

ALTHO HIS DOG is traditionally man's best friend, a dog owner may unintentionally be his pet's worst enemy. This unusual situation arises from misfeeding — the feeding of foods which are not wholesome and which often are definitely harmful.

That nutritional disease due to misfeeding is the number one dog disease of the country has been determined by veterinarians. More than 1,200 veterinarians were asked to name the three commonest dog ailments or diseases. On the basis of 569 replies it was learned that nutritional disease is number one. It's a greater menace, said the vets, to the dog's health than even distemper or worms.

This is rather surprising, because for years it has been supposed that distemper was the foremost threat to dog health. But in this survey distemper was placed only third. Internal parasites were listed by 234 veterinarians replying to the questionnaire as the second most serious health threat to the well being of the average dog.

Today it's easier to feed a dog correctly than ever before, because scientifically prepared dog foods are available to practically all owners. If the owner will rely on one of these well balanced feeds which contain just about everything a dog needs he can be sure that his pet is going to be well nourished. These feeds when mixed with milk are excellent for puppies, too.

Rickets, skin troubles, and many other ailments may be the lot of the dog that is being given a faulty diet. A short time ago we examined a 6-week-old puppy that was a good example of what happens to a young dog when it is not fed enough nourishing food or the right kind of food. The first thing we noticed when the pup was placed on a high box was that it was down on its hind legs, indicating that it hadn't been getting enough calcium to develop adequate bone growth. Its coat was bad and its eyes anything but bright and sparkling.

To get the contrast between a well fed, healthy pup and one with a poor start we placed a specimen of the same breed, raised by an experienced breeder, next to this sad looking little 6-week-old dog. The one that had been raised by a smart kennelman, getting four meals a day, plenty of milk, cod liver oil, some meat, and scientifically prepared dog foods (with adequate vitamin content), had a beautiful coat. It was a roly-poly, lively pup. Its legs were well boned and it had five times as much pep as the other 6-week-old.

One day we visited a veterinarian who had just brought in a young dog which had suffered a fit and almost wrecked a small apartment, while scaring the owners almost out of their wits.

It was the old story so far as this was concerned. The owners had been feeding it so many vegetables that one might think they were keeping a rabbit instead of a dog. The veterinarian kept the animal for several days, gave it plenty of milk, meat, and prepared dog foods, started it on cod liver oil, and then gave the owners their dog and a regular feeding schedule to follow—one which would nourish the animal and enable it to grow up into a strong, normal dog.

This complete kitchen unit—electric stove, sink and refrigerator—for small homes was designed by JOHN TJAARDA & ASSOCIATES, internationally known Detroit industrial designers. It is one of a series presented by Defoe to show postwar designing trends.

ON LAND as on the Sea

The navy-smart air and snug appearance of the prefabricated kitchen unit shown above prove that the space-saving efficiency of marine design is just as effective for homes on land as on the sea . . . Defoe presents this design as an example of how American industry will improve living standards, promote the nation's prosperity . . . and create postwar employment. Today the only thought of nearly 4,000 workers, here at Defoe, is building battleworthy ships for the Navy. But when the Axis is defeated, the same competitive spirit and craftsmanship that have set records in producing for Victory will be reflected in the quality and value of whatever Defoe may build to serve peacetime America.

BUSINESS MAN REGAINS HEARING

EDWARD D. WILK after short retirement again enters business field.

Edward D. Wilk, well-known sales promotional executive, was compelled to retire from an active business career because of a progressive hearing loss, and remained in retirement for some time.

Today, because of a miracle of modern science, he is again an active, energetic, driving executive. Mr. Wilk says:

"When I realized fully that I was becoming progressively deaf, I tried everything in a frantic attempt to regain my hearing—all to no avail.

"Then just as I thought that everything was lost, science came to my assistance. My eyes widened in startled, joyful amazement, for the first note of a new horizon of hearing burst on my consciousness and I realized with a sweep of emotional ecstasy that I could hear again. With this realization came a decision to aid the many millions of those who, like myself, have been on the brink of despair, that they might rehabilitate themselves as I did and again be useful to society."

Mr. Wilk has written a booklet which he calls "HE WHO HATH EARS LET HIM HEAR." This booklet is dedicated to the hard-of-hearing and brings them inspiration and hope. It is free; it will be sent in a plain wrapper to any one addressing E. D. WILK, Suite 1602, 6 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Doctors Prove 2 out of 3 Women can have More Beautiful Skin in 14 Days!

14-Day Palmolive Plan tested on 1285 women with all types of skin!

"My complexion had lost its soft, smooth look," says Miss Dorothy Hanson of San Francisco, Calif. "So I said 'yes' when I was invited to try the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan—along with 1284 other women of all ages—from fifteen to fifty! My group reported to a San Francisco skin doctor. Some of us had dry skins; some oily; some average. After a careful examination, we were given the Palmolive Plan to use at home for 14 days.

"Here's the proved Palmolive Plan: I washed my face 3 times a day with Palmolive Soap. Then—each time—for a full 60 seconds—massaged onto my skin Palmolive's lovely soft lather, as you would a cream. Then rinsed. This cleansing massage brought my skin the full, beautifying effect of Palmolive's lather. After 14 days, my doctor confirmed what my mirror told me—my skin was fresher, smoother, less oily! You must try this wonderful plan."

YOU, TOO, may look for these skin improvements in only 14 days!

- ★ Brighter, cleaner skin
- ★ Finer texture
- ★ Fewer blemishes
- ★ Less dryness
- ★ Less oiliness
- ★ Smoother skin

- ★ Fresher, clearer color

All 36 doctors proved that 2 out of 3 of all the 1285 women who tested the Palmolive Plan for you got many of these improvements in 14 days. Now it's your turn! If you want a complexion the envy of every woman, start this new proved way of using Palmolive Soap tonight. In 14 days, you, too, may look for fresher, brighter, lovelier skin.

That's why many favorite products in cans are missing from your dealer's shelves. They'll be back —after Victory. New improved cans, developed by research and tested by battle, will serve America. Meanwhile, please use wisely, without waste, all items in cans. Turn empty cans in for salvage!

1. SAFETY: Happy eating for the family when Mother serves soup! And the steel-and-tin can protects fine soups against air, light, loss of flavor. Food cans are sterilized in the canning process—so there is no safer container for any unused portion! Simply cover and refrigerate.

2. ECONOMY: Wise shoppers know the can is a real friend of the family budget. Because the can itself is easy to make, fill, ship, and handle. No wonder that the can is the preferred container for some 2,500 products normally packed in cans by over 135 industries!

3. QUALITY PROTECTION: Good cooks praise the air-and-light-tight can that gives lasting protection to flavor, color, vitamins, and minerals. Canned foods frequently retain more vitamins and more minerals than do many foods bought in market and cooked at home.

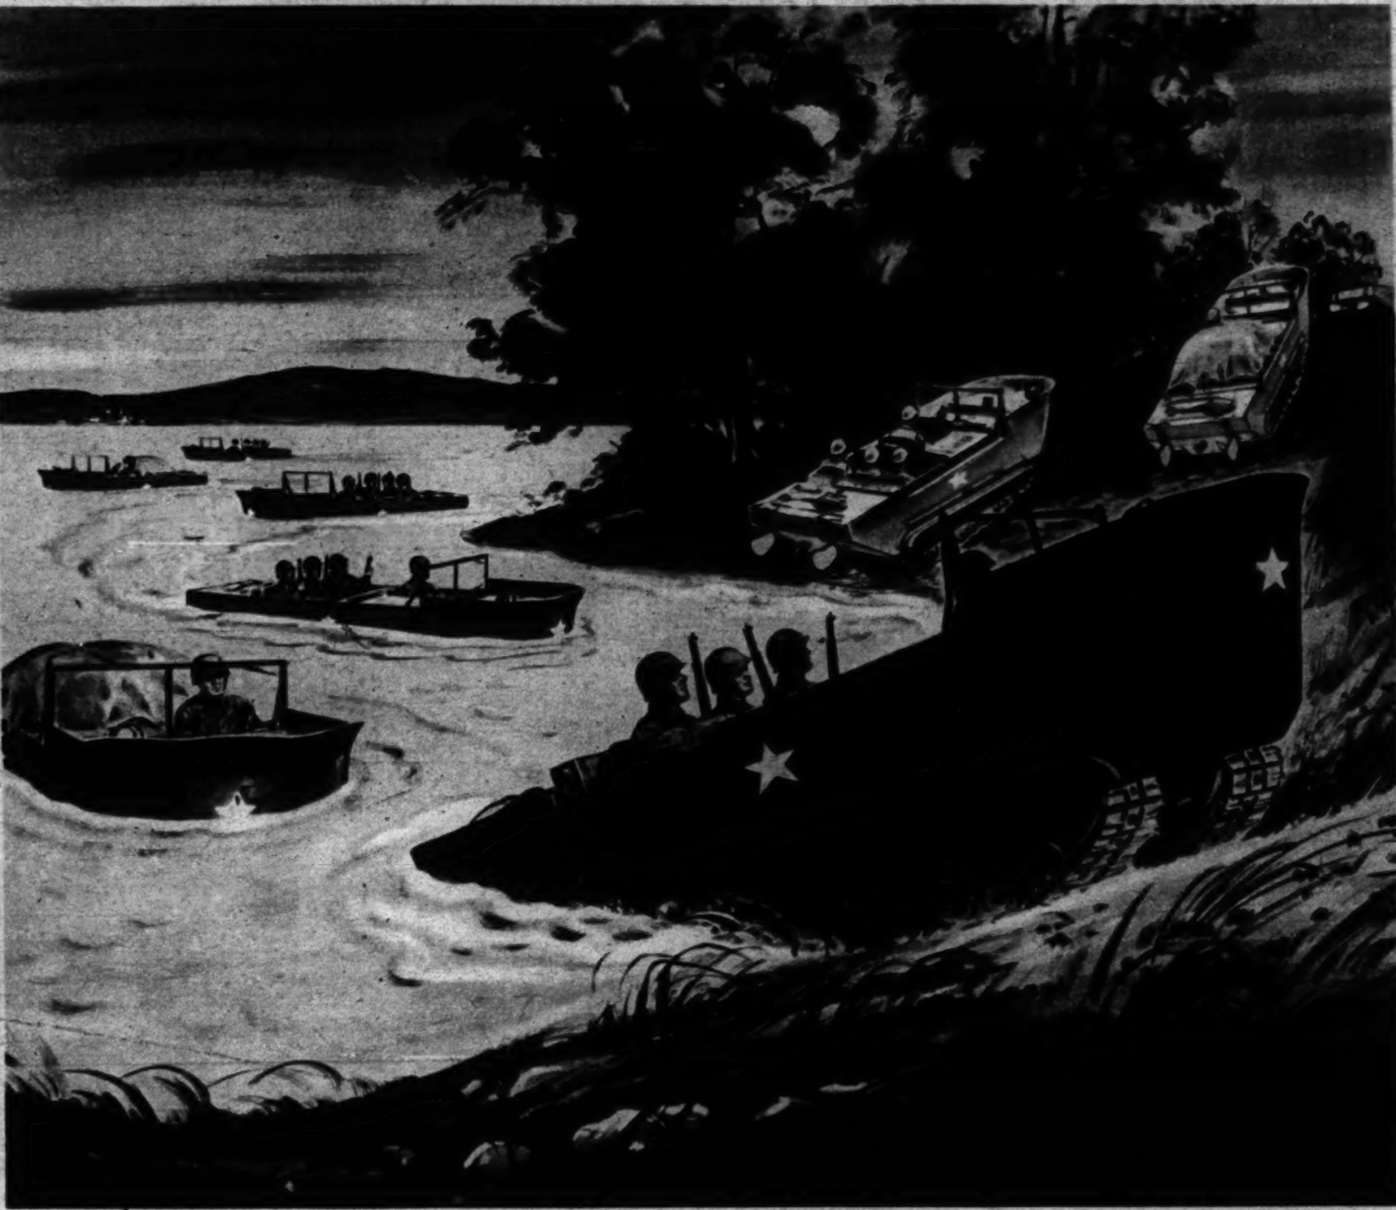
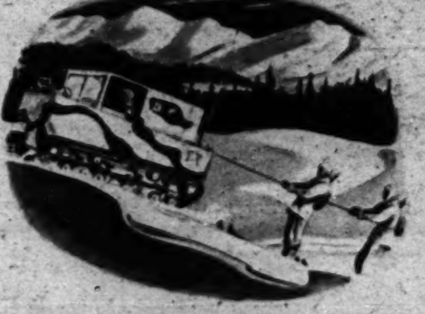
Amazing new war vehicle travels in water ...glides like a ghost over swamp or sand



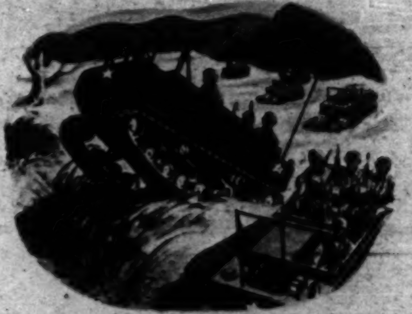
Army's latest Weasel M-29C

Built by Studebaker and powered by famous Studebaker Champion engine

HERE'S a brand-new example of the teamwork of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, the War Department and Studebaker engineers . . . It's the latest model of the Army's versatile track-laying vehicle known as the Weasel . . . This new M29C is just as much at home in water as it is on sand, mud, swamp or solid ground . . . It not only propels itself in deep water, fully loaded, but it also clambers up and down steep, slippery banks with amazing ease . . . This new Weasel M29C is built by Studebaker under contract with the Ordnance Department, Army Service Forces. It's powered by the famous Studebaker Champion engine . . . It adds another important unit of war production to a Studebaker list that includes Studebaker-built Wright Cyclone engines for the mighty Boeing Flying Fortress and heavy-duty, multiple-drive Studebaker military trucks.



Deep snow doesn't faze the Weasel—Camouflaged like the crafty animal for which it's nicknamed, this M-29 model is almost invisible as it glides swiftly and noiselessly over seemingly impassable winter terrain.



Sure-footed even on shifting sand—The Weasel, with its Studebaker Champion power and flexible, rubber-padded tracks, has an uncanny ability to get through places where many other war vehicles would bog down.

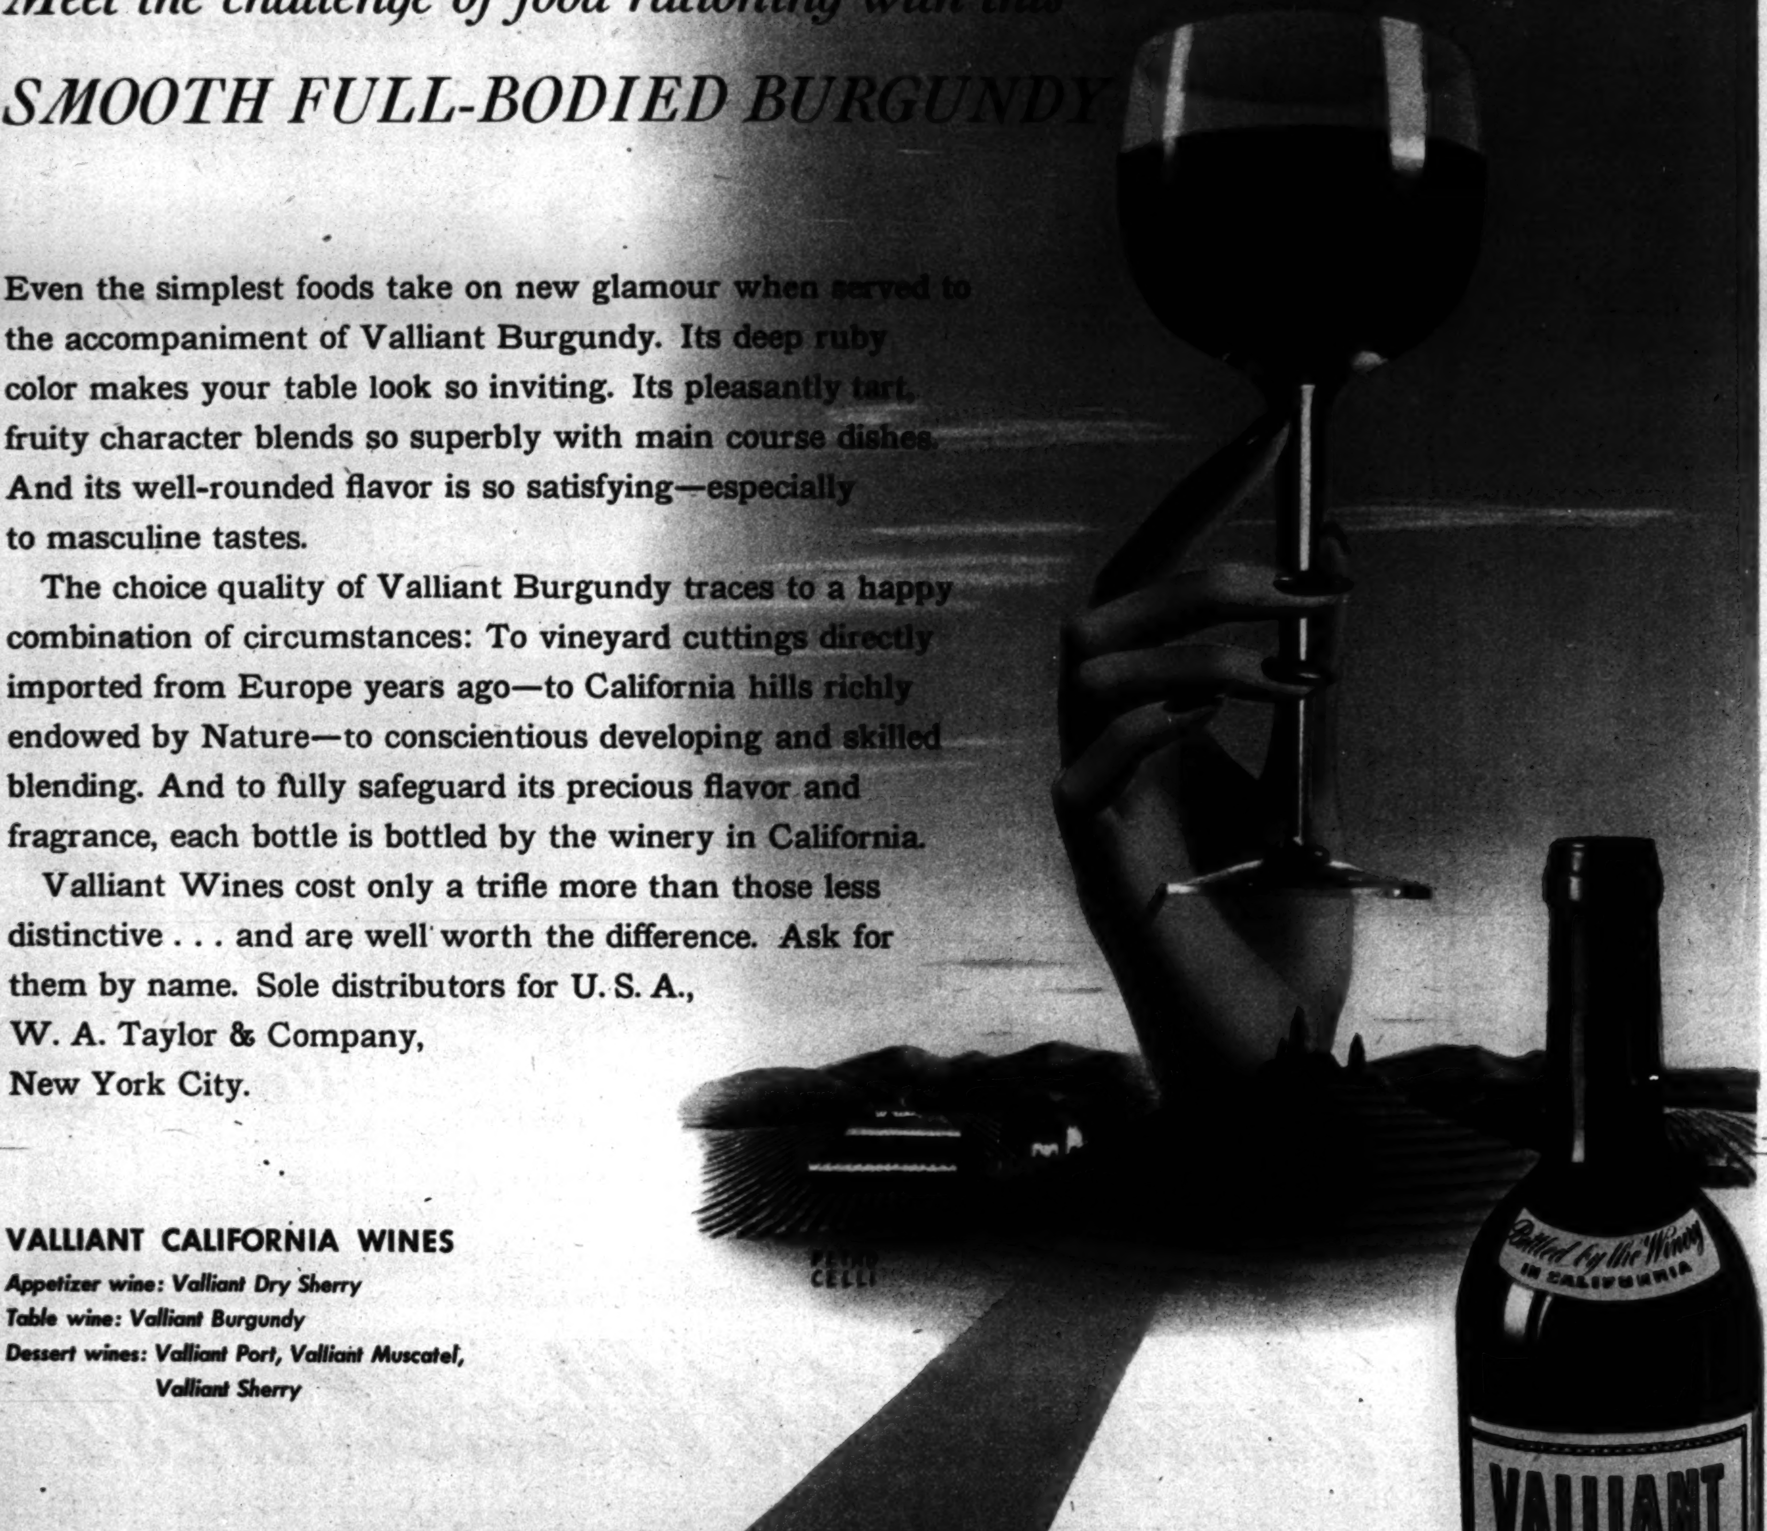
SMOOTH FULL-BODIED BURGUNDY



Even the simplest foods take on new glamour when served to the accompaniment of Valliant Burgundy. Its deep ruby color makes your table look so inviting. Its pleasantly tart, fruity character blends so superbly with main course dishes. And its well-rounded flavor is so satisfying—especially to masculine tastes.

The choice quality of Valliant Burgundy traces to a happy combination of circumstances: To vineyard cuttings directly imported from Europe years ago—to California hills richly endowed by Nature—to conscientious developing and skilled blending. And to fully safeguard its precious flavor and fragrance, each bottle is bottled by the winery in California.

Valliant Wines cost only a trifle more than those less distinctive . . . and are well worth the difference. Ask for them by name. Sole distributors for U. S. A., W. A. Taylor & Company, New York City.

In the Ford kitchen . . . this little trial engine sputtered into life

IT HAPPENED far back—in the very early 1890's. In the kitchen of his Detroit home, a young engineer, named Henry Ford, was testing a principle of the internal combustion engine.

His apparatus, clamped to the kitchen sink, was a piece of one-inch gas pipe, reamed out for a cylinder—the flywheel, a handwheel from a lathe. Gasoline was fed from an oil cup. A wire connected to the kitchen light furnished the spark.

He spun the flywheel. Flame came from the exhaust, the sink shook and the trial engine was running under its own power. Mr. Ford was satisfied. He put the engine aside. It had served its purpose. His idea was proved.

But he did not stop to applaud himself. "The man who thinks he has done something," Mr. Ford once said, "hasn't even started." His mind was already stirring with thoughts of a new and larger engine for transportation use.

Just ahead lay the pioneering which was to produce the Ford automobile of worldwide use. Ahead lay the creation of the first industrial assembly line, hundreds of inventions and improvements, the building of 30,000,000 low-cost motor cars and trucks to serve the needs of all the people.

Today, at Ford Motor Company the pioneering still goes on. New methods, new materials, new devices are continually being developed. You rarely hear about them, because Ford assignments now are military.

But one day the story of this modern pioneering can be told. It will be told, you may be sure, through the medium of Ford, Mercury and Lincoln cars so advanced in both style and engineering that new millions will seek to own them—for comfort, for smartness, for reliability, and for economy.

A distinctive long dinner dress in which black crepe is combined with ice blue satin that simulates a bustled bolero. Black sequins in snowflake design decorate the satin. The long, wrinkled gloves are of blue satin; a tiny chou of feathers makes a trifle of a hat. The designer, Eugene Jankus of Woodhaven, N. Y.

The designer of the costume portrayed on Page I is Saul Schwartz of New York, N. Y. This cape suit of blue wool has for definite contrast the strongly striped lining of wool in three colors. The rather long cape is one cut with the fitted, long-sleeved jacket; the skirt is severely slim and straight. A turban of the striped wool combined with the blue completes the costume.

A daringly-cut, long dinner dress of pale beige colored, clinging crepe fastened at the back with a row of covered buttons. The dashing short coat is of brown tweed combined with black satin. Black satin and beige colored bands in diagonal lines make the very effective lining contrast. The designer, Norman Edwards of New York, N. Y.

"Next to those Sunday drives in the country–
I MISS dreft MOST!"

...dreft works wonders no soap can do for silks, woolens, dishes!

"I miss dreft for dishes
IT MAKES EVEN GLASSES SHINE WITHOUT WIPING!"

IT'S TRUE! . . . No soap ever made can perform the dishwashing miracles that Dreft can! It makes dishes positively gleam without wiping. For Dreft leaves no streaks or cloudiness the way soaps do. Gets even glasses so clean they sparkle—without touching a towel to them!

UNCLE SAM COMES FIRST

Special materials used in making Dreft are urgently needed now by Uncle Sam. Of course we are glad to cooperate—glad to lend every aid to today's big effort. That is why Dreft very likely is not on your grocer's shelves at present. For Dreft is different from soap—made from different materials. It is these materials that are needed today.

Rather than disappoint you by using substitute materials we've suspended the making of Dreft temporarily. For there can be only one Dreft—and inferior materials could never give you the wonderful benefits Dreft gives. So please understand. Soon, we hope, Dreft will be back again on your grocer's shelves. Watch for it.

"AND I miss dreft for lingerie
IT KEEPS COLORS SO MUCH FRESHER THAN SOAP!"

IT'S TRUE! . . . Dreft is as gentle to wash colors as pure drinking water. Keeps them fresh far longer than even the finest soap flakes. And Dreft leaves none of the deposits that all soaps leave. That's why stockings washed with Dreft look so much sheerer—and why precious new woolens wash softer and fluffier than with any soap you've ever used.

ONLY
will you find the exact qualities that make Dreft unique. These ingredients are now helping Uncle Sam, and therefore there can be no Dreft—but watch for its return.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR

RED squirrels are not very good neighbors. They are mighty mischievous and they are often rude to peaceful gray squirrels. Red squirrels have been known to rob birds' nests of their eggs and to have destroyed young birds, but Nick, who lived near the Teenie Weenie village, was a most respectable squirrel.

When Nick moved into the neighborhood of the Teenie Weenie village the little people were rather alarmed, but they soon found out that he was very peaceful and attended strictly to his own business. The Teenie Weenies made friends with him and that friendship has been helpful to both the little people and the squirrel. Nick helps the Teenie Weenies gather nuts for their winter's supply of food and the Teenie Weenies help Nick to get in his supply of nuts. Once when a hunter shot Nick the Teenie Weenies took care of him.

When nuts are ripe Nick and the Teenie Weenies spend many days laying in a supply. Nick climbs the trees and bites off the nuts, which fall to the ground, and then the Teenie Weenies roll them onto a sled. The Teenie Weenies have made a harness of strong froghide to fit Nick and the squirrel pulls the nuts home. Before Nick made friends with the Teenie Weenies he had to carry each nut in his mouth to his storehouse, but now he can pull ten or twelve nuts in the sled.

One morning Nick and the Teenie Weenies set out to gather their winter's supply of nuts. The Turk hitched Nick up to the sled and then a number of the little men climbed in and the squirrel pulled them to a walnut tree which was full of nuts. Nick climbed the tree and soon the nuts came falling to the ground as the squirrel cut them off with his sharp teeth.

The Teenie Weenies and the squirrel worked hard all morning and they loaded several sleds full before noon. At lunch time the cook brought an acorn basket full of frog ham sandwiches, a hazelnut baking dish full of corn pudding and a bucket of hot Teenie Weenie tea. The cook hadn't forgotten Nick, either, for he brought half an English walnut shell full of baked lima beans, which is a favorite dish with Nick.

Nick and the Teenie Weenies gathered a great many nuts. Of course most of the nuts went to Nick, for that is his main food during the winter, but the Teenie Weenies laid in a large supply, too, for the cook uses the nut meats in making many Teenie Weenie dishes and the oil from black walnuts and hickory nut meats makes fine cooking oil.

Treat the Children to the "Happy Medium" Laxative

Ex-Lax is effective, but effective in a gentle way. Unlike harsh, bad-tasting laxatives . . .
— it's not too strong!

Ex-Lax can be given to the children with complete confidence. Although it looks and tastes like fine chocolate, its action is thorough and dependable.
— it's not too mild!

Ex-Lax is one laxative that avoids extremes. In other words . . .
— it's the Happy Medium!

As a precaution use only as directed.

PURSUIT SQUADRON, MY HAT-THEY JUST SIT LIKE LOGS!
PULL OUT OF THAT CLOUD BANK, CHERUB, AND SMILE. I'LL BET DOLLARS TO DATES, A BIG BRIGHT SMILE IS ONE TARGET THEY'D MAKE A BEELINE FOR!
BUT MY TEETH LOOK SO DULL AND DINGY I HATE TO SMILE!
THERE'S NO SPARKLE TO MY SMILE. WHAT'S MORE—I SEE "PINK" ON MY TOOTH BRUSH THESE DAYS. WHAT COULD THAT MEAN?
"PINK TOOTH BRUSH" IS A WARNING, MY GIRL. IT MEANS SEE YOUR DENTIST BUT SOON!
A SMILE IS SELDOM BRIGHT AND SPARKLING IF GUMS ARE SOFT AND UNHEALTHY. YOU SEE, OUR GUMS DON'T GET ENOUGH EXERCISE FROM THE SOFT FOODS WE EAT. SO I RECOMMEND GUM MASSAGE EACH TIME YOU BRUSH YOUR TEETH.
HERE'S ONE GAL WHO'LL NEVER NEGLECT HER SMILE AGAIN. AND DO I GO FOR IPANA AND MASSAGE! JUST LOOK AT THOSE TEETH SPARKLE — AND MY GUMS FEEL FIRMER ALREADY. IPANA'S FLAVOR GETS ME TOO. IT'S SO REFRESHING!
ONE SMILE FROM YOU, SWEET, AND MY HEART WENT INTO A TAILSPIN!
AND I'LL KEEP ON SMILING WITH THE HELP OF IPANA AND MASSAGE
Help guard against "Pink Tooth Brush" with Ipana and Massage

● Ipana is designed not only to clean teeth thoroughly but, with massage, to aid the gums. So each time you brush your teeth, massage a little extra Ipana onto your gums. Help guard against "pink tooth brush" with Ipana and massage.

Dentists prefer Ipana for their personal use 2 to 1*

NEGRO VOTERS TELL OF STAKE IN SENATE RACE

Leaders Have 'Eye on Washington.'

BY ROSCOE SIMMONS.

"I have lived thru our story as a free people and know the necessity of a Republican senate or a senate as nearly Republican as possible."

These are the words of the Rev. B. U. Taylor, 83 year old presiding elder of the Chicago district of the African Methodist Episcopal church, as he explained the interest of the colored people in the campaigns of Thomas E. Dewey for President and Richard J. Lyons for the senate.

Freedom came thru the Presidency and the steps to make secure that freedom came from congress, explained Dr. Taylor. The traditional interest in Washington is the chief factor in the "great return" of the colored voters to Republicanism, according to Dr. Taylor.

Admires Fighting Spirit.

Dr. Taylor, a resident of Chicago 31 years, is a trustee of Wilberforce university, of which he is a graduate.

"I remember the great senators, their work for us, the rebukes they suffered on our account," he said, "and Lyons seems to possess the heart and fighting spirit of men of sturdier times. He reminds me of Logan, our greatest senator."

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Taylor added, "Illinois would have a team more alert and powerful for the rights of free men than any other state could claim. We weren't wrong on Brooks and we are not wrong on Lyons."

Praises Party Fundamentals.

"Republican principles are all right," said Dr. James H. Brown, pastor of West Point Baptist church, 36th st. and Cottage Grove av., recognized as a leader among pastors of his denomination. "Our trouble has been in getting men brave enough to stand on those principles." Under the leadership of Dewey, Dr. Brown said, Republicans, especially among the younger statesmen, are rising everywhere to proclaim party fundamentals.

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Brown added, "we wouldn't be hoping that our senators would be all right on the poll tax, lynchings, and kindred matters so often up before the congress; we would know where they would stand on a show of hands."

"Now and then up comes a man outside of the Republican party who may be all right on one or two questions, but it is a headache watching and wondering," said George M. Porter, pioneer druggist, 3500 S. State st. For 32 years Porter's drug stores have been institutions on Dearborn and State sts.

"Lyons Is Our Man."

"On his record Lyons is our man," said Dr. Porter. "Aside from his record, second to none on equality of all American peoples, he has pledged himself to stand with us in an uphill fight we are making to come into fullest citizenship. His opponent may at times break from his party, but he is still a party man. In politics it is not the man, but the party."

Illinois, Dr. Porter said, is a key state in the battle of the free man for a free country. "Our men have been key men, like Lincoln, Grant, and Logan. Brooks is certainly a key man. Lyons is worthy to step into that class."

The militant and widely known pastor of Grant Memorial church, 4600 Evans av., Dr. W. H. Griffin, said that the contest over the seat in the United States senate is not one between Lyons and Lucas.

Sees Contest of Principles.

"The contest," said Dr. Griffin, "is over principles; over issues set forth by both state and national party platforms; between what Democratic conventions say and what is said in the convention platforms of the Republican party."

"Democratic candidates," said Dr. Griffin, "are all right up to a certain point; usually that point is us. Lyons is running on platforms that oppose every wrong; his opponent runs on platforms that name no wrongs and promise to right none."

"The senate," declared Dr. Griffin, "is controled by our enemies. My people are determined to do what they can to place it under control of our friends. We are proud of Sen. Brooks and have every reason to believe that we will be proud of Lyons. On equality of man his record is clean."

"Speaks Ideas of Illinois."

"My years are passably long," said Dr. A. N. Gordon, physician with offices at 35th st. and Indiana av., and former president of the Appomattox club, "and my experience a long one both in the north and in the south. Nothing is as important to us as friends in congress and nobody in congress is as important as a senator. Lyons will prove the friend in need as a senator from Illinois.

"Maybe," said Dr. Gordon, "we shall not see any Lodges or Forakers or Allisons in our day again, but in the senate, Lyons, joining Sen. Brooks, will stir our recollection of those great men. He speaks the ideas of Illinois. We won't have to petition him to stand by the Constitution."

WORLD FINANCE SOLUTION TOLD BY REP. DEWEY

Church Makes Race on Americanism.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Plans for an international monetary system need not wait on the cumbersome setup suggested by the recent Bretton Woods conference, voters in the 9th congressional district on the north side were told last week in speeches by their incumbent representative, Charles S. Dewey. He asserted there is a much better solution.

In the 10th district, lying north of the 9th and taking in the north suburbs and all of Lake county, another incumbent Republican is also making his race for reëlection on a platform stressing solid American principles including opposition to the New Deal and its radical leanings. He is Ralph E. Church of Evanston.

Kelly Picks Opponent.

Running against Dewey, one of the ablest financial experts in congress, is Alexander J. Resa, assistant corporation counsel and the choice of Mayor Kelly. Church's opponent, who is making an exceptionally active campaign, is Curtis D. MacDougall, Northwestern university professor.

The Democratic nominees are being supported by the organization known as the Independent Voters of Illinois, who are behind every Democratic nominee for congress, and Scott Lucas, that party's choice for the senate. Its main effort, including radio programs, however, is directed at only four candidates, Richard J. Lyons for the senate, Stephen A. Day for congressman at large, Dewey and Church.

League Not Independent.

Backers of the two sitting congressmen asserted there is nothing independent about the Independent Voters; that they are strictly Democratic and follow the same lines as the CIO-PAC of Sidney Hillman. They claimed evidence to show that the PAC is working in the industrial districts and letting the miscalled Independents carry the campaign burden in the white collar sections. They added that I. V. I., while not under communist domination is the "pink fringe on the red garment."

Congressman Dewey said he was opposed to the Bretton Woods plan because its effectiveness, if any,

TEEN-AGERS LIKE YOUNG MODERNS ROOM IN LIBRARY

Relieved When They Find No Required Reading.

A minor revolution was felt in Chicago's public library system recently with the opening in Hild library, 4544 Lincoln av., of a Young Moderns room—a place where books on schools' required reading lists are banned and conversation is welcomed.

In addition to current magazines and four bulletin boards, the room contains approximately 4,500 volumes on careers, etiquet, personality building, fiction, biography, and current events.

Young Folks Welcome.

"We hope the department will become a gathering place for young people outside of school hours," declared Miss Helen Zatterberg, assistant librarian. "Later we plan to initiate a series of round tables where young people may discuss anything from school problems to international affairs."

The department began in 1941 as a shelf of books for young people from 16 thru 22. "Young moderns" showed such interest in the experiment that Miss Zatterberg was encouraged to devote a room to the project and order some 200 new books. The plan has the full coöperation of Miss Jessie E. Reed, regional librarian, who said, "It's the only room of its kind in Chicago libraries."

Both girls and boys flocked to the opening last week to sign the guest register. Said Elaine Sullivan, Mundelein college freshman, as she pounced on a copy of Seventeen, new magazine for teen-aged girls: "This is what I've been looking for; the girls at school were talking about it!"

John Stays Late.

Red headed, cheerful John Halversen, 2026 Sunnyside av., came early and stayed late. He said, "There ought to be some good books on science here." A junior at Amundsen, John keeps bantam chickens, raises rare plants for hobbies, and hopes to be a doctor some day. He's been a library visitor almost 10 years.

Quiet, studious Jeannine Hanlon, 2253 Leland av., was looking for a book on journalism. She's a sophomore at Immaculata High school and thinks Miss Zatterberg's idea is "pretty nice."

A committee of eight students from Amundsen and Lake View High schools welcomed guests and had them write their names and hobbies in the register. The committee and Mrs. Margaret Schmidt, assistant librarian, will confer with Miss Zatterberg to consider additions to the collection and to plan student gatherings.

List Student Committee.

On the student committee are Harriet Diacos, 4434 Clifton av.; Patricia DeVriese, 5443 Lincoln av.; Clark Catelain, 5017 N. Wolcott av., and Jim Morris, 4862 N. Rockwell st., all of Amundsen, and Marga Borchers, 1472 Grace st.; Arlaine Du Cole, 3655 Janssen av.; John Hill, 1653 Addison st., and Herbert Persil, 1022 George st., all Lake View students.

"Books on careers are especially popular with high school and college students," Miss Zatterberg said. "But young people today demand more than just data on jobs and futures—they want biographies and fiction about persons in the careers they find interesting."

Let's Look in Here.

The teen-age collection contains both kinds of material. Several sections are devoted to biography and career books, and a file cabinet contains pamphlets and mimeographed material on vocations. Two bulletin boards, "On the Job Beam" and "Slightly Cerebral," tell of new publications in these fields. The two other boards give news and events of north side high schools.

The department is patronized by students from Northwestern university, North Park Junior college, and Mundelein college, in addition to those from north side high schools.

BUSINESS MEN STUMPING 9TH FOR C. S. DEWEY

Plan to Canvass Every Home in District.

BY LEWIS WILLIAMS.

Dr. Joseph Farina.

Its concerted drive for 100 per cent registration completed, the 9th congressional district business men's committee has opened a precinct canvass designed to take workers into every home of the district between now and Nov. 7. The goal is reëlection to congress of Charles S. Dewey, north side legislator.

The business men's group, which has correlated its program with that of the nonpartisan 9th district citizens' committee, is seeking election of the entire Republican ticket, but is concentrating in five close districts on the election of congressmen. In addition to Dewey, the business men are concentrating on G. O. P. nominees William E. King in the 1st, Thomas J. Downs in the 2d, Rep. Fred Busbey in the 3d, and Charles Garland in the 7th.

Many Women in Campaign.

Under direction of Edward A. Pool, men and women in all walks of life are taking part in the campaign in the cosmopolitan 9th district. Alfred O'Gara, directing activity in the 43d ward, has emphasized that the business men are working thru regular Republican ward organizations. Where the precinct is considered safely in the G. O. P. fold the business men are laying off. When the organization indicates a need of assistance the committee rushes in fresh workers.

Mr. O'Gara reportedly has done an almost matchless job in organizing his ward campaign. He already has brought about a high percentage of registration and with a complete set of statistics constantly at his finger tips, is ready to assure a big Republican vote.

Stresses Need for Workers.

"While the drive is advancing smoothly," he said, "we have one need. More workers. Because many of the boys in the district are in uniform we have called on the women to do much of the canvassing and they are doing a magnificent job. But," he continued, "we need still more."

Some 43d ward meetings featuring the appearance of Rep. Dewey as answer man have been arranged. "But," Mr. O'Gara said, "we are mostly workers, not meeters."

The committee has enlisted the aid of all types of business and professional men in the area. One of the most active workers is Dr. Joseph Farina, 549 North av. All of his patients, friends, acquaintances he meets on the street, are learning of the physician's full approval of Rep. Dewey.

Hears Nothing but Good.

"Wherever I go," he said, "I hear nothing but good about the man. Republican and Democrat alike insist that never have their slightest requests gone unattended. My great-grandfather," Dr. Farina continued, "said that if his word were not good he would rather be dead. I and many other people from Italy feel the same way. Rep. Dewey's word has always been good which is more than we can say for some candidates who have sought reëlection again and again and again."

Dr. Farina was brought here from Italy 46 years ago and was himself a congressional candidate more than a decade ago when he polled 2,500 votes as an independent. His son is an aviation cadet in the army.

Another who is active in the 9th district is the Rev. Henry M. Marbly, pastor of the St. Matthew Methodist church, Oak and Orleans st. The Rev. Mr. Marbly has distributed literature thruout his parish and has addressed many groups concerning the merits of Rep. Dewey and the whole Republican ticket. The church is planning a mass meeting late this month, arrangements for which are being completed by Booker T. Williams.

"Some Still Are Fooled."

Commenting on Rep. Dewey's campaign the Rev. Mr. Marbly said, "The political world is in general so corrupt that we cannot let men of vision, such as Mr. Dewey, go. Some Negroes," he said, "are still fooled by the New Deal, but those who think ahead can see that the solution to their problems is not to be found in the acceptance of insignificant political favors."

Working with the business men's committee in the campaign to re-elect Rep. Dewey is the older citizens' group, women's headquarters for which have been established at 952 N. Michigan av. Mrs. Alfred O'Gara has supervised the women's work which until last week was designed to increase registration.

Open Final Women's Drive.

A neighborhood meeting at 5 o'clock this afternoon will open the women's final drive for votes. Families in the area will meet informally at 1419 Hudson av. to hear Rep. Dewey. A second meeting this week will be held Thursday at the La Salle hotel when the North Central association will hear the congressman.

Among Mrs. O'Gara staff officers on the citizens' committee is Mrs. William F. Petersen. A member of the board of many city welfare organizations, she said, "Charles S. Dewey is a representative who possesses the experience and knowledge so badly needed in congress. Any one interested in social welfare realizes that unless our country maintains a sound economic structure it cannot assist the rest of the world during post-war years. Mr. Dewey understands finance as few men do. Let him lead us in rebuilding a strong nation."

DEWEY OFFERS OWN ANSWER TO FINANCE PUZZLE

would not be made known for years. He added that it was vague and failed to meet the last public message of Wendell L. Willkie demanding "meaningful words on our international obligations."

"There is no need to wait for something effective," Dewey declared. "We have in existence the Export-Import bank. It has handled a billion 250 million dollars and has eight years of experience. On Sept. 5, I introduced in congress a law to expand the powers of this bank.

We Would Keep Control.

"Given the authority the bank could advance moneys to foreign nations on a business basis, with good hopes of getting the loans repaid. It could guide its investments so they would make jobs for our people at home; it could coöperate with private industry to that end. I believe it would be satisfactory to foreign and domestic interests.

"Best of all the scheme is practicable and could be put in working order at once. It would be completely owned and operated by the United States; it would leave the decision as to advances in our own hands. Thru such an arrangement aid could be hastened to the ruined countries at the time they need it most—for reconstruction."

Served in Poland.

Under the Coolidge administration Rep. Dewey was assistant secretary of the treasury. He has been national treasurer of the American Red Cross and for several years was financial adviser to the Polish nation.

Church declared there is ample information to convince any impartial person that PAC is "demanding" contributions from CIO members, seeking to dictate their votes and aiming at full control of the Democratic party.

"I am receiving from CIO members in the 10th district appeals to help free them from pressure tactics by PAC and sister organizations," Church said. "They also want to be rid of communist infiltration into their union. Labor does not intend to surrender its birthright of independence.

"The 10th is a wide awake district. It knows the issue is whether we shall remain a free nation or be impressed by force of the Hillman-Browder New Deal machine into a totalitarian state, under which we will not possess our government but be possessed by it. The 10th sees in true perspective that on the structure of misrepresentation and false issues totalitarian states were built abroad. The voters don't want that here."

Would Maintain Merchant Marine.

Church pledged himself to work for the conversion of the American merchant marine to full peace time efficiency, so that the United States should have access to foreign trade everywhere.

MacDougall, speaking at an Independent Voters of Illinois meeting at 4300 Marine drive, said he was against dismemberment of Germany after the war and likewise opposed to a vindictive peace. The German people, he averred, are not inherently wicked. The solution, he said, was to educate them, correcting the misinformation fed to them by Hitler and Goebbels.

He referred to Church as completely isolationist and to himself as an "intelligent liberal."

Edgemere Woman's Club Will Have Book Reviews

The literature department of the Edgemere Woman's club will be in charge of a meeting of the club at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Roberts O. Bright, chairman, will introduce Mrs. Edward Preston, who will review "A Bashful Woman," by Kenneth Horan and "The Razor's Edge," by Somerset Maugham. The group will play bridge in the afternoon, with Mrs. Edward Spooner as hostess, assisted by Mrs. B. F. Weber, Mrs. James A. Burner, Mrs. Henry Bolling, Mrs. J. S. Markenstein, Mrs. J. S. Maguire, Mrs. Merrill Dwinell, Mrs. C. O. Watson, Mrs. C. H. Challen, Mrs. Samuel D. Cates, and Mrs. C. W. Murray.

SERVICE GUILD IN EVANSTON TO HEAR LECTURE

Dr. Leland H. Carlson, professor of history at Northwestern university, will speak on "Why the Protestant Church?" before the Service guild of the First Methodist church, Evanston, at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the church.

Mrs. John H. McCloskey and Mrs. Murray H. Leiffer are co-chairmen of the program, which will be the first in a group of discussions on the history and beliefs of the Protestant church. Luncheon will be served at 12:45 p. m.

The Monday circle of the guild will begin its winter activities with a luncheon meeting at 1 p. m. in the church. Mrs. Glen R. Krueger, chairman, said plans for the annual bazar Nov. 29 and 30 would be discussed.

YOUR AMERICA TO MAKE BOW ON W-G-N—MUTUAL

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The program Your America will be introduced over W-G-N and Mutual at 3 p. m. today. The show is being presented in connection with the diamond jubilee of the Union Pacific railroad. Elden Westley, story teller, will relate how a new battle cry, "Remember Tarawa" came to be written by Sgt. Clair J. Norris of Fort Omaha, Neb.

Joyce Ralph.

W. E. Difford of Tacoma, Wash., will describe the growth of the plywood industry and its contribution to the advancement of civilization. Leo Kopp is director of the orchestra composed of housewives, grocers, students, salesmen, and many railroad employes. Joyce Ralph is the violin soloist with the orchestra; Grace Nelson McTernan, the vocal soloist. Ray Clark, roving reporter with a portable microphone, will conduct an interview from the City of Denver streamliner.

For armchair students the University of Illinois' station WILL will broadcast courses direct from the classroom this season. Marketing organization will be discussed by Prof. P. D. Converse at 8 a. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; life of insects and their relation to man will be discussed by Prof. Walter Balduf, at 2 p. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, and Prof. Robert Graham will discuss animal hygiene at 11 a. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. A new series, titled Just About Music, will be presented by Lanson F. Demming, WILL music director, at 2 p. m. each Friday.

A special recording will be sent to Lt. George S. Patton commanding general of the 3d army, as a Christmas greeting from Mrs. Patton. Recorded at NBC it include's Patton's hymn "God of Battle," which Peter de Rose set to music. De Rose plays the piano and May Singhi Breen sings it. Both are well known to radio listeners.

One of the better laughs was provoked by Bert Lahr, the comedian, when he appeared on Stage Door Canteen recently. Lahr announced that he's playing the title role in the movie biography of Don Juan—"Twentieth Century Fox presents a Nineteenth Century Wolf," he explained. Wasn't Don active a little earlier than that, Bert?

Gertrude Niesen Is Guest.

Gertrude Niesen will be Edgar Bergen's guest on the Bergen-McCarthy fun show over WMAQ-NBC at 7 p. m. tonight.

Kate Smith's Guest

Shirley Booth will be Kate Smith's guest over WBBM-CBS at 6 o'clock tonight.

MUSIC FANTASY TO BE AIRED ON THEATER OF AIR

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus, directed by Henry Weber, will provide a musical setting including a medley of songs from Scotland and a selection from Mozart's opera "Don Giovanni."

Virginia Haskins and Bruce Foote will be the vocal soloists. Olan Soule, Laurette Fillbrandt, Cliff Soubier, and John Barclay will take the leading dramatic roles.

NEGRO SINGER TO BE GUEST OF NBC SYMPHONY

With Marian Anderson as guest soloist, the NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Frank Black, will end its summer season of programs over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. Arturo Toscanini will conduct the orchestra during the winter radio series which will start next Sunday.

Miss Anderson will sing "O, Mio Fernando" from Donnizetti's "La Favorita," Bizet's "Agnus Dei," and two Negro spirituals, "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child" and "Honor, Honor."

The orchestra will play the overture to Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" and Dr. Black's orchestration of Rei's "Perpetual Motion."

Producer and consumer coöperatives and their place in the economic reconstruction of the postwar period will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10:30 a. m. today. John Carson, I. H. Hill, and Harry Guthmann will participate.

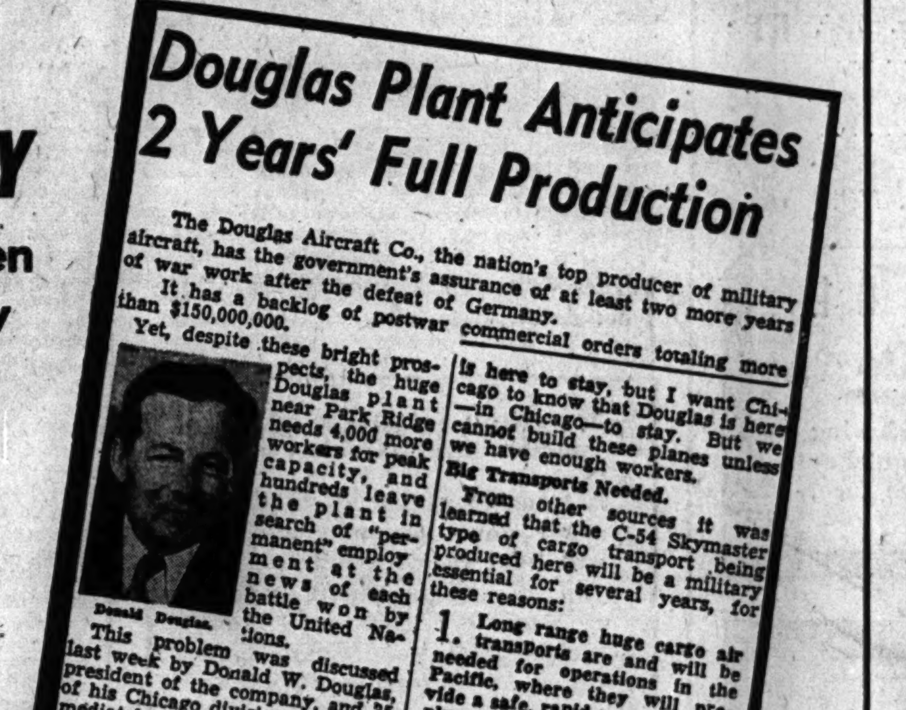
POST-WAR OPPORTUNITY for Men and Women who get jobs now in Chicago's new INDUSTRY



Douglas Plant Anticipates 2 Years' Full Production

The Douglas Aircraft Co., the nation's top producer of military aircraft, has the government's assurance of at least two more years of war work after the defeat of Germany.

It has a backlog of postwar commercial orders totaling more than $150,000,000.

Yet, despite these bright prospects, the huge Douglas plant near Park Ridge needs 4,000 more workers for peak capacity, and hundreds leave the plant in search of "permanent" employment at the news of each battle won by the United Nations.

Donald Douglas.

This problem was discussed last week by Donald W. Douglas, president of the company, and 35 of his Chicago division heads immediately after his return from New York where he signed contracts with three major airlines for the early delivery of 93 new high-speed, four-engined airliners.

Douglas Addresses Executives.

a dinner meeting in the water Beach Hotel, Douglas is executives:

"We all know that the airplane is here to stay, but I want Chicago to know that Douglas is here—in Chicago—to stay. But we cannot build these planes unless we have enough workers.

Big Transports Needed.

From other sources it was learned that the C-54 Skymaster type of cargo transport being produced here will be a military essential for several years, for these reasons:

1. Long range huge cargo air transports are and will be needed for operations in the Pacific, where they will provide a safe, rapid means of supply, transfer of fighting personnel, and the evacuation of the wounded.

2. With the bridges, railroads and roads of the European war theater almost totally destroyed, the armies of occupation will need this type of travel.

Douglas said he would appeal to Mayor Kelly and state and federal officials to help him

Start YOUR FUTURE..today in Aviation . . train for it now by coming to work at Douglas at once!

AFTER THE WAR, aviation will be one of the major industries in the Chicago area. Airlines, aircargo carriers, maintenance and operations shops, and aircraft plants will have good jobs for workers who are properly trained. Prepare for your career in aviation NOW by working in the Chicago plant of Douglas Aircraft Company. No "cutbacks" or "layoffs" in sight here. Douglas employes will work at full capacity building vitally needed military transport planes until Japan is defeated. Then they will build planes for the airlines on orders already booked this far ahead.

Good Pay . . . Convenient Transportation. Experienced or inexperienced . . . we train you so that you are bound to make good in fabricating, shop, assembly and installation work . . . what we term "beating on the airplane." As interesting work as you'll ever find.

If you want to serve your country, make good money, enjoy your job, and if you are not already employed in an essential industry, don't delay. Come to the WMC's U. S. Employment Service office at 5306 Lawrence Avenue. Or come to our own employment offices at 4070 Milwaukee Avenue, near Irving Park; 2717½ Milwaukee Avenue, near Logan Square; or to the plant employment office at Mannheim, Higgins and Devon.

NEGRO VOTERS TELL OF STAKE IN SENATE RACE

Leaders Have 'Eye on Washington.'

BY ROSCOE SIMMONS.

"I have lived thru our story as a free people and know the necessity of a Republican senate or a senate as nearly Republican as possible."

These are the words of the Rev. B. U. Taylor, 83 year old presiding elder of the Chicago district of the African Methodist Episcopal church, as he explained the interest of the colored people in the campaigns of Thomas E. Dewey for President and Richard J. Lyons for the senate.

Freedom came thru the Presidency and the steps to make secure that freedom came from congress, explained Dr. Taylor. The traditional interest in Washington is the chief factor in the "great return" of the colored voters to Republicanism, according to Dr. Taylor.

Admires Fighting Spirit.

Dr. Taylor, a resident of Chicago 31 years, is a trustee of Wilberforce university, of which he is a graduate.

"I remember the great senators, their work for us, the rebukes they suffered on our account," he said, "and Lyons seems to possess the heart and fighting spirit of men of sturdier times. He reminds me of Logan, our greatest senator."

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Taylor added, "Illinois would have a team more alert and powerful for the rights of free men than any other state could claim. We weren't wrong on Brooks and we are not wrong on Lyons."

Praises Party Fundamentals.

"Republican principles are all right," said Dr. James H. Brown, pastor of West Point Baptist church, 36th st. and Cottage Grove av., recognized as a leader among pastors of his denomination. "Our trouble has been in getting men brave enough to stand on those principles." Under the leadership of Dewey, Dr. Brown said, Republicans, especially among the younger statesmen, are rising everywhere to proclaim party fundamentals.

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Brown added, "we wouldn't be hoping that our senators would be all right on the poll tax, lynchings, and kindred matters so often up before the congress; we would know where they would stand on a show of hands."

"Now and then up comes a man outside of the Republican party who may be all right on one or two questions, but it is a headache watching and wondering," said George M. Porter, pioneer druggist, 3500 S. State st. For 32 years Porter's drug stores have been institutions on Dearborn and State sts.

"Lyons Is Our Man."

"On his record Lyons is our man," said Dr. Porter. "Aside from his record, second to none on equality of all American peoples, he has pledged himself to stand with us in an uphill fight we are making to come into fullest citizenship. His opponent may at times break from his party, but he is still a party man. In politics it is not the man, but the party."

Illinois, Dr. Porter said, is a key state in the battle of the free man for a free country. "Our men have been key men, like Lincoln, Grant, and Logan. Brooks is certainly a key man. Lyons is worthy to step into that class."

The militant and widely known pastor of Grant Memorial church, 4600 Evans av., Dr. W. H. Griffin, said that the contest over the seat in the United States senate is not one between Lyons and Lucas.

Sees Contest of Principles.

"The contest," said Dr. Griffin, "is over principles; over issues set forth by both state and national party platforms; between what Democratic conventions say and what is said in the convention platforms of the Republican party."

"Democratic candidates," said Dr. Griffin, "are all right up to a certain point; usually that point is us. Lyons is running on platforms that oppose every wrong; his opponent runs on platforms that name no wrongs and promise to right none."

"The senate," declared Dr. Griffin, "is controled by our enemies. My people are determined to do what they can to place it under control of our friends. We are proud of Sen. Brooks and have every reason to believe that we will be proud of Lyons. On equality of man his record is clean."

"Speaks Ideas of Illinois."

"My years are passably long," said Dr. A. N. Gordon, physician with offices at 35th st. and Indiana av., and former president of the Appomattox club, "and my experience a long one both in the north and in the south. Nothing is as important to us as friends in congress and nobody in congress is as important as a senator. Lyons will prove the friend in need as a senator from Illinois.

"Maybe," said Dr. Gordon, "we shall not see any Lodges or Forakers or Allisons in our day again, but in the senate, Lyons, joining Sen. Brooks, will stir our recollection of those great men. He speaks the ideas of Illinois. We won't have to petition him to stand by the Constitution."

V-MAIL SPEEDS MORE CHEER TO DADS OVERSEAS

Nursery Gallery of 5 to Arrive Soon.

Three southside service men in the Pacific and two in India soon will receive V-mail pictures of their wives, with babies whom the men have not yet seen.

William Peltzman, torpedo man 2d class on a destroyer will receive a picture of his 19 month old son, William Michael. Peltzman was in Washington state when his son was born, and a few weeks later was transferred to Boston, passing thru Chicago en route. However, he didn't have time to get home and his wife was unable to take the baby to the station. Now 42, he enlisted in June, 1942, and has served in the Atlantic and Pacific. He was a pressman for 23 years. Mrs. Peltzman and the baby are living at 5421 Woodlawn av.

Formerly an Usher.

A yeoman 2d class on a patrol ship, Henry Maun is another navy man who has served in both the Atlantic and Pacific. He and his wife, Eulalia, met Aug. 16, 1940, at the Sorrowful Mother Novena at Our Lady of Sorrows church, 3121 Jackson blvd., where he was an usher. A former employe of a steel company, he enlisted shortly after Pearl Harbor. They were married May 8, 1943, during a leave and he was sent overseas Nov. 21. Their daughter Valerie Ann was born April 21.

Mrs. Maun is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. McLaughlin, 8448 Michigan av., while her husband is overseas. She has three brothers in service, 2d Lt. Jerome, a bombardier on an 8th A. A. F. Flying Fortress who was shot down over Calais Jan. 21 and imprisoned; Lt. William J., in the 1st army, who was wounded in Belgium Sept. 4 and is now in a hospital in England, and 2d Lt. Richard, who is training in Rapid City, S. D., to become a Super Fortress pilot. Maun's mother, Mrs. C. E. Wilson, lives at 217 S. LaVergne av.

Met 15 Years Ago.

A chance meeting 15 years ago blossomed into romance in 1941 when Sgt. Robert Eaton and his future wife, Mildred, met again. They were married Feb. 3, 1942, and a month later he entered the air forces.

Their son, Keith Robert, was born last May 29 shortly after his dad left for India where he is now a crew chief servicing a Super Fortress.

Mary Jo Lattimore is the 14 months old daughter of Pvt. Daniel P. Lattimore, stationed somewhere in the Pacific with the marine corps artillery. He and his wife, Mary, met in 1939 at Hylandale academy, near La Crosse, Wis., where both were students. They were married in July, 1942, in San Diego, Cal., where she was working for an aircraft company while he was in training at Camp Pendleton, 60 miles away.

Has Brother in Same Outfit.

His brother, Sgt. Carson Lattimore, also is a member of the same regiment and they saw action at Bougainville, Guam, and the Solomon Islands together. Carson is married to the former Jenny Sims of Mount Albert, New Zealand, and they have a 7 month old daughter, Susan. She and her daughter are coming to the United States soon to make their home. Mrs. Lattimore is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McGinnis, 312 River dr., S., Munster, Ind.

Sgt. Walter R. Sopke, the father of Robert Walter, 2 months old, is stationed in India with a railroad battalion. He has been overseas since December, 1943. A former professional golfer, he met his wife, Adelaide, eight years ago in Portland, Ore., where both were living. He entered the service in April, 1943. Mrs. Sopke and the baby are living with her mother, Mrs. Frank Strobot, 9847 Ewing av.

HARMONY KEY TO G.O.P. HOPES IN 2 DISTRICTS

King and Downs See Victory Nov. 7.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Harmony among all elements of the Republican party in the 1st and 2d congressional districts is one of the factors which makes the party nominees for representative confident the tide has turned from the New Deal and will sweep them into office.

The nominees are William E. King, attorney and long a leader among Chicago Negroes [1st], and Thomas J. Downs [2d]. Both have been conducting energetic campaigns in their territories, which normally are close. The 1st, as an example, went Democratic by only 3,900 votes in 1940 and only 2,700 in 1942, King being the G. O. P. nominee each time.

Hits Army Treatment.

"We believe that with the trend definitely our way now, and with unity of effort assured, victory is certain on Nov. 7," King asserted. "There are no deep resentments to overcome and everybody is supporting the ticket. A big registration is in our favor, and the organization worked hard to get it."

The G. O. P. nominee continued to stress, in his speeches, what he termed the unconsciable treatment of Negroes in the army. The fault, he asserted, lay with the President.

Discriminate Against Negroes.

"For political reasons our young men in nearly all instances were kept out of combat service," King continued. "To hold onto his job Mr. Roosevelt, the commander in chief, has sold the Negro soldiers to southern office holders, on whom he must depend for enough votes to hope to win a fourth term.

"Labor battalions were mostly filled by Negroes. Now the rules about discharge work to keep them long in service. In the early stages of the war our young men were sent to southern training camps; the Negroes from the north met there, in towns and in service, such discrimination and humiliation as they had never dreamed of at home. It is time for a change."

First District Small.

King's Democratic opponent is William L. Dawson, incumbent, who is finishing his first term. Dawson ran for congress as a Republican in 1938.

The 1st district is bounded on the north by the Chicago river and on the south by 43d street. It is comparatively small in population and cast less than 66,000 votes in 1940. In that year the vote in the 2d exceeded 330,000. This district gave William A. Rowan, the Democratic incumbent, only 3,517 plurality over Downs in 1942.

Calls Rowan Kelly Stooge.

Downs refers to the Chicago city administration, which is backing Rowan, as "the midwestern branch office of the New Deal." That office, he added, is beginning to realize that its position is precarious; that a huge protest vote against the Washington administration carries with it the danger of a revolt against machine politics locally.

"The protest will necessarily mean votes for the Republican party," he said. "That is the only way a citizen can make felt his wishes for change. The burocrats in the capital have no sympathy with the small business men; these czars won't listen to his problems, which are too small for the big shots to bother with."

Reports of man power shortages, he said, were exaggerated and should be attributed to the burocracy.

Blasts Pay Roll Padding.

"After adding 2,500,000 to the civilian pay roll the New Dealers suddenly became aware of a labor shortage," Downs continued. "Daily conflicting and contradictory statements come from the war man power commission; the majority are in the form of threats to the people. But we have never heard once a suggestion that the big army of political parasites be reduced.

"Why doesn't the New Deal do away with hundreds of thousands of OPA snoopers and other obstructionists? Why not put these useless officeholders to work in war plants? That is the way to end the man power shortage and best serve the country. But only a Republican administration can do that; habit is too strong in the burocrats."

Rowan Questions Not.

Downs said that the ward organizations in his district are sure to get out the full G. O. P. vote, and that it would exceed that garnered by the Democrats and the CIO-PAC forces, which have been active.

Rowan was selected for the office by the city hall and is supported by its machinery. A newspaper publisher who served several terms as alderman, Rowan is finishing his first term as a congressman. He has been an unquestioning supporter of President Roosevelt.

CITY LIBRARIAN RETIRES SO SHE CAN READ BOOKS

Pearl I. Field.

Tho she has been a librarian who for 38 years has devoted time to planning activities advantageous to the Chicago public library system, Pearl I. Field believes she will spend her spare time reading after her retirement today.

Miss Field, librarian at Legler library for 24 years, describes her library life as "fascinating" and says that "one can never read enough." She intends to move to Summit, N. J., where she will make her home with her sister and brother-in-law. She lived for 24 years at 7346 Luella av., only recently selling her home at that address in anticipation of her retirement.

Wanted to Be Reporter.

In reminiscing, Miss Field told of her original intention to become a newspaper woman, but at the suggestion of her parents obtained a position as a clerk in the Chicago library. Her first day was a disappointment and she promptly decided to quit. The following day she stayed home, without notifying her employer, but later thought better of her decision. When she returned she was severely reprimanded, but she was started on a career in which she has excelled.

Miss Field is known thruout the nation as librarian of the first regional library in Chicago. Several libraries have copied plans she developed in the Legler branch, the first regional library to act as headquarters for others in the district.

Originates Bookmobile.

She also is well known for starting the "bookmobile," a service for war plants which enables workers to have books which they otherwise might not obtain.

A member of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women, a director of the Officers club at the Knickerbocker hotel, and president of the Illinois Library association, Miss Field attended Hyde Park High school and the University of Chicago. In 1930 she founded the West Side Historical society to preserve old records of the west side.

S. SIDE NEGROES 'COMING HOME' TO G. O. P. ROLLS

Polls by Business Men Show Large Gains.

BY GUY GENTRY.

Negro voters in the 1st and 2d congressional districts, where they make up a large part of the district's total votes, are "coming home" to the Republican party in increasing numbers, Harold R. Schradzke, 1st district chairman of the Business Men's committee, declared yesterday.

These two districts are among the five key districts of Chicago where the committee is concentrating volunteer workers in an effort to elect Republican candidates and assure a Republican majority in the house of representatives in the next congress.

Polls Show G. O. P. Trend.

Schradzke said polls taken in the 1st district during the last five weeks show that Negroes will vote more heavily Republican in November than in more than a decade. Fred M. Gillies, committee chairman in the 2d district, said the same condition was true there.

Volunteer workers of the committee, supplementing the regular party organization, thus far have concentrated on registration. In the 1st district Willa Brown, famous Negro aviatrix, heading a group of more than 100 workers enlisted in behalf of William E. King, Republican nominee, found 150 unregistered voters in one block.

Remove "Floaters" from Lists.

Business and professional members of the Business Men's committee, each of whom have from five to 25 workers under them, are active in the 1st district in canvassing precincts and removing "floaters" from the voter rolls. Committee members include Stephen Coroby, 2100 Indiana av.; Hobart Neff, 141 W. Jackson blvd.; Ray Odman, 201 N. Wells st.; Karl Seyfarth, 208 S. La Salle st., and Frank T. Breckenridge, 5735 Blackstone av.

Gillies reported some 400 committee volunteers are active in the 2d district, where he said prospects of electing Thomas J. Downs, Republican congressional nominee, are getting brighter daily.

Harry Acker Among Leaders.

Harry Acker, former officer of the 10th ward regular Republican organization, is the committee's leader in that ward. Breckenridge, who is working in the 1st district, also is leading a force in the 3d, 4th, 5th, and 6th wards. Committeeman Russell W. Root in the 7th ward has 50 committee volunteers supplementing his regular organization.

Any person willing to assist in checking voting lists, canvassing precincts, or working as watchers is requested to call committee headquarters, 53 W. Jackson blvd., telephone Harrison 6515.

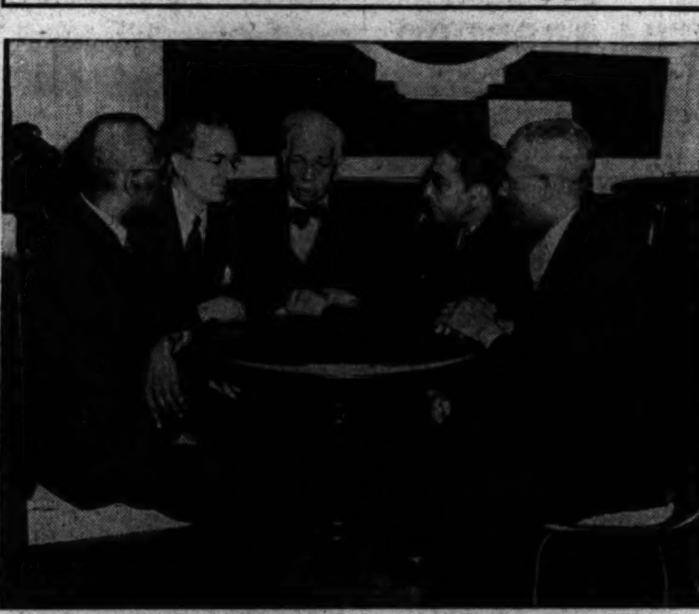
FIRST UNITARIAN WILL HAVE NEW PASTOR TODAY

The Rev. Leslie T. Pennington, new pastor of First Unitarian church, 57th st. and Woodlawn av., will deliver his first sermon at the church this morning. He was pastor of the oldest parish in Cambridge, Mass., which was founded in 1633, before coming to Chicago. He is a graduate of Earlham college, Richmond, Ind., and of the Harvard Theological school.

He is a trustee of the Church Peace union, the international relations committee of the Massachusetts Council of Churches, and the Unitarian Service committee furnishing help to refugees in Europe.

The Rev. Mr. Pennington succeeds Dr. Von Ogden Vogt who has been pastor almost 20 years. Dr. Vogt retains his lectureship on architecture and liturgics in the federated divinity faculties of the University of Chicago. He and Mrs. Vogt will live in Vero Beach, Fla.

Downs' Platform Wins Support



His advocacy of abolishment of racial discrimination and protection of small business has won support among south side Negro business and professional leaders for Thomas J. Downs, nominee for congress in the 2d district. Left to right are Alva L. Bates, 4621 Calumet av., assistant attorney general, the nominee, Oscar De Priest, 4538 South Park av., 3d ward alderman and former congressman from the 1st district; A. W. Williams, 4719 Indiana av., insurance man, and Ernest Morris, 410 E. 47th st., restaurant owner. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SAYS NEW DEAL FORCES FOREIGN IDEAS UPON U. S.

Booker Flays Truman as Bosses' Tool.

BY LEE SHASSERE.

The United States entered the war with the ideal of carrying the torch of liberty to the peoples of the world, but the very sins we seek to stamp out abroad "have forged the chains of slavery about us here at home," William A. Booker, Republican nominee for state representative in the 5th senatorial district, told an audience last week at Royal Circle hall, 51st st. and Michigan av.

The New Deal's encroaching dictatorship has deadened initiative and regard for the American way of life, Booker asserted. "The New Deal has defeated the very purpose for which this Republic was founded, as America was set up to escape the iron hand of kings and dictators," he said.

Hits Choice of Truman.

The choice of Harry S. Truman as the Vice Presidential nominee has topped all New Deal mistakes, Booker said.

Booker has launched a spirited campaign for the legislative seat being vacated by Col. William J. Warfield, a Republican, who held the post for 16 years and who is retiring because of a prolonged illness. Four years ago 5th district Republicans captured their second house seat when Noble W. Lee was elected. Booker and Lee have teamed up in a determined bid to hold the two posts.

On G. O. P. Speakers List.

When the United States entered World War I, Booker was attending Howard college in Washington, D. C. He enlisted in the army and became an instructing sergeant in infantry at the college. After the war he completed his studies at Arkansas Baptist college and then entered Northwestern university law school. Graduating in 1925, he practiced law in Arkansas until he returned to Chicago in 1935 to practice here.

Since 1928 Booker has been a member of the Republican national committee's speakers bureau. His candidacy has the endorsement of Oscar DePriest [R.], former congressman and present 3d ward alderman.

DOWNS TO WIN NEGROES' VOTE, SAYS DE PRIEST

Oscar De Priest, 4538 South Park av., former congressman of the 1st district and present alderman of the 3d ward, predicts that Thomas J. Downs, Republican nominee for congress in the 2d district, will go over the top by a 3,000 majority vote in the 3d ward.

"The Negro vote will be for Downs," De Priest declares. "He believes in equal opportunity and is personallly liked." De Priest was congressman of the 1st district from 1928 to 1934.

The Negro vote in the 2d congressional district will be concentrated in the 3d, 4th, 5th, and 6th wards. De Priest has estimated that two-thirds of the votes cast will be for Downs and the Republican party.

South side business and professional men who are working for the support of Downs in these wards include Ernest Morris, 410 E. 47th st., a restaurant owner; A. W. Williams, 4719 Indiana av., who is president of an insurance firm, and Alva L. Bates, 4621 Calumet av., assistant state's attorney general of Illinois.

NURSES FILL NEW ST. LUKE'S HOME AND THEN SOME

Because of the great demand for nurses, St. Luke's hospital school of nursing, despite the construction two years ago of a new home for students, has found it impossible to provide living quarters for all of the more than 350 who are studying there.

The new home, which was expected to house all student nurses, was made possible in part by the efforts of the Woman's board of the hospital, now in its 80th year.

Board to Meet Wednesday.

With the goal of providing funds for the St. Luke's clinic and for hospital scholarships, the board will hold its 18th annual fashion show Wednesday in the Stevens hotel. The tea show will be staged at 2:30 and the dinner show at 7:30 p. m.

Because of the nurses' housing difficulties authorities have asked Chicago freshman students to volunteer to live at home until enough seniors graduate to make room for them in Schweppe home.

Of the 19 who volunteered to live at home, space has been found for nine at the hospital. Nine south siders are still commuting, adding to the usual strenuousness of the nursing course, which requires students to be in class from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. and also requires a lengthy evening study period. The hospital expects to have all its students housed on the premises before the end of the year, however.

Home Students Listed.

South siders living at home and studying at the hospital include Georgia Lind, 8226 Aberdeen st.; June Deegans, 6552 Minerva av.; Lois Matz, 8710 Essex av.; Alice McCaffrey, 5510 Blackstone av.; Rosemarie Rychly, 10058 Calumet av.

June Schassenberg, 10009 Lowe av.; Shirley Childers, 1653 E. 72d st.; Dolores Wren, 7110 St. Lawrence av., and Anna Breen, 6827½ Perry av.

Soprano Will Entertain Disciples of Christ Club

Miss Jean Jacques, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. Carola Swenson, will give a program of songs before the Woman's club of University church at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the church house, 5655 University av. Mrs. Richard Z. Johnson will serve as tea hostess.

WMC WILL SEEK KEY WORKERS AT BUREAUS TODAY

To spur its drive for workers for 117 plants in the Chicago area which have been designated super critical by the army and navy, the war man power commission will open three south side offices today from 10 a. m. until 2 p. m. Men and women taking advantage of today's special service, the WMC pointed out, will lose no time in shifting from a less essential job to one making equipment vitally needed by forces in the field. South side offices which will be open today are located at 4711 South Park way, 751 E. 63d st., and 8657 Commercial av.

NEGRO VOTERS TELL OF STAKE IN SENATE RACE

Leaders Have 'Eye on Washington.'

BY ROSCOE SIMMONS.

"I have lived thru our story as a free people and know the necessity of a Republican senate or a senate as nearly Republican as possible."

These are the words of the Rev. B. U. Taylor, 83 year old presiding elder of the Chicago district of the African Methodist Episcopal church, as he explained the interest of the colored people in the campaigns of Thomas E. Dewey for President and Richard J. Lyons for the senate.

Freedom came thru the Presidency and the steps to make secure that freedom came from congress, explained Dr. Taylor. The traditional interest in Washington is the chief factor in the "great return" of the colored voters to Republicanism, according to Dr. Taylor.

Admires Fighting Spirit.

Dr. Taylor, a resident of Chicago 31 years, is a trustee of Wilberforce university, of which he is a graduate.

"I remember the great senators, their work for us, the rebukes they suffered on our account," he said, "and Lyons seems to possess the heart and fighting spirit of men of sturdier times. He reminds me of Logan, our greatest senator."

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Taylor added, "Illinois would have a team more alert and powerful for the rights of free men than any other state could claim. We weren't wrong on Brooks and we are not wrong on Lyons."

Praises Party Fundamentals.

"Republican principles are all right," said Dr. James H. Brown, pastor of West Point Baptist church, 36th st. and Cottage Grove av., recognized as a leader among pastors of his denomination. "Our trouble has been in getting men brave enough to stand on those principles." Under the leadership of Dewey, Dr. Brown said, Republicans, especially among the younger statesmen, are rising everywhere to proclaim party fundamentals.

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Brown added, "we wouldn't be hoping that our senators would be all right on the poll tax, lynchings, and kindred matters so often up before the congress; we would know where they would stand on a show of hands."

"Now and then up comes a man outside of the Republican party who may be all right on one or two questions, but it is a headache watching and wondering," said George M. Porter, pioneer druggist, 3500 S. State st. For 32 years Porter's drug stores have been institutions on Dearborn and State sts.

"Lyons Is Our Man."

"On his record Lyons is our man," said Dr. Porter. "Aside from his record, second to none on equality of all American peoples, he has pledged himself to stand with us in an uphill fight we are making to come into fullest citizenship. His opponent may at times break from his party, but he is still a party man. In politics it is not the man, but the party."

Illinois, Dr. Porter said, is a key state in the battle of the free man for a free country. "Our men have been key men, like Lincoln, Grant, and Logan. Brooks is certainly a key man. Lyons is worthy to step into that class."

The militant and widely known pastor of Grant Memorial church, 4600 Evans av., Dr. W. H. Griffin, said that the contest over the seat in the United States senate is not one between Lyons and Lucas.

Sees Contest of Principles.

"The contest," said Dr. Griffin, "is over principles; over issues set forth by both state and national party platforms; between what Democratic conventions say and what is said in the convention platforms of the Republican party."

"Democratic candidates," said Dr. Griffin, "are all right up to a certain point; usually that point is us. Lyons is running on platforms that oppose every wrong; his opponent runs on platforms that name no wrongs and promise to right none."

"The senate," declared Dr. Griffin, "is controled by our enemies. My people are determined to do what they can to place it under control of our friends. We are proud of Sen. Brooks and have every reason to believe that we will be proud of Lyons. On equality of man his record is clean."

"Speaks Ideas of Illinois."

"My years are passably long," said Dr. A. N. Gordon, physician with offices at 35th st. and Indiana av., and former president of the Appomattox club, "and my experience a long one both in the north and in the south. Nothing is as important to us as friends in congress and nobody in congress is as important as a senator. Lyons will prove the friend in need as a senator from Illinois.

"Maybe," said Dr. Gordon, "we shall not see any Lodges or Forakers or Allisons in our day again, but in the senate, Lyons, joining Sen. Brooks, will stir our recollection of those great men. He speaks the ideas of Illinois. We won't have to petition him to stand by the Constitution."

Maywood Forum to Hear J. A. Marsh Talk Tonight

John A. Marsh will be the principal speaker tonight at the first forum of the Institute of International Understanding, sponsored by the Rotary club of Maywood. The forum will be held in Proviso High school auditorium. "The Role of the North American Continent" will be the topic.

Maywood Receiving Home Marks 25th Year of Child Service

Members of the Children's Receiving home, Maywood, are reverently conscious of the service flag on the wall of their dining room as they listen to the saying of grace before dinner. Boy Scouts and Cubs, clockwise about the table, are William Jennings, Donald Thomas, Robert Miller, Karl Leonhardt, Robert Leonhardt, Frank Quigley, and Fred Dortman. The waitress is Phyllis Olkewicz.

When a new boy or girl arrives at the home, Miss Mina Lichtner arranges a group introduction. Miss Lichtner has been superintendent of the home for 14 years. The home now is observing its 25th anniversary. It is sponsored by the Lutheran woman's league of Chicago and vicinity.

Rehearsing for a play, "Broad Stripes and Bright Stars," to be given today at the home, are Betty Gaskell, Donald Bauer, Romona Reinke, and Thomas Preston. Guests at the play will be members of the Daughters auxiliary of the Lutheran Woman's league.

Raking up autumn leaves on the grounds of the home provides an after school chore for Carl Krieger, left, Vane Estergram, center, and Frank Quigley.

Celebrates 30 Years as Priest.

The Rev. Augustine Studeny, O. S. B., assistant pastor of St. Procopius church, located in the heart of the Old Pilsen district, today will be honored on the 30th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. A solemn mass of thanksgiving will be celebrated by the jubilarian in Abbey church, 18th and Allport streets, at 9:30 a. m., and a testimonial banquet will be given him at 8:30 p. m.

The Rev. Ambrose Ondrak, who assisted as master of ceremonies at the jubilarian's first mass 30 years ago, will preach the English sermon, and the Rev. Claude Viktora will preach in the Czech language. The Very Rev. Joseph Chvatal, local pastor, will be the principal speaker at the testimonial dinner.

Many to Give Greetings.

Greetings will be expressed by the following representatives of parish societies: Miss Bessie Stehlik, school children; Miss Joan Janda, Our Lady's sodality; Mrs. Bozena Hodous, the Blessed Virgin sodality; Mrs. Anna Janda, choral society; Mrs. Betty Kankda, Ladies Social club; Mrs. Leny Tupy, Red Cross unit; Miss Adeline Halla, Sokolky; Charles F. Father Studeny is proudly proclaimed by the parishioners as a local product. He was reared in St. Procopius parish and sang his first mass at the altar where he will celebrate a mass of thanksgiving. The jubilarian has been teacher, author, and parish priest. He taught at St. Procopius college from 1909 to 1920 when, because of poor health, he was assigned to parish work in Holy Cross, Wis., and later Dickinson, N. D.

Composer of Hymns.

Because of failing health he was relieved of his pastoral charge and assigned to the Benedictine monastery at Lisle, where he acted as novice master. In 1941 he again was given pastoral work and has been engaged as assistant to Father Chvatal of St. Procopius church.

As a student Father Studeny contributed to Czech Catholic publications and national English magazines. He has written a number of books and pamphlets, and has composed church hymns.

UCZCIWEK HITS F.D.R. SECRECY IN POLISH CRISIS

Declares President Evades Issues.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Failure of President Roosevelt to give a clear statement on the Polish policy of the United States to a group of Polish-American leaders who journeyed to the White House by invitation last week was denounced yesterday by John F. Uczciwek, Republican candidate for congress in the west side 8th district.

"The President said there would be an independent Poland," Uczciwek said. "But he evaded the real issues. What will be the boundaries of the new state? Will they be what they were in 1939 or will they be restricted by Stalin? Will he get thousands of square miles of this country which has suffered both German and soviet invasions?

What Kind of Government?

"And what sort of government will Poland have? The Poles had a republic of their own. There is no pledge they will get it back and no assurance they can choose their own government. Poland is indeed lost if its officials have to go hat in hand to the Kremlin for orders.

"Is it the plan of the big three to hand a slice of Poland to the soviets and in return give Poland a piece of Germany? Is there any surer way to breed another war? Is the Atlantic Charter nothing but sound and fury?"

Roosevelt Claims Ignorance.

The nominee said that he attended the Polish-American congress in May. When it was over its leaders were unable to get a personal hearing from the President, he added.

"Now he talks to them after Gov. Dewey mentioned a self-evident fact—that the public deserves to know his intentions toward Poland," Uczciwek said. "The President excuses himself by saying that nobody knows all that is going on now in Poland. It is a strange statement and one that makes us tremble; we may never know if Poland is bolshevized."

Garland Condemns Policy.

Only the Republicans, he averred, could be depended on to keep alive a nation that seemed destined now to be a sad satellite of the soviet union. He said that his opponent, Thomas S. Gordon, former city treasurer, is city hall dominated and dares not criticize anything the President cares to do abroad. Mayor Kelly would not permit it, he said.

In two other west side districts, the 7th and 4th, Republican nominees, Charles H. Garland and Leo J. Kozicki, also condemned the apparent American policy on Poland. Garland has the support of Polish-American leaders who urge his election.

Barc Changes Horses.

One of these is Frank Barc, former editor of the Polish Daily Zjednoczenie. In a speech delivered Wednesday, Barc said he had been a Democrat but was disgusted with the empty promises the incumbent party had made and left unfulfilled.

The Poles, he said, sorely need a friendly congress, and haven't had one under Democratic rule. He quoted the Congressional Record to show that of 15 senate speeches favorable to the Polish cause, 10 were by Republicans; while in the house 59 of 90 speeches were made by G. O. P. congressmen.

Says Link Is Gagged.

"Be assured," Barc continued, "a President like Dewey and a congressman like Garland will never sell Poland into communistic slavery. Garland is a true friend of Poland."

Garland has asserted that his opponent, William W. Link, is unable to argue in favor of Poland altho he is himself of Polish ancestry. He said that Link, as the choice of the local Democratic machine, is pledged to full support of any Polish deal President Roosevelt and Churchill make with Stalin.

Has PAC Support.

Link is 61 years old and a native of Chicago. Like Garland, he has two sons in military service. He was president of the city's board of local improvements from 1933 to 1935 and at present is a member of the Cook county board of civil service commissioners. He has the support of the CIO-PAC and the so-called Independent Voters of Illinois, which endorses only Democrats.

Kozicki, real estate and insurance broker, has been sharply critical of the Roosevelt policy on Poland. He has asserted that the incumbent congressman, Martin Gorski, is so tied up with the local Democratic machine that he dares say nothing in favor of Poland, free and intact.

Kozicki Calls for Full Story.

Kozicki has demanded that a full explanation be given now as to the course of negotiations with Stalin on Poland's fate. He is also campaigning against regimentation by OPA and other government agencies. These can be changed to a program of beter public service only by a new administration, he said.

In the 11th district, composed of McHenry, Will, Du Page, and Kane counties, the incumbent Republican is reported a certainty to win. He is Chauncey W. Reed, now running for his sixth term. Despite the easy situation Reed is not sleeping thru the campaign.

Two west side districts are conceded to the Democrats unless there is a great landslide. In the 5th the nominees are Adolph J. Sabath [D.] and Max Price [R.]; in the 6th they are Thomas J. O'Brien [D.], Charles J. Anderson Jr. [R.], and Iva A. Henderson [Ind.].

ELEVEN W. SIDE PARKS TELL OF FALL PROGRAMS

Chicago park officials last week formulated plans for fall and winter programs in 11 west side park district fieldhouses. Opportunities for war workers and their families to relax during leisure hours have been included in the plans.

The programs will include dances, barn dances, dramatics, and other events, while the gymnasiums will have men's, women's, and children's groups for physical conditioning, weight reducing, games, and sports.

How to Beat Rationing.

Because of rationing, the craft and artcraft programs are planned to aid groups to make necessities in which a shortage is apparent. Many groups are being formed to repair or recondition household articles and alter or make new clothes.

Gymnasium classes for boys include calisthenics, tumbling, apparatus, pyramids, marching tactics, infantry drill regulations, Commando and judo training, basketball, and organized games. Other programs include achievement tests, track and field games, volleyball, boxing, wrestling, softball, baseball, square dancing, badminton, and weight lifting.

Austin town hall will repeat last year's program of swimming and gym, artcraft classes, bridge and chess clubs, classes for handicapped, and lectures every Friday evening.

Columbus Park Offers Program.

Columbus park will offer a program directed by James F. Kelly, Miss Frances Kaplan, Miss Marguerite Spellman, William LeBrecht, and Park Supervisor Erwin Weiner.

One of the most popular features is the pre-school for children from 3 to 5. The children are taught rhythm, music games, and stories. A grammar and high school choral society will be organized to sing in front of service men's homes at Christmas.

Douglas park will offer gymnastics for children from 7 to 11, 10 to 14, 12 to 14, young people and adults.

Dance at Franklin Park.

Franklin park will have gymnasium classes, dancing each Friday, artcraft classes for girls and women, and craft classes for boys and men. A junior first aid class will be held from 10 a. m. to noon, each Saturday. The program will be carried on under direction of George Smith, park supervisor, Jack Salkin, Gloria Pagano, and Paul Mueller, instructors.

Garfield park will teach sewing to girls, craft work to boys, after school gymnasium to boys and girls, and evening classes for men and women. CITY LIBRARIAN RETIRES SO SHE CAN READ BOOKS

Tho she has been a librarian who for 38 years has devoted time to planning activities advantageous to the Chicago public library system, Pearl I. Field believes she will spend her spare time reading after her retirement today.

Miss Field, librarian at Legler library for 24 years, describes her library life as "fascinating" and says that "one can never read enough." She intends to move to Summit, N. J., where she will make her home with her sister and brother-in-law. She lived for 24 years at 7346 Luella av., only recently selling her home at that address in anticipation of her retirement.

Pearl I. Field.

Wanted to Be Reporter.

In reminiscing, Miss Field told of her original intention to become a newspaper woman, but at the suggestion of her parents obtained a position as a clerk in the Chicago library. Her first day was a disappointment and she promptly decided to quit. The following day she stayed home, without notifying her employer, but later thought better of her decision. When she returned she was severely reprimanded, but she was started on a career in which she has excelled.

Miss Field is known thruout the nation as librarian of the first regional library in Chicago. Several libraries have copied plans she developed in the Legler branch, the first regional library to act as headquarters for others in the district.

Originates Bookmobile.

She also is well known for starting the "bookmobile," a service for war plants which enables workers to have books which they otherwise might not obtain.

A member of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women, a director of the Officers club at the Knickerbocker hotel, and president of the Illinois Library association, Miss Field attended Hyde Park High school and the University of Chicago. In 1930 she founded the West Side Historical society to preserve old records of the west side.

The library staff recently gave a tea in Miss Field's honor at which Carl B. Roden, librarian, and Anton Vanek, vice president of the board of directors, presented her with a diamond wrist watch and a hand illuminated testimonial.

Hobby Show.

MAYWOOD HOME PROUDLY SHOWS 29 BLUE STARS

Pantry Always Open for Those Who Return.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

No home could be prouder of its service flag than the Children's Receiving home, 809 Madison st., Maywood. The one gold star among the 29 blue stars is for Louis Kmet, who was killed in action in Africa. Louis was given an ovation at the home when he returned on furlough. In the "family album" there is a photograph of Louis in uniform and of his grave in a far off land.

One of the blue stars on the flag that hangs between two windows in the dining room is for Lt. Olga Kmet, a sister of Louis, who is a nurse in the service of her country. Another of the blue stars is for Ensign Mike Harbushka, who received mention in a national magazine for his heroism at the front. Boys and girls at the home flocked about Mike when he was with them on furlough.

Pantry Always Open.

Miss Mina Lichtner, who has been superintendent at the home 14 years, has made it a rule that the pantry be open when any of the boys and girls come back after they have gone out into the world.

This fall marks the 25th anniversary of the opening of the home in Maywood and the 50th anniversary of the Lutheran Woman's league, which sponsors the project. Since "Little Gertrude" was admitted Oct. 20, 1919, 438 children have been cared for in the institution, whose object is "to promote and advance the activities of the Lutheran church and to establish, maintain, and operate, without profit, a home for the shelter, support, and maintenance of dependent children."

Because many of the league members came from adjacent suburbs, the corporate name of the organization became the Lutheran Woman's League of Chicago and Vicinity.

Tablet Honors Donor.

At the entrance of the home is a bronze tablet in honor of the late Col. William P. Tuttle, whose will in 1924 listed the home as a beneficiary to approximately $40,000. The amount eventually received was $54,377.57.

In the fall of 1925, the cornerstone was laid for the present building, which cost $100,000 and gives shelter to 57 children. Since its inception, Sister Caroline Williams, Lutheran child welfare repersentative at the Juvenile court, has served the home in that court.

Altho the original plan was that the home be a temporary shelter for children until other provision might be made for them, the institution has not been a receiving home as the term is defined by child care agencies. A number of children have remained, when no plan for other care could be made sooner, from early childhood until graduation from high school.

Boy Wins Scholarship.

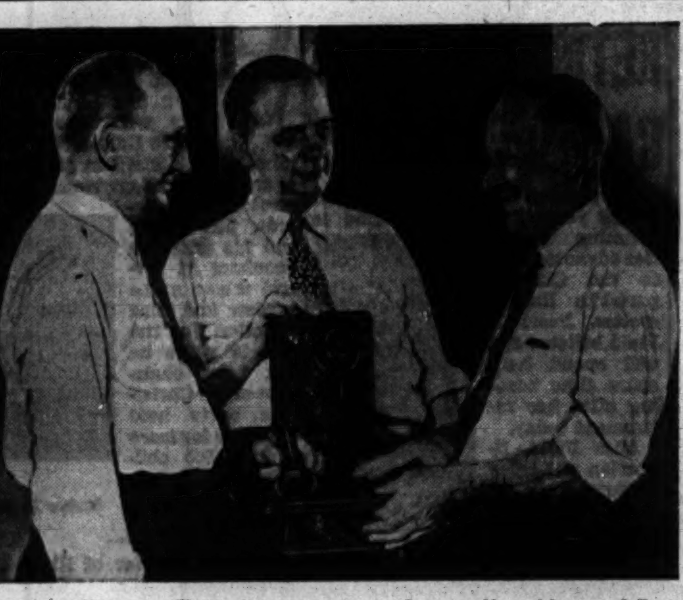
One boy, Raymond O'Neill, who was brought to the home when he was 8 days old, recently was graduated from Proviso High school with the highest honors and the award of a $1,000 scholarship to DePauw university. He is now in military service.

Realizing the post-war needs for the care of dependent children will be greater, the Lutheran Woman's League of Chicago and Vicinity has voted to establish a building fund for the erection, after the war, of a recreation assembly hall with added dormitory accommodations.

The sum of $50,000 is desired to commemorate the golden anniversary of the founding of the league and $25,000 for the silver anniversary of the Children's Receiving home.

As one of the anniversary events, a service of praise and thanksgiving will be held next Sunday night at the Wicker Park English Lutheran church.

Old Timers at Western Electric



Three Western Electric company employes, all residents of Berwyn, observe their 40th anniversaries with the company this month. They are examining a fourth "old timer"—a wall telephone of the type in use in 1904 when they were hired. Left to right are Benedict Anderson, W. D. Layman Sr., and Henry Kobelt.

G.O.P. SEEKS 250 WORKERS TO AID CAMPAIGN IN 7TH

Business Men Bolster Organization.

BY GUY GENTRY.

Supplemental man power furnished by the Business Men's committee in the 7th congressional district has enabled the regular Republican organization to man 80 per cent of the precincts of the district but at least 250 more volunteers are needed.

Lewis R. Brink, 7th district chairman for the committee, said the work of volunteer election helpers is limited only by its man power. The committee is out to overcome the 1942 Democratic majority of 1,065 votes in the 7th as part of its program to elect five Republican congressmen in key districts of Chicago thereby furnishing the additional representatives to give the house of representatives in the next congress a Republican majority.

Business Men Fill Gaps.

Brink said the committee workers are coöperating closely with Charles H. Garland, Republican nominee for congress, and with the regular party ward and township committeemen of the 7th district. Critical shortage of election workers in many precincts has been overcome by volunteers from the Business Men's committee who supplemented the regular party organizations.

Excellent results have been obtained in those precincts where workers have been active, Brink declared. He urged all who could spare time for checking poll lists, canvassing precincts or serving as watchers on election day to call the committee's headquarters at 53 W. Jackson blvd., telephone Harrison 6515.

Aids of Brink Listed.

Ward and township leaders of the committee serving under Brink in the 7th district are:

Bert K. Murphy, 26th ward; Charles M. Hardin, 28th; James Carroll, 30th; W. E. Johnson, 31st; Kenneth Shepard, 32d; Adam John Reuther, 33d; Frank Kelley, 34th; Ralph Kopperschmidt, 35th; Herman M. Richter, 36th; James E. Goodwin, 37th; Laurence Cooper, 38th; Victor S. Anderson, 39th; Lawrence Spuller, 40th; W. Wallace Thompson, 41st; Edwin C. Ford and Thomas C. Dale, 47th; Raymond A. Feind. 50th.

Robert R. Blackburn, Arlington Heights; Ralph R. Lewis, Barrington; H. I. Southerwick, Elk Grove; Ted Bandelin, Elmwood Park; E. J. Schmidt, Hanover; V. Olson, Maine; W. A. Berblinger, Norwood Park; Thomas C. Hart, Palatine; Tom Whitson, Park Ridge; Frank DeLaurentis, River Grove; Herman C. Hattendorf, Schaumberg, and Roy Allison, Wheeling.

Truman Called Last Straw to Voters in 14th

BY LEE SHASSERE.

Farmers in Kane and Kendall counties are swinging their support to Dewey and Bricker in a concerted drive to end New Deal bungling in rural areas, Merritt J. Little, Republican nominee for state senator in the 14th senatorial district, asserted last week.

Selection of Sen. Harry S. Truman of Missouri as Democratic nominee for Vice President has doomed whatever chance the New Deal might have had to get a sizable vote in the two counties, Little said.

"Most voters feel that if Roosevelt should be reëlected for a fourth term and something should happen to him, we would be saddled with an inexperienced man who might try to run national affairs along Boss Pendergast's machine lines," Little asserted.

Sees Only Minor Opposition.

Little expects only minor opposition from the Democratic state senator nominee in the 14th, James T. Walsh of St. Charles.

The Republican county ticket has no opposition in the Kane county election except for the office of coroner."

"The test of a candidate's pledge is his action after election," Rep. William G. Thon [R., 23d] said as he launched a campagin which he predicted would return him to the Illinois house of representatives for his 14th consecutive term.

Thon is seeking reëlection on a platform of past performance. He regards two of the bills he has introduced in the legislative as particularly outstanding.

Has Two Sons in Service.

The Thon law, passed in 1941, prohibits the retail sale of private use of explosive fireworks in Illinois, except by special permission of county or city officials. Passage of this bill climaxed a long fight led by organizations including the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the Illinois Firemen's association.

The other legislative measure to which Thon points is a bill which became a law in 1915. It provides for free distribtuion of a solution of nitrate of silver by the state to be used by all physicians and midwives to prevent blindness in infants.

Rep. Thon was born in Clinton, Ia., Feb. 27, 1886, and is a graduate of Northwestern university law school. Last week he was informed that his son, William Jr., 22, had completed officer training at Fort Still, Okla., and is no wa first lieutanant in the army. Another son, James, 20, recently was admitted by the navy to midshipmen's school at Columbia university.

WEST SUBURBAN EDUCATORS PLAN PICNIC, MEETING

A picnic supper and after dinner assembly are among the events planned for a regional fall meeting of the West Suburban branch of the American Education Fellowship to be held Wednesday at Avery Coonley school, Downers Grove.

Teachers, educators, and parents from Downers Grove and neighboring communities are invited by Conrad C. Hogue, president of the west suburban branch, and David W. Russell, headmaster of Avery Coonley school.

Miss Frances Avery Ward, board member of the American Education Fellowship, and Mr. Hogue have planned the program.

Asked to Bring Picnic Meal.

Those attending the meeting are asked to bring their picnic suppers and enjoy a social hour about the rock pool on the Coonley campus. The picnic will start at 6 p. m. Coffee and milk will be served by the Home and School association, parent-teacher organization of Coonley school.

"The Role of Education in the World Today" will be the topic of Dr. Forest Long, associated with the National Safety council but now on leave of absence. Dr. Long will speak at 7:30 p. m. in the assembly hall.

Old Name Abandoned.

The American Education fellowship formerly was known as the Progressive Education association. The name was changed because the term "progressive" was often misunderstood, misinterpreted, and misused. Good education as described by the fellowship is "the process of learning and living by which a child becomes an understanding adult citizen with strong concern for the development of the world in which free men can and will act together for the common good."

The progressive ideals include a thoro academic, social, and character training.

Officials of the west suburban branch of the fellowship who plan to attend the regional meeting are Conrad C. Hogue, River Forest, president; Marion W. Jordan, superintendent of schools, Cicero, vice president; Lee Zimmerman, La Grange elementary schools, secretary; Leon M. Smaage, superintendent of school, Brookfield, treasurer, and Marjorie A. Blanchard, La Grange, membership chairman.

List Members of Board.

On the board of directors are Charles Butler, principal of Irving school, Oak Park; A. Harold Conger, principal of Roosevelt school, Bellwood; Emmett L. Morris, principal of Irving school, Maywood; Jerry Gerich, principal of Willard school, River Forest; Leo Frank Berg, Oak Park board of education; Frances A. Ward, Avery Coonley school, and Virgil M. Rogers, superintendent of schools, River Forest.

It is believed appropriate that the regional meeting should be held at Coonley school because its founder 32 years ago, Mrs. Avery Coonley, was one of the pioneers in progressive education and a trustee and charter member of the Progressive Education association. Thru the school she sought to realize the ideals of the movement.

ELGIN DISCOVERS YANKS WANT OLD JOBS AFTER WAR

Eighty per cent of the service men and women from Elgin plan to return to "the old home town" when the war is over, according to replies received from questionnaires sent out by the Elgin Association of Commerce.

A total of 2,798 letters was mailed to service men and women carrying pertinent post-war questions and greetings from home. A recent checkup showed that 619 replies had been received including 142 from men and women overseas and 447 from those in this country. About 20 replies are being received each day.

Forty-two per cent of those in service in this country said they would like to return to their former employment, while half of those overseas said they wanted their old jobs back.

St. Ignatius High school is the oldest Catholic High school for boys in the city. Founded in 1869 by the Rev. Arnold Damen, S. J., it almost was destroyed by the 1871 fire shortly after its completion. Because the school and church, known as Holy Family parish, May st. and Roosevelt rd., were saved from the fire which started only a few blocks east, Father Damen vowed to keep seven lights burning before the shrine of the blessed virgin. Visitors to the church still will find the candles burning before the altar of Our Lady of Perpetual Help in the east transept of the Holy Family church.

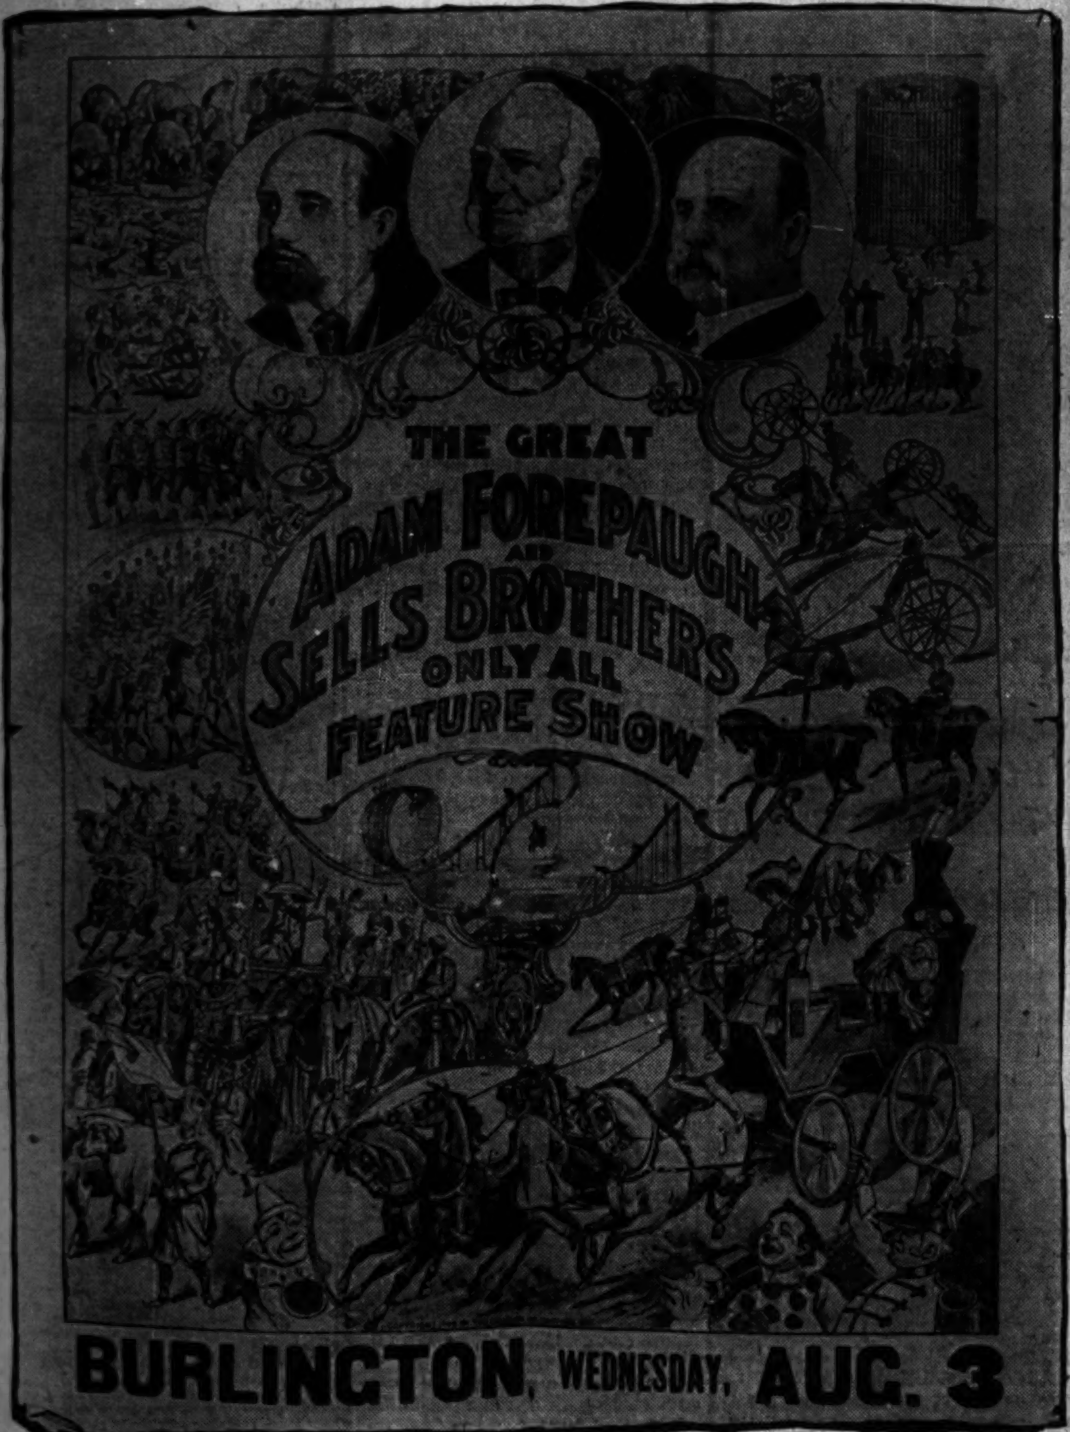
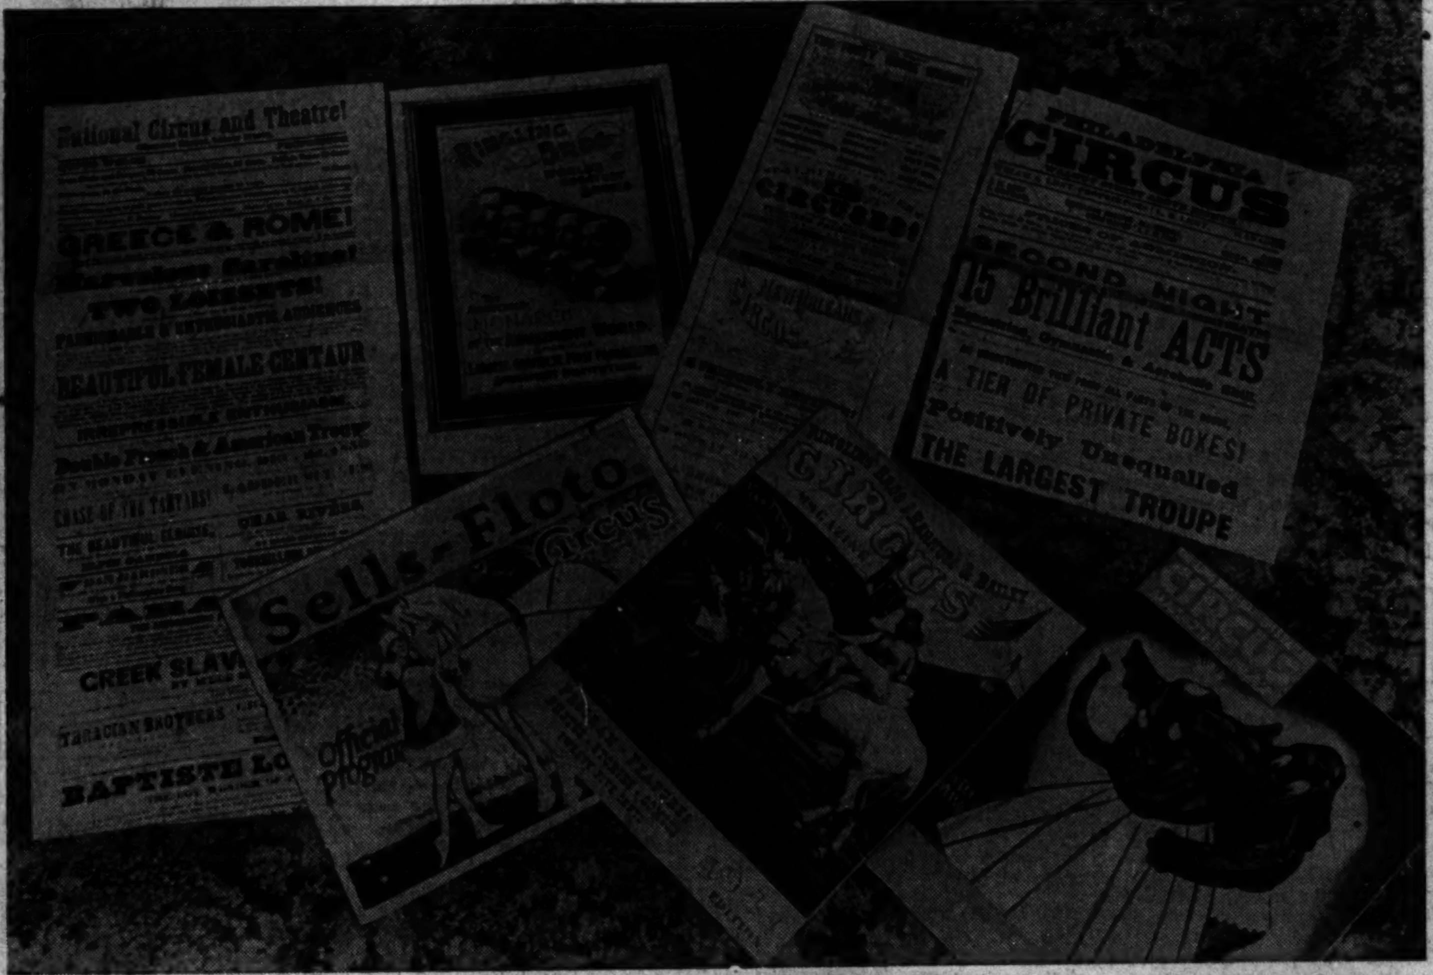
Hey, Look! Hey, Look! They're All Here, So Come and Bring the Family, Too



"Come one, come all! See the wild elephants, bears, and tigers! See the Zouave band! See the daredevil loop-the-loop on a bicycle, and come out alive!" That was the way the barker sounded back in 1904, when the visit of the circus to your small home town was the event of the year. Guaranteed to create nostalgia for those "good old days" are the posters in the collection of Dr. H. H. Conley, Park Ridge. His filing cases contain some 23,000 items of circus memorbilia, including the poster above, advertising the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers show which played in Burlington, Ia., on Aug. 3, 1904.



Circus posters and programs have changed greatly thru the years. So have the prices of admission. The National Circus and Theatre back in 1866 charged 50 cents for seats in the dress circle and parquet, and 75 cents for private boxes, according to the handbill on the extreme left. The Ringling brothers displayed a remarkable unanimity of opinion in their mustaches, shown on the program cover for their 1894 show. An enterprising circus manager in 1858 advertised three circuses in one, a railroad circus, a wagon circus, and a river circus, in the handbill third from left, above. Above, at right, a Philadelphia circus of 1849 advertises "15 brilliant acts in a spacious, elegant, and attractive amphitheater." In the foreground, more modern programs for Sells-Floto performances in 1921, for Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey, with the attractive equestrienne on their 1944 cover, and their comic elephants by Cartoonist Peter Arno on the 1942 program cover.

BERTRAM MILLS CIRCUS

Dr. H. H. Conley keeps his circus collection in two filing cabinets. On the walls of his office hang autographed photos of circus performers, many of whom are his personal friends. He holds a Ringling Brothers circus poster of 1896. The photo, the same used on the cover of the 1944 Ringling program, is of Ernestine Clark, a fourth generation circus performer, and clown Lou Jacobs, a friend of the physician.

The miniature circus Dr. Conley has assembled has become a joy to the entire neighborhood. Its tents and wagons are built to scale, and its managerie might be the pride of any show on the road today. Dr. Conley's son, Hal, left, shows the model to Charles Ringling, whose father goes in for circuses on a somewhat larger scale.

Miss Ann Stuartz, Dr. Conley's office assistant, displays one of the oldest posters in the collection, that of Welch, Mann, and Delavan's "mammoth circus" in 1846.

POLES SWING TO GARLAND IN CONGRESS RACE

See G.O.P. as Hope for Freedom.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

The forthright stand of Charles H. Garland, Republican nominee for congress in the 7th Illinois district, for a free and a whole Poland won praise last week from Polish-American leaders. This was made known by Garland workers, who claimed a strong trend to their candidate in territories with large groups of voters of Polish descent.

One of those who are supporting the G. O. P. nominee is Frank Barc, former editor of the Polish Daily Zjednoczenie. In a speech delivered Wednesday, Barc said he had been a Democrat but was disgusted with the empty promises of the incumbent party.

Need Friendly Congress.

The Poles, he said, sorely need a friendly congress, and haven't had one under Democratic rule. He quoted the Congressional Record to show that of 15 senate speeches favorable to the Polish cause 10 were by Republicans, while in the house 59 of 90 speeches were made by G. O. P. congressmen.

"Be assured," Barc continued, "a President like Dewey and a congressman like Garland will never sell Poland into communistic slavery. Garland is a true friend of Poland."

Link Committed to Kelly.

Garland has pledged that his voice will always be raised against a new dismemberment of the Polish homeland. He has asserted that his opponent, William W. Link, is unable to argue in favor of such a program altho he is himself of Polish ancestry. He asserted that Link, as the choice of the local Democratic machine, is pledged to full support of any Polish deal President Roosevelt and Churchill make with Stalin.

Link is 61 years old and a native of Chicago. Like Garland, he has two sons in military service. He was president of the city's board of local improvements from 1933 to 1935 and at present is a member of the Cook county board of civil service commissioners. He has the support of the CIO-PAC and the so called Independent Voters of Illinois, which indorses only Democrats.

Tells Service Men's Rights.

Garland is mayor of Des Plaines. He was formerly an executive of radio station WBBM, but resigned when he was nominated in April and has since been devoting himself to his campaign. He served as an enlisted man in the first World war and is a Legionnaire with definite ideas on what should be done for returning service men.

"There should be no problem about it," he declared. "The obligation to fight for our country should be matched by the full right to rehabilitation, both financial and educational. A nation that can spend billions for anything and everything must not forget its first due bill after the war—that to the tired warriors coming home. I shall always be a champion of their cause."

Wants Post-war Airport.

During the week Garland announced his intention to fight for civilian use in post-war years of the big Douglas airport near Park Ridge and Des Plaines. It should be kept for commercial use, he said, because is has the ideal suburban location. Moreover, he said, it would be a great boon to residents of the district, few of whom would be more than 20 minutes by auto from it.

The district, with about a half million potential voters, is the largest in the United States, but it went Democratic by only 1,975 votes in 1942.

Uczciwek in Strong Race.

Another northwest side candidate who is making a strong campaign is John F. Uczciwek, Republican, in the 8th district, which is normally a Democratic stronghold. He is a lawyer and conducts a real estate and insurance business of his own. Like Garland, he is an advocate of a free and intact Poland.

His Democratic opponent is Thomas S. Gordon, former city treasurer and one time west parks commissioner. Gordon, Kelly machine choice, is finishing his first term in congress. Uczciwek has taken the lead in his section in demanding a better deal for the future of Poland, which he fears will be Stalin dominated.

Hits Roosevelt Policy.

"After months of silence, President Roosevelt has at last condescended to talk to Polish-American leaders," Uczciwek said. "His statement is unsatisfactory and leaves the situation as it was. Nobody knows what agreements have been made by the British and the President with Stalin.

"What boundaries will Poland have? The President does not say. The only real hope for a free and intact Poland lies in electing Gov. Dewey and a G. O. P. congress. It is hopeless to talk to Democrats; they are pledged to all Roosevelt deals."

North Shore Medical Auxiliary Will Meet

ONE MAN FOOD SERVICE KEEPS DOCTORS AWAY

Indigents Receive Fresh Fruits Every Day.

Altho fruit crops have been curtailed somewhat this year by unseasonable weather, generous donations by farmers have enabled the Rev. Carl Nelson of the Chicago Missionary society, 2018 Evergreen av., to continue the unique food distributing service which he began 15 years ago. The service makes it possible for orphans and aged people in 100 Chicago institutions to enjoy supplies of fresh fruits and vegetables that otherwise would be impossible because of limited budgets.

During the summer and autumn months the Rev. Mr. Nelson solicits surplus supplies of peaches, pears, apples, tomatoes, and other produce from farmers in the Benton Harbor area in Michigan. In two trucks furnished by the missionary society, he transports the food to Chicago and delivers it to day nurseries, homes for crippled children, orphanages, and old people's homes.

Farmers Are Generous.

"About 150 farmers coöperate with us," the Rev. Mr. Nelson said. "They've been mighty generous, too. Everything they give is handpicked and of the first quality—no windfalls or fruits that might spoil."

Because the fresh fruits supply necessary vitamins that might not be present in institutional diets, Mr. Nelson encourages the children and old people to eat generous quantities of his supplies.

"We set the bushel baskets out on the table and let them go to it," he said. "For many of the youngsters it means a new lease on life, because it helps them to build up resistance to childhood diseases."

Children Help Can.

In many institutions a portion of fruits and vegetables are canned to provide supplies for the winter months. Youngsters help with the preserving, and also learn something of the culinary arts.

The Rev. Mr. Nelson began his distribution service during the depression. "I couldn't stand the sight of hungry people on the streets," he said, "so I opened a center in a vacant store on 2728 North av., and fed every one who came in."

The work of the center has broadened with the passing years, necessitating larger quarters. Negotiations now are under way to secure the former Wicker Park Methodist church as headquarters for the missionary society.

Donations Support Work.

The organization is supported by voluntary donations. It draws no denominational lines, and persons of all faiths benefit by the distribution.

"Right now we need about 5,000 fruit jars," the Rev. Mr. Nelson said. "If we had them, there would be 5,000 more quarts of vegetables and fruits on institutions shelves this winter."

Many Institutions Benefit.

Among the northwest side institutions receiving the fruits and vegetables are the Chicago commons, 955 Grand av.; the Danish Lutheran Children's home, 3320 Evergreen av.; Emerson House day nursery, 645 N. Wood st.; Evangelical Home for Children, Bensenville; Lawrence hall, 4833 N. Francisco av.; Lutheran Deaconess day nursery, 1806 N. Fairfield av.; Lutheran Home Finding society, 4840 Byron st.; Margaret Etter creche, 2116 Chicago av.; North Avenue day nursery, 2023 Pierce av.; Norwegian Lutheran Children's home, Park Ridge.

Also, the Park Ridge School for Girls, Park Ridge; Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, 2211 N. Oak Park av.; Bohemian Old People's home, 5061 N. Pulaski rd.; Norwegian Lutheran Bethesda home, 2833 N. Nordica av.; Norwegian Old People's home, 6016 Nina av.; St. Joseph's Home for the Aged, 2650 N. Ridgeway av.; Danish Old People's home, Norwood Park; the Western German Baptist Old People's home, 1851 Spaulding av., and the Lydia Children's home, 4300 Irving Park av.

Ericksen, commander; M. J. Cohn and Leo Palacz, vice commanders; Louis Hirschberg, finance officer; Paul Cipowski, adjutant; Theodore Davis, chaplain, and Thomas Shafer, sergeant at arms.

Ladies of Isabella.

The Lafayette council, Ladies of Isabella, will sponsor its fall benefit and variety party at 7 p. m. Sunday in Alma Mater hall, 1645 Milwaukee av.

Canning Peaches at Children's Home

At the Lydia Children's home, 4300 Irving Park blvd., quarts of peaches donated by the Chicago Missionary society's distribution service are being preserved for the winter months. At work in the kitchen of the Lydia home are, left to right, Miss Nickolene Frang, Joan Burklund, Betty Lou Crow, and Rita Isaacs.

signalman with the 36th division, Pvt. Bavuso was sent out to set up a switchboard at an advanced position. His group chased the Ford across the field until it bogged down. The signalmen took the Germans and the automobile back to their post, where the prisoners were turned over to military police. But Bavuso's party didn't give up the Ford until each had had a turn at the wheel. "It was just like being a civilian once more, driving that Ford," Bavuso remarked. He joined the 36th division last December, and participated in the invasion of southern France.

Lt. Harold Gerson, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Cohn, 4835 N. Springfield av., is now in charge of the engineering school at Seymour Johnson field, Goldsboro, N. C. The course taught in Lt. Leonard, 17, is in training at Great Lakes.

Sgt. William Kulbieda, who received a citation for his activities at Tarawa, and was wounded on Saipan, is spending a 50 day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kulbieda, 862 N. Marshfield av. This is his first furlough in the two years he has been in service. Three of his brothers are in uniform. His twin, Sgt. Henry, is in France; Sgt. Walter is also in France, and Sgt. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Goldstein.

Home on 21 day furlough is Sgt. Arthur W. Magevas, 5243 Nelson st. Sgt. Magevas has been on 51 combat missions in the European theater of war. He was one of the first men to go on the shuttle missions to Russia.

A Chicago marine recently killed two Japs with a long burst of his automatic rifle thereby saving the life of a comrade as his combat patrol annihilated an enemy platoon of 39 men in the Guam jungles. Pvt. Charles R. Krajecki, 23, 3228 N. Lawndale av., saw the two Japs in a coconut log pillbox level their sights on his buddy. "While the Japs were fussing around, I just pulled the trigger of my rifle and held it down," Pvt. Krajecki said. "That's all there was to it." The buddy added: "In camp, Krajecki sleeps 24 hours a day, but out here he doesn't close his eyes. And I sure am glad of it."

Sgt. John F. Berendt, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Berendt, 4541 Wrightwood av., has received the air medal for meritorious achievement during 8th air force attacks on Nazi military and industrial targets. AIRMEN FREED FROM ROMANIA RETURN HOME

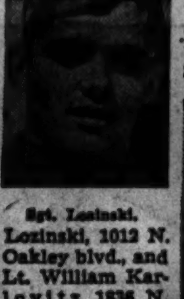
Among Chicago airmen home on furlough or leave after being freed from a Romanian prison camp when that country declared war on Germany are northwest siders Sgt. Joseph J. Lozinski, 1012 N. Oakley blvd., and Lt. William Karlovitz, 1836 N. Harding av. Both served with the 15th A. A. F. in Italy and were shot down while on bombing missions over the Ploesti oil fields.



Sgt. Lozinski.

When Sgt. Lozinski, radio operator-gunner on a B-24 Liberator, bailed out of his plane, he landed in a field and found himself surrounded by curious peasants. "When they saw I was an American," said the sergeant, "they called me comrade and seemed glad to see me. However, I was turned over immediately to the authorities."

Waiting Hard on Nerves.

Both boys stated they were not treated badly while interned, but the endless waiting for news, punctuated by severe bombings, was enough to make the steadiest nerves jittery. When they finally were freed there was still furious ground and air activity between the Romanians and Germans.

"Three buddies and I with our Red Cross food packets took to the fields where we remained hidden three days waiting for the Germans to be driven out," Sgt. Lozinski recalled. Rumors of German victories were frequent but finally the foe was cleared out and they returned to Bucharest. The sergeant, a Lane Technical High school graduate, was overseas but three months and had seven missions to his credit.

Lands on Head.

Lt. William F. Karlovitz, navigator on a Flying Fortress, had 18 missions to his credit when his plane was downed. "Parachuting, I landed easily without a bruise," said the lieutenant. Then he chuckled, "Probably because I landed on my head."

"Prison fare," he recalled, "consisted mostly of black bread, soup, and potatoes, which was pretty monotonous. However, it was the diet of the Romanian soldier."

The prisoners read, played cards, and even played some basketball while waiting for liberation, and both boys said that it came much earlier than any of them had dared hope.

Plans are being formulated for a veterans' aid center for Elmwood Park. Discussion of the project was first held by the selective service system at 7707 Westwood dr., Elmwood Park. Michael Korosy, reemployment committeeman for the board, explained the need for a center.

Purpose of the center will be to provide an information source for returning veterans, prepared to give advice on problems, rights, and benefits, and to direct them to organizations which can be of assistance. Volunteer workers will be trained by the war man power commission, the veterans' administration, and the selective service.

Committeemen working on plans for the center will include Korosy, Eleanor Sorensen, secretary, and Walter P. Grubbe, publicity.

G.O.P. SEEKS 250 WORKERS TO AID CAMPAIGN IN 7TH

Business Men Bolster Organization.

BY GUY GENTRY.

Supplemental man power furnished by the Business Men's committee in the 7th congressional district has enabled the regular Republican organization to man 80 per cent of the precincts of the district but at least 250 more volunteers are needed.

Lewis R. Brink, 7th district chairman for the committee, said the work of volunteer election helpers is limited only by its man power. The committee is out to overcome the 1942 Democratic majority of 1,065 votes in the 7th as part of its program to elect five Republican congressmen in key districts of Chicago thereby furnishing the additional representatives to give the house of representatives in the next congress a Republican majority.

Business Men Fill Gaps.

Brink said the committee workers are coöperating closely with Charles H. Garland, Republican nominee for congress, and with the regular party ward and township committeemen of the 7th district. Critical shortage of election workers in many precincts has been overcome by volunteers from the Business Men's committee who supplemented the regular party organizations.

Excellent results have been obtained in those precincts where workers have been active, Brink declared. He urged all who could spare time for checking poll lists, canvassing precincts or serving as watchers on election day to call the committee's headquarters at 53 W. Jackson blvd., telephone Harrison 6515.

Aids of Brink Listed.

Ward and township leaders of the committee serving under Brink in the 7th district are:

Bert K. Murphy, 26th ward; Charles M. Hardin, 28th; James Carroll, 30th; W. E. Johnson, 31st; Kenneth Shepard, 32d; Adam John Reuther, 33d; Frank Kelley, 34th; Ralph Kopperschmidt, 35th; Herman M. THON'S RECORD IN STATE HOUSE HIS GUARANTEE

BY LEE SHASSERE.

The test of a candidate's pledge is his actions after election, Rep. William G. Thon [R., 23d] pointed out last week as he launched a campaign which, he predicted, would return him to the Illinois house of representatives for his 14th consecutive term.

Rep. Thon is seeking reëlection on a platform of past performances. During more than a quarter of a century in the legislature he has introduced many bills, but regards two of them as particularly outstanding.

Thon Law Hits Fireworks.

One is the Thon law, passed in 1941, which prohibits the retail sale or private use of explosive fireworks in Illinois, except by special permission of county or city officials. Passage of this bill climaxed a long fight led by groups including the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the Illinois Firemen's association.

In 1903, the American Medical association began compiling nationwide statistics on fireworks fatalities. Sixty persons were killed outright that year and 406 others died from tetanus caused by fireworks wound infections. Injuries in 1903 totaled 3,983, including 10 persons totally blinded and 75 who lost the sight of one eye.

Record of 1916 Some Better.

That year was the worst, but improvement was slow. On July 4, 1916, fireworks killed 30 persons and injured 850. Then the reporting of figures was discontinued until 1937 when the national death toll was only 20, but injuries soared to 7,205. There were no fireworks deaths in Illinois that year, and only one each for 1938 and 1939, and none for 1940. Fireworks accidents in Illinois in 1937 totaled 485; for 1938, 513; for 1939, 458; for 1940, 400, and for 1941, 209.

"I listened all day last July 4 for sounds of exploding fireworks," said Rep. Thon. "Not one sound did I hear. Chicago was silent so far as this sort of noise was concerned. Prior to the anti-fireworks bill, Chicago and vicinity sounded like a battlefield before and on July 4. I get much satisfaction in the knowledge that I played a part in making July 4 safe and sane."

The other legislative measure, which became law in 1915, provides for free distribution of a 1 per cent solution of nitrate of silver by the state to be used by all physicians and midwives to prevent blindness to infants.

Has Two Sons in Service.

Rep. Thon was born in Clinton, Ia., Feb. 27, 1886, and is a graduate of Northwestern university law school. Last week he was informed that his son, William Jr., 22, had completed officers' training at Fort Sill, Okla., and is now a first lieutenant in the army. Another son, James, 20, was recently admitted by the navy to midshipmen's school at Columbia university. Both boys enlisted.

State Sen. Ray Paddock, Republican senate nominee from the 8th district, is gathering in the last of the summer's produce on his 240 acre farm at Round lake, and is looking forward, he says, to harvesting a bumper crop of votes on Nov. 7.

The 8th senatorial district includes Boone, Lake, and McHenry counties, which Sen. Paddock has represented in the upper house since 1928. Charles F. Hayes of Harvard, retired Chicago and North Western railway conductor, is the Democratic nominee.

Lives on Farm of Birth.

The farm Sen. Paddock works today is the same one on which he was born in 1877. This farm was first cleared and cultivated by his father in 1852. As the 8th district is predominantly a rural area, Sen. Paddock has said that he feels he is well equipped to represent farmers in the Illinois senate because he is cognizant of their problems.

Hayes, who celebrated his 66th birthday last week, made an unsuccessful bid for the Democratic house of representatives nomination from the 8th a decade ago.

Douglas Plant Anticipates
2 Years' Full Production

The Douglas Aircraft Co., the nation's top producer of military aircraft, has the government's assurance of at least two more years of war work after the defeat of Germany.

It has a backlog of postwar commercial orders totaling more than $150,000,000.

Yet, despite these bright prospects, the huge Douglas plant near Park Ridge needs 4,000 more workers for peak capacity, and hundreds leave the plant in search of "permanent" employment at the news of each battle won by the United Nations.

Donald Douglas.

This problem was discussed last week by Donald W. Douglas, president of the company, and 35 of his Chicago division heads immediately after his return from New York where he signed contracts with three major airlines r the early delivery of 93 new h-speed, four-engined airliners.
glas Addresses Executives. a dinner meeting in the water Beach Hotel, Douglas is executives:

is here to stay, but I want Chicago to know that Douglas is here—in Chicago—to stay. But we cannot build these planes unless we have enough workers.

Big Transports Needed.

From other sources it was learned that the C-54 Skymaster type of cargo transport being produced here will be a military essential for several years, for these reasons:

1. Long range huge cargo air transports are and will be needed for operations in the Pacific, where they will provide a safe, rapid means of supply, transfer of fighting personnel, and the evacuation of the wounded.

2. With the bridges, railroads and roads of the European war theater almost totally destroyed, the armies of occupation will need this type of travel.

Douglas said he would appeal to Mayor Kelly and state and eral officials to help him

Start YOUR FUTURE..today in Aviation . . train for it now by coming to work at Douglas at once!

AFTER THE WAR, aviation will be one of the major industries in the Chicago area. Airlines, aircargo carriers, maintenance and operations shops, and aircraft plants will have good jobs for workers who are properly trained. Prepare for your career in aviation NOW by working in the Chicago plant of Douglas Aircraft Company. No "cutbacks" or "layoffs" in sight here. Douglas employes will work at full capacity building vitally needed military transport planes until Japan is defeated. Then they will build planes for the airlines on orders already booked this far ahead.

Good Pay . . . Convenient Transportation. Experienced or inexperienced . . . we train you so that you are bound to make good in fabricating, shop, assembly and installation work . . . what we term "beating on the airplane." As interesting work as you'll ever find.

If you want to serve your country, make good money, enjoy your job, and if you are not already employed in an essential industry, don't delay. Come to the WMC's U. S. Employment Service office at 5306 Lawrence Avenue. Or come to our own employment offices at 4070 Milwaukee Avenue, near Irving Park; 2717½ Milwaukee Avenue, near Logan Square; or to the plant employment office at Mannheim, Higgins and Devon.

COLORED VOTERS TELL OF STAKE IN SENATE RACE

BY ROSCOE SIMMONS.

"I have lived thru our story as a free people and know the necessity of a Republican senate or a senate as nearly Republican as possible."

These are the words of the Rev. B. U. Taylor, 83 year old presiding elder of the Chicago district of the African Methodist Episcopal church, as he explained the interest of the colored people in the campaigns of Thomas E. Dewey for President and Richard J. Lyons for the senate.

Freedom came thru the Presidency and the steps to make secure that freedom came from congress, explained Dr. Taylor. The traditional interest in Washington is the chief factor in the "great return" of the colored voters to Republicanism, according to Dr. Taylor.

Admires Fighting Spirit.

Dr. Taylor, a resident of Chicago 31 years, is a trustee of Wilberforce university, of which he is a graduate.

"I remember the great senators, their work for us, the rebukes they suffered on our account," he said, "and Lyons seems to possess the heart and fighting spirit of men of sturdier times. He reminds me of Logan, our greatest senator."

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Taylor added, "Illinois would have a team more alert and powerful for the rights of free men than any other state could claim. We weren't wrong on Brooks and we are not wrong on Lyons."

Praises Party Fundamentals.

"Republican principles are all right," said Dr. James H. Brown, pastor of West Point Baptist church, 36th st. and Cottage Grove av., recognized as a leader among pastors of his denomination. "Our trouble has been in getting men brave enough to stand on those principles." Under the leadership of Dewey, Dr. Brown said, Republicans, especially among the younger statesmen, are rising everywhere to proclaim party fundamentals.

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Brown added, "we wouldn't be hoping that our senators would be all right on the poll tax, lynchings, and kindred matters so often up before the congress; we would know where they would stand on a show of hands."

"Now and then up comes a man outside of the Republican party who may be all right on one or two questions, but it is a headache watching and wondering," said George M. Porter, pioneer druggist, 3500 S. State st. For 32 years Porter's drug stores have been institutions on Dearborn and State sts.

"Lyons Is Our Man."

"On his record Lyons is our man," said Dr. Porter. "Aside from his record, second to none on equality of all American peoples, he has pledged himself to stand with us in an uphill fight we are making to come into fullest citizenship. His opponent may at times break from his party, but he is still a party man. In politics it is not the man, but the party."

Illinois, Dr. Porter said, is a key state in the battle of the free man for a free country. "Our men have been key men, like Lincoln, Grant, and Logan. Brooks is certainly a key man. Lyons is worthy to step into that class."

The militant and widely known pastor of Grant Memorial church, 4600 Evans av., Dr. W. H. Griffin, said that the contest over the seat in the United States senate is not one between Lyons and Lucas.

Sees Contest of Principles.

"The contest," said Dr. Griffin, "is over principles; over issues set forth by both state and national party platforms; between what Democratic conventions say and what is said in the convention platforms of the Republican party."

"Democratic candidates," said Dr. Griffin, "are all right up to a certain point; usually that point is us. Lyons is running on platforms that oppose every wrong; his opponent runs on platforms that name no wrongs and promise to right none."

"The senate," declared Dr. Griffin, "is controled by our enemies. My people are determined to do what they can to place it under control of our friends. We are proud of Sen. Brooks and have every reason to believe that we will be proud of Lyons. On equality of man his record is clean."

"Speaks Ideas of Illinois."

"My years are passably long," said Dr. A. N. Gordon, physician with offices at 35th st. and Indiana av., and former president of the Appomattox club, "and my experience a long one both in the north and in the south. Nothing is as important to us as friends in congress and nobody in congress is as important as a senator. Lyons will prove the friend in need as a senator from Illinois.

"Maybe," said Dr. Gordon, "we shall not see any Lodges or Forakers or Allisons in our day again, but in the senate, Lyons, joining Sen. Brooks, will stir our recollection of those great men. He speaks the ideas of Illinois. We won't have to petition him to stand by the Constitution."

St. Edmund Mothers.

The Mothers' club of St. Edmund's school, Oak Park, will present Dorothy Posey, dramatic book reviewer, at a meeting at 2:30 p. m. Friday.

THORNTON PTA SETS STAGE FOR OLD TIME FAIR

Gay Nineties Dress to Be the Style.

Students, parents, and faculty members of the Thornton Township High school, Harvey, will pool their talents in a Gay '90s county fair Friday night at the school. The school PTA is sponsoring the fair.

The organization has 1,100 members and represents 15 southwest towns. Each community is contributing food and articles to sell in the stores and each will conduct its own event. Proceeds will be used for student aid, Red Cross, a Community and War Fund donation, PTA activities, and the proposed Harvey Y. M. C. A.

Here's Chance to Hiss-s-s!

A cast from Midlothian wearing costumes of the '90s will present an old fashioned melodrama, "The Great Bottle-Neck Diamond," or "The Villainous Shah." Midlothians who will appear in the play are Charles W. Sexton, Mrs. Lester Mussman, Mrs. James Frantz, James Burdett, Carl Jorgensen, and Mrs. John Lowery.

Costumes of the '90s will be worn by many who attend, but are not required for admittance, Mrs. Warren Peasley, Flossmoor, chairman of the fair, said.

Plenty of Baloney.

The country store, under direction of Mrs. Charles F. Reed and Mrs. Charles F. Bremigan, Homewood, will be the center for political discussion with a cracker barrel for Republicans and another for Democrats. Cheese, baloney, bakery goods, canned goods, and home made candies will be sold by Mrs. Hiram Jacobs, South Holland. Mrs. C. A. Brock, Flossmoor, is arranging a postoffice where "uncalled for" packages will be sold "sight unseen." An antique shop will be sponsored by Mrs. Leila N. Templin.

Square dancing is being arranged by Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Henry Petrafke for the early evening. Allen Klemme, Crete, accordionist, will play for the dancing assisted by Miss Eva Steinert and Miss Leila Veazey, Chicago Heights, callers. Music for modern dancing will be played by the "Thorntoneers," student swing orchestra led by John Tourtleotte.

Other entertainment will be old-fashioned motion pictures provided by Mrs. Harold Miller, Harvey; a magic show by Jack Trestor, Riverdale; fortune tellers recruited from Midlothian, Markham, Tinley Park, Oak Forest, Posen, Dixmoor, and Blue Island by Mrs. J. G. Youngblood, Oak Forest; and games arranged by Mrs. Hugh McGowen, Dolton. A cake walk will be arranged by Mrs. Clyde Tester, Riverdale.

Nostalgic '90s.

Typical scenes of the gay '90s will be portrayed by the School Girls' club under direction of Miss Helene Wilson, dean of girls. Jean Stapley, Homewood, and Susan Peasley, Flossmoor, students, are co-chairmen of this feature.

Supper will be served in the school cafeteria from 6 to 8 p. m.

Women who will arrange tables and help prepare dishes are Mrs. Karl Treen, Mrs. John Yates, Mrs. Paul Conant, Mrs. William Voss, Mrs. G. C. Witzel, and Mrs. Sydbey Hurley, all of Harvey; Mrs. Fred Snyder, Hazel Crest; Mrs. Bert Greenwell, Markham; and Mrs. William O'Connell, Homewood.

BUSBEY FORCES EXPECT SMEAR ATTACK BY PAC

Congressman Tops Red Purge List.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

One of the most important congressional races in the United States is that in the 3d Illinois district on Chicago's southwest side, where all the resources of the communist minded political action committee of the CIO are being marshalled in a titanic effort to defeat the incumbent Republican representative, Fred E. Busbey.

Busbey, who gained the undying hatred of Sidney Hillman and his associate, Earl Browder, by exposing the communists thru the Dies committee, has predicted that "the dirtiest of all smear campaigns" will be launched against him in the final weeks before the election.

Expect PAC to Cloud Record.

Members of the Republican and nonpartisan groups which are backing the congressman explained the course which the smear will take.

1. It will assert falsely that Busbey's vote was given to many bills the PAC designates as anti-labor, but which in fact have no labor connection—such as the income tax law, abolition of the domestic branch of the OWI and refusal to go along with the price rollback scheme.

2. Smear literature will be sent out in districts friendly to Busbey in the hope that voters will be disgusted with the Republican party and stay away from the polls.

Cites CIO, PAC Differences.

3. Busbey will be accused of being a "bosses' man" and as "working with the biggest rats in the country."

4. A huge effort will be made to confuse his excellent record of pro-labor with his opposition to the communist dominated PAC, which demands that those it favors be rubbber stamps for Hillman.

"Let's not get the millions of hardworking members of the CIO mixed up with the PAC," Busbey urged. "They are different things. The rank and file generally resents being forced to contribute money to make Sidney Hillman boss of the Democratic party. It knows and resents the communist domination.

Expects CIO Support.

"It also resents being told how to vote. Real labor knows its true friends and will not condemn them simply because of a campaign of mud throwing. I firmly believe I will get the majority of the CIO vote in the district; CIO men who work with their hands want to remain Americans under the American form of government.

"To all of these I say: Make your choice on the facts, not on the vilification that is being dished out by the enemies who have vowed to defeat me because I would not be their rubber stamp."

Service Men Support Him.

Busbey said that there would be stories circulated to the effect that he favors post-war inflation, and "similar misrepresentations." These he proposes to combat by speeches and printed literature. He has the support of many service men's groups [for many years he was in Legion work], and one of these will hold a meeting in his honor at 7801 Throop st. Friday evening. Among the guests scheduled to be present are Gov. Green and Richard J. Lyons.

In congress Busbey has frequently spoken in favor of fair treatment for Lithuanian, Polish, and other minorities now dominated in Europe by Russia. He has told his audiences that the Polish-Americans have no prospect of finding out from the President how Poland is to be fitted into the Atlantic Charter and that their sole hope is in the Republicans.

Kozicki Hits Polish Policy.

Busbey's opponent is Edward A. Kelly, former congressman who will have the assistance of the city hall and the full PAC strength.

In the 4th district on the southwest and west sides the G. O. P. candidate, Leo J. Kozicki, real estate and insurance broker, has been sharply critical of the Roosevelt policy on Poland. He has asserted that the incumbent congressman, Martin Gorski, is so tied up with the local Democratic machine that he dares say nothing in favor of Poland, free and intact.

Kozicki has demanded that a full explanation be given now as to the course of negotiations with Stalin on Poland's fate. He is also campaigning against regimentation by OPA and other government agencies. These can be changed to a program of better public service only by a new administration, he said.

COLORED VOTERS TELL OF STAKE IN SENATE RACE

Leaders Explain Their Eye on Washington.

BY ROSCOE SIMMONS.

"I have lived thru our story as a free people and know the necessity of a Republican senate or a senate as nearly Republican as possible."

These are the words of the Rev. B. U. Taylor, 83 year old presiding elder of the Chicago district of the African Methodist Episcopal church, as he explained the interest of the colored people in the campaigns of Thomas E. Dewey for President and Richard J. Lyons for the senate.

Freedom came thru the Presidency and the steps to make secure that freedom came from congress, explained Dr. Taylor. The traditional interest in Washington is the chief factor in the "great return" of the colored voters to Republicanism, according to Dr. Taylor.

Admires Fighting Spirit.

Dr. Taylor, a resident of Chicago 31 years, is a trustee of Wilberforce university, of which he is a graduate.

"I remember the great senators, their work for us, the rebukes they suffered on our account," he said, "and Lyons seems to possess the heart and fighting spirit of men of sturdier times. He reminds me of Logan, our greatest senator."

"Republican principles are all right," said Dr. James H. Brown, pastor of West Point Baptist church, 36th st. and Cottage Grove av., recognized as a leader among pastors of his denomination. "Our trouble has been in getting men brave enough to stand on those principles.

"With Lyons in the senate," Dr. Brown added, "we wouldn't be hoping that our senators would be all right on the poll tax, lynchings, and kindred matters so often up before the congress; we would know where they would stand on a show of hands."

"Now and then up comes a man outside of the Republican party who may be all right on one or two questions, but it is a headache watching and wondering," said George M. Porter, pioneer druggist, 3500 S. State st. For 32 years Porter's drug stores have been institutions on Dearborn and State sts.

"Lyons Is Our Man."

"On his record Lyons is our man," said Dr. Porter. "Aside from his record, second to none on equality of all American peoples, he has pledged himself to stand with us in an uphill fight we are making to come into fullest citizenship. His opponent may at times break from his party, but he is still a party man. In politics it is not the man, but the party."

Illinois, Dr. Porter said, is a key state in the battle of the free man for a free country. "Our men have been key men, like Lincoln, Grant, and Logan. Brooks is certainly a key man. Lyons is worthy to step into that class."

The militant and widely known pastor of Grant Memorial church, 4600 Evans av., Dr. W. H. Griffin, said that the contest over the seat in the United States senate is not one between Lyons and Lucas.

Sees Contest of Principles.

"The contest," said Dr. Griffin, "is over principles; over issues set forth by both state and national party platforms; between what Democratic conventions say and what is said in the convention platforms of the Republican party."

"Democratic candidates," said Dr. Griffin, "are all right up to a certain point; usually that point is us. Lyons is running on platforms that oppose every wrong; his opponent runs on platforms that name no wrongs and promise to right none."

"The senate," declared Dr. Griffin, "is controled by our enemies. My people are determined to do what they can to place it under control of our friends. We are proud of Sen. Brooks and have every reason to believe that we will be proud of Lyons. On equality of man his record is clean."

"Speaks Ideas of Illinois."

"My years are passably long," said Dr. A. N. Gordon, physician with offices at 35th st. and Indiana av., and former president of the Appomattox club, "and my experience a long one both in the north and in the south. Nothing is as important to us as friends in congress and nobody in congress is as important as a senator. Lyons will prove the friend in need as a senator from Illinois.

"Maybe," said Dr. Gordon, "we shall not see any Lodges or Forakers or Allisons in our day again, but in the senate, Lyons, joining Sen. Brooks, will stir our recollection of those great men. He speaks the ideas of Illinois. We won't have to petition him to stand by the Constitution."

G.O.P. REQUESTS 1,000 WORKERS TO HELP BUSBEY

Business Men Already Have 400 on Job.

BY GUY GENTRY.

At least 1,000 workers in addition to the 400 volunteers already received by the Business Men's committee are needed to supplement the regular Republican organization in the 3d congressional district, Fred M. Gillies, district chairman of the committee, announced yesterday.

The committee, Gillies said, is seeking the reëlection of Rep. Fred E. Busbey as part of the committee's goal of electing Republican congressional candidates in five key districts of Chicago and thus assure a Republican majority in the house of representatives in the next congress.

400 Already on Job.

Gillies, plant superintendent of the Inland Steel company and former all-American tackle at Cornell, said approximately 400 members of the committee already are working beside regular Republican precinct workers in the district which gave Busbey a 9,500 vote plurality out of 225,000 cast in 1942.

Additional Republican workers are needed particularly, Gillies said, in the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th wards which have been strongly Democratic and in Calumet, Lemont, and Palos townships which showed slight Democratic majorities in 1942.

Gillies reported 100 volunteers have been assigned to Committeeman Harry A. Carlson in the 19th ward. County Chairman George M. Fisher, committeeman of the 18th ward, has received the help of 45 volunteers. Help has been given by the committee in other wards and townships.

Precinct Canvass Next.

Harold R. Schradzke, the committee's chairman in the 1st district, said his workers, supplementing the ward organizations and the workers of William E. King, Republican congressional nominee, made as complete a registration of voters as possible. From now on, he said, volunteers and regular party workers will canvass the precincts, giving particular attention to the removal from voting lists of "floaters" who registered from hotels and lodging houses.

Among committee volunteer workers in the 1st district are Stephen Corboy, 2100 Indiana av.; Hobart Neff, 141 W. Jackson blvd.; Ray Odman, 201 N. Wells st.; Karl Seyfarth, 208 S. La Salle st.; Frank T. Breckenridge, 5735 Blackstone av.

Any person who can assist in checking voting lists, canvass precincts, or work as watchers on election day is requested to call committee headquarters, 53 W. Jackson blvd., telephone Harrison 6515.

ACADEMY OF OUR LADY REVISIONS NEARLY FINISHED

Longwood Mothers' club will hold a party at 8 p. m. Friday in St. Margaret's auditorium, 99th and Throop sts., to help pay expenses of a $50,000 building program being completed at the Academy of Our Lady, 95th and Throop sts.

The program includes remodeling of a third floor auditorium in the administration building into a sewing room, art department, study hall, classrooms, science department, and biology department, and changes in the basement cafeteria.

Fathers to View Changes.

Members of the Fathers' club will view the improvements Oct. 26 as guests of the Mothers' club. Senior students will escort the parents following a program which includes community singing and a monolog version of the play, "Life with Father," presented by Mary Louise Hickey, dramatist.

The improvements were made necessary by the steady influx of students. Enrollment in the high school is 865 and there are 140 pupils in the grade school. Fifty students were turned away this year because of lack of space. The school, now in its 70th year, provides elementary and high school curricula for girls.

The school was founded and is still conducted by the School Sisters of Notre Dame. Its equipment includes Hackman hall, containing a conservatory of music; Aquinas hall, freshman building, administration building, Science hall, which contains four laboratories, and an elementary school building.

Students Sell War Bonds.

The academy is a member of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, is accredited to the University of Illinois, and is recognized in Illinois as a four year private high school.

This year the school sold $193,488.65 in war bonds and stamps. Five landing craft, a $110,000 Douglas ambulance plane, and other war equipment were purchased.

Academy associations are the Mothers' club, Fathers' club, Alumnae association, and a ladies' auxiliary. The student school organization is the Sodality of Our Lady, which is conducted by the student council under direction of junior and senior moderators and subject to spiritual supervision of the academy chaplain.

Members of the Mothers' club on the party committee are Mrs. John E. Murphy, president; Mrs. Frank A. Drews, Mrs. John I. Lynch, Mrs. Arthur C. Rademacher, Mrs. V. R. Groll, Mrs. James J. Sullivan, Mrs. A. F. Petretti, Mrs. Walter J. Miller, Mrs. Lester W. Lemme, Mrs. William T. Curran, and Mrs. Henry Lamberty.

MANY BENEFITS — ONE OBLIGATION: Over 500,000 book-reading families now belong to the Book-of-the-Month Club. They do so in order to keep themselves from missing the important new books they are really interested in.

As a Club member, you receive an advance publication report about the judges' choice—and also reports about all other important coming books. If you decide you want the book-of-the-month, you let it come. If not (on a blank always provided) you can specify some other book you want or simply say: "Send me nothing."

Last year the retail value of free books given to Club members was over $7,000,000—given, not sold! These book-dividends could be distributed free because so many subscribers ordinarily want the book-of-the-month that an enormous edition can be printed. The saving on this quantity-production enables the Club to buy the right to print other fine library volumes. These are then manufactured and distributed free among subscribers—one for every two books-of-the-month purchased.

You pay no yearly fee as a member. Your one obligation is that you must buy no fewer than four books-of-the-month in any twelve-month period. Your subscription to the Club is not for one year, but as long as you decide; you can end it at any time after taking four books-of-the-month. You pay for the books as you get them—the regular retail price (frequently less) plus a small charge to cover postage and other mailing expenses. (Prices are slightly higher in Canada.)

Chicago's Opera Season Opens Tomorrow Night

'Carmen,' First Performance, Is Sold Out

By Claudia Cassidy.

Gladys Swarthout.
[Sketch by James Montgomery Flagg.]

After a year's silence, the Chicago Opera company lifts its mosaic curtain tomorrow night on Gladys Swarthout's sold out "Carmen," opening a provocative and possibly an exciting season. Curiosity pricks the air because the opera is not only turning a new leaf, but opening an almost entirely new book. All the artistic direction is new, as resident opera goes, from Fausto Cleva at the head thru the stage direction of Gustaf Bergman and Lothar Wallerstein, the chorus trained by Konrad Neuger, and the ballet chosen by Boris Romanoff, with Leon Fokine, nephew of the great Fokine, as premier danseur.

Our settings still come from our munificent opera warehouse, tho there was a belated attempt to create new designs for the revival of "Péléas and Mélisande." Stanislas Mitruk, the Chicago boy who has done such notable ballet work for Nijinska and Massine, made some sketches which I am told the management admired, but had neither the time nor the money to execute. And the opera stars are the same the country over, now that the European source of supply is cut off, numerous new names appear in the casts, the most celebrated being that of Jeanette MacDonald, who makes her début as Juliet the afternoon of Nov. 4, and returns later for another Juliet and a Marguerite in "Faust."

From a financial point of view, the opera could scarcely hope to reopen in more auspicious times. People have money and they are too restless not to go places. They still stay away in droves from what they dislike, but anything approximating a good show blazes at the boxoffice. The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, shorn of all its stars save the incomparable Danilova, thrust in young substitutes, put on lively shows, and drew a record breaking $79,000 in 15 performances. As the opera's capacity is the same, and its top prices almost double the ballet's, it has a wonderful chance to stick to reasonably black ink. The management reports unprecedented demand for tickets — unprecedented, that is, in the current management's day, which began after the collapse of the Insull era. The postman makes an extra trip each day to deliver mail orders, which seven girls have been trying to fill, while three boxoffice windows do their best to cope with clamoring customers.

IN LAST WEEK

Eva Le Gallienne, co-star and director of the revival of Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard," now in its last week at the Blackstone.

Miss Swarthout's chic Carmen will be her first at the opera house since 1941, altho she sang it at Soldiers' field in 1942. Christina Carroll is a new Micaela, while Kurt Baum sings Don Jose, Alexander Sved is the Escamillo and Mark Love the Zuniga. Mr. Cleva begins a busy week, conducting four performances out of five.

Wednesday's "La Traviata" gives Chicago opera its first chance to hear Bidu Sayao as Violetta, one of her more celebrated roles, with Mario Berini new as Alfredo and Robert Weede returning to sing the elder Germont. Born in Rio de Janeiro, Miss Sayao studied in Paris with Jean de Reszke and made her début at Rio's Teatro Municipale. Later in New York Toscanini chose her for Debussy's "Blessed Damozel," and the Metropolitan Opera immediately engaged her, possibly with a canny eye to reviving "Péléas and Mélisande"—which is back on our list Nov. 8 and 13 for the first time in 13 seasons, with Miss Sayao as Mélisande, Martial Singher as Péléas and Lawrence Tibbett as Golaud, with Eugene Goossens conducting.

Marjory Hess, formerly a north side Chicagoan who attended the University of Chicago, makes her début as Mimi in Friday night's "La Boheme," the first of five performances at special prices staged in collaboration with the board of education. Nino Martini is the Rodolfo, Richard Bonelli the Marcello, Virgilio Lazzari the Colline, Christina Carroll a new Musetta, while the beloved veteran, Vittorio Trevisan, returns to sing the buffo roles of Benoit and Alcindoro.

"Aida," which has lifted more opening night curtains than any other opera, waits this week until Saturday afternoon, when Zinka Milanov, Kerstin Thorborg, Kurt Baum, Alexander Sved, Nicola Moscona and Mark Love sing the leading roles. Mr. Moscona, one of the more melodious young basses, will appear in Orchestra hall recital Oct. 20 to benefit Greek war relief.

Saturday night's "Die Walküre" rates as news, not only because the opera is being revived for the first time since 1940, but also because all the leading singers are new to the Chicago cast. Helen Traubel sings Brünnhilde, Kerstin Thorborg the Fricka, Emery Darcy, a Chicago baritone turned heldentenor, is Siegmund, Herbert Janssen sings Wotan, Astrid Varnay is Sieglinde, and Gerald Desmarais, a French Canadian baritone, makes his début as Hunding. Edwin McArthur, who conducted the opera for Flagstad and Melchior in 1940, again holds the baton.

The Metropolitan Opera, meanwhile, has chosen Gounod's "Faust" to open its 60th season the night of Nov. 27. Edward Johnson says business is good there, too, and that while he has lost Sir Thomas Beecham for most or all of the season, depending on when the conductor returns from England, he will have Erich Leinsdorf back for Wagner and may coax Bruno Walter to give up some of his year off to do "Fidelio." Other conductors for the 18 week season are George Szell, Paul Breisach, Emil Cooper, Wilfred Pelletier, Karl Riedel, Frank St. Leger, and Cesare Sodero. The Metropolitan will revive "La Gioconda," "Die Meistersinger," and "Coq d'Or," the latter in English. Our "Meistersinger" sets were presumably sent east for the revival, for reasons best known to the management, and there was talk, too, of borrowing the Chicago "Gioconda," long reverberant with Rosa Raisa's spectacular song.

THE HIDDEN TOWN

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

(Copyright: 1944: By F. R. Bechdolt.)

INSTALMENT VIII.

THERE were two ways from the plaza to the main street; one went by the corner where Harvey's roadster was parked; the other skirted the near end of the old mission church. It happened that Harvey chose the latter. It was about 9 o'clock when he reached the street, but except for himself and Pete Escobar there wasn't a soul on the plank sidewalks. Pete was a good half block ahead of him and the blocks in Escondido were a full 300 feet in length. Apparently the old vaquero wasn't aware of Harvey behind him for he drifted aimlessly into the only blacksmith shop in this part of California. Passing the doorway a few moments later Harvey glanced within.

Business, he was thinking, must be slacker than usual this morning, for the smith was gone and the forge fire was dead.

Pete Escobar was standing with one foot up on the anvil block. He raised his right arm and bent his index finger. Obeying the summons, Harvey noted the gravity in the mahogany colored features.

"You go out by the back door," Pete said, "and nobody will see you. Then slip into the big ditch the road crew dug last year. It's only a few yards off. Make for that grove of gum trees in Dutra's pasture lot and mind you keep your head down all the way. I'll fetch my saddle horse there inside of five minutes."

The question which Harvey asked was natural under the circumstances but the vaquero regarded him in growing amazement before he replied.

"No, I'm not crazy, Harvey, but I think maybe you are. Or is it that you did not kill Anastasia Rodriguez?"

"That, I suppose, hadn't occurred to you before." Harvey grinned. "No, Pete, I didn't kill Anastasia Rodriguez. I didn't even know he was dead. So what?"

"Ees no joke." Pete's voice and face bore out his words. "The sheriff is waiting for you an' two deputies. I dunno how you missed running against them."

"Long as I did miss 'em, they can wait while you tell me what in the devil it's all about," Harvey said, and he listened with growing wonder while the vaquero told him of the officers and what he had seen that morning.

"And," Pete added, "I am sure you better take my hoss and head for the hills. That ol' buzzard Yardley! He cooked this up. He is a bad one. I could tell you some things about him, Harvey. There is one man I know who could send him to the gas chamber right now."

"Listen," Harvey said, "Yardley smells bad, but I'm going to find the sheriff. Any idea where he is?"

"I saw him," Pete replied gloomily, "in the bank. With the Alcalde. Fixing to frame you."

"Hell," Harvey laughed. "This isn't Germany." He went on out.

The middle-aged woman who looked after three-fourths of the bank's business was behind the counter when he entered the door. He didn't need to ask where the sheriff was. The voice of the latter announced his presence behind the frosted glass which enclosed the Alcade's private office.

"No," the sheriff was declaring. "I'm going to wait for him. He won't run off. Why, I've known Harvey Little ever since he was a kid." His voice grew sharper. "You're dead sure it was him you saw putting the body in the car?" And then John Yardley's voice came from behind the screen of frosted glass.

"I've told you I don't want to get mixed up in this case. That boy's father was a friend of mine and I do not choose to go on the stand to testify. I furnished you your tip. Get him and hold him and find your evidence. But I'm telling you again in confidence, between ourselves, that I saw a man driving a burro with Anastasia Rodriguez's body on the burro's back; and I saw the man put the body into that car. I did not see his face, and when I came out of the house he ran away. But he looked exactly like young Little—same build, same height."

Harvey left the bank. He closed the door quietly behind him and started back to the blacksmith shop. Save for himself there wasn't a soul in sight. The sheriff's sedan was standing in front of the bank and Beulah Smith's sedan was parked further down the block. The blacksmith shop was a few doors beyond it. He wondered whether Pete was still there.

He had been pretty lucky. He would be out of circulation now if the sheriff hadn't raised his voice just when he did. And that, he was convinced, would have been right down John Yardley's alley. With himself in jail there wouldn't be a soul to look out for Nell's safety except Eddie Morton. And Eddie was a total loss.

It was lucky for him that the woman clerk had been on her way back to the vault before he had turned on his heel and headed for the front door of the bank. Otherwise she would have raised an alarm and half the population of Escondido would have left his roadster to join in the hue and cry. For that—he was convinced—was where they were now; gathered around his car, staring at the mortal remains of Anastasia Rodriquez. He hoped they would all stay there long enough to let him rejoin Pete Escobar and get away unobserved.

He wished he had followed Pete's advice a few minutes ago, and it occurred to him that his failure to do so might not have been his only mistake. Instead of telling Nell to keep quiet about the pollution of the spring yesterday afternoon he should have sent word to the sheriff. In that case he wouldn't be dodging the sheriff now. Or would the news of the anthrax have done any good? It would have frightened the Alcalde, but fear was undoubtedly the motive behind his action this morning. It wouldn't have resulted in an arrest. John Yardley wasn't a common paisano whom the sheriff could hold for investigation. In fact, the sheriff needed the Alcalde's support at the coming election.

There wasn't the slightest doubt in Harvey's mind that the spreading of the anthrax and Yardley's accusation this morning tied up together, with the Alcalde as the manipulator of both. The man had been afraid of Nell yesterday. Evidently there was some evidence against him in the old murder case which she might be able to recall, and he had made up his mind to get her out of the way. Now he was afraid of the two of them.

And neither of them had a shred of tangible evidence against him. Which meant that there must be some damning fact within their reach.

When a man is in a tight spot every slight bit of hope looks large. If he could get to Pete, then slip away and keep out of jail long enough to discover the witness whom the old vaquero had mentioned, and if he could get word to someone to look after Nell's safety during his absence, things might come out all right.

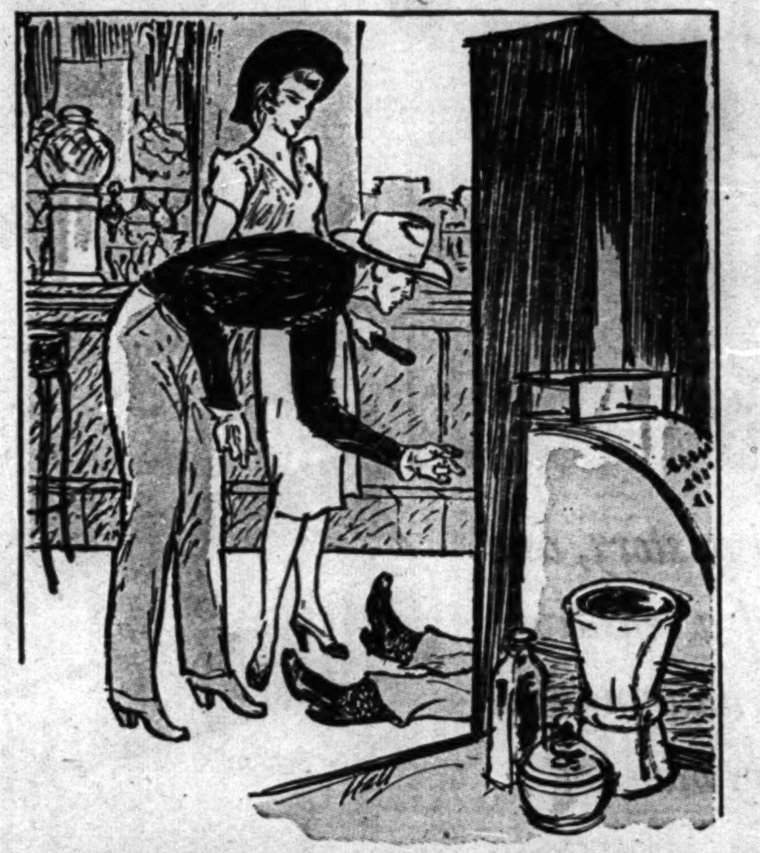
He wasn't paying much attention to the empty street ahead of him, he was worrying about the half block which lay behind him, wishing he had eyes in the back of his head. It was the increasing temptation to glance around that made things turn out as they did. He could not resist it any longer. Then he saw Escondido's town constable.

Escondido's town constable, who was of course one of John Yardley's henchmen, had been designed by nature for a vaquero, but the easy going life of a village peace officer had enlarged his waistline and diminished such love of action as he had owned in former years. On his father's side his ancestors were of good Spanish stock, and had been endowed with large holdings, but his paternal great grandfather had been obsessed with a belief in the potency of two pairs, and the land had gone to a Nordic with a more realistic conception of draw poker. On the maternal side the strain was largely mission Indian. All of which means that the constable was uncursed by any desire for meddling in other people's business and didn't like to hurry. His name was Esteban Valdez, but the riders who came down from the hills called him Hay Belly.

The deputy in charge of matters at Harvey's roadster had sent him to the bank to ask the sheriff whether the coroner was on his way.

Hay Belly wasn't paying any particular attention to the man a half block ahead of him. And when Harvey glanced around the recognition brought a faint dismay. The idea of arresting a fellow citizen on suspicion of murder held no appeal whatever for him. That was not in his department. Let the sheriff look after his own business. Hay Belly turned into the little bank and delivered the message from the deputy. Then he added, "I just saw young Little going down the street."

The sheriff nodded to the Alcalde.



The blow demanded a nicety of calculation which did her credit.

"I knew he'd turn up," said he. "Okay, Esteban. Go get him and tell him I want to see him." The constable sighed heavily and departed.

In the meanwhile Harvey had recognized Beulah's car and whipped into the drug store. It was Beulah Smith's custom to stop overnight at the Plaza Tavern after her weekly visit to Queensburg's beauty parlor. The woman cook out at the ranch was not broad-minded, and the tavern dining room offered some variety from salza and enchiladas and Spanish sauces. Also it offered occasional bits of gossip and contacts with other human beings than vaqueros. On her way home this morning Beulah had stopped off at the drug store to buy some powdered alum for a horse with a sore back.

She had long since resigned herself to the leisurely service in Escondido's three stores, but after she had been waiting here for nearly half an hour she was beginning to get restless. When she heard a quick step behind her she turned from studying a patent medicine almanac with a feeling of relief, and when she saw Harvey she said:

"Oh, it's you. Say, where in the devil is Doc Munras?" He did not stop.

"You keep an eye on Nell Huntoon while I'm gone," he said. "Don't let her go near Yardley. Tell her——"

He had gone right on by while he was speaking. His last words came from behind the screen which backed the prescription counter. He broke off abruptly and she heard him swear. She was on her way to join him when he called:

"Any idea where old Munras keeps the key to this back door?"

He was tugging at the knob when she looked around the screen.

"Stick where you are," he bade her, "and watch the front door. We've got to talk fast, Beulah. The sheriff and two deputies are after me and Hay Belly just got sight of me. Any minute now the whole gang will be on top of me. And you've got to look out for that girl, Beulah—"

She turned to face the street door. She laid her handbag on the prescription counter and opened it, she took her silver cigaret case and matches from it.

"It's Anastasia Rodriguez," Harvey went on. Beulah lighted her cigaret.

"What about him?" she asked.

"They found his body in my car. Where in the hell do you suppose that key would be, Beulah? She heard a bottle break behind her and Harvey was using bad language. She saw Esteban Valdez standing before the street door. She murmured:

"Hay Belly's here. Don't smash any more crockery."

The door opened and she stepped forth to confront the constable.

Hay Belly started toward the rear of the store. He was coming leisurely, he was looking from side to side. An uneasy light appeared in his little black eyes.

"Where did he go?" he demanded.

"Where did who go?" Beulah's face betrayed surprise.

"I'm looking for a man," Hay Belly said.

"You and me both," Beulah countered. "It's a wonder Doc Munras wouldn't hire a clerk if he can't tend to business himself."

Hay Belly halted. He was midway down the store. There was a gap in the counter and he stepped aside and entered it. He spent several seconds examining the space behind the show cases. He returned to the spot which he had left. He was undergoing an experience with which all peace officers are familiar. To most of them it comes during their rookie days, and it is not always pleasant, the first assumption of authority when authority really counts for something. To him the experience brought a distinct feeling of self-distrust.

Leaving the doorway of the bank a few moments ago, he had looked upon an empty street and, according to his timing, Harvey should have disappeared within the drug store. Of this he couldn't be quite sure, and the lack of certainty increased his lack of assurance. The result was inevitable and immediate. Hay Belly was no longer an easygoing loafer. He was becoming overbearing.

"Not Doc Munras, lady." He hesitated for a bare instant before he went on. Like everyone else in Escondido he had grown used to the sight of Beulah, and like most of the old timers here he regarded her with mild amazement. She was—there wasn't any telling what she was—or what she might be capable of doing. He covered the distance between them in half a dozen swift strides. He fixed his eyes on hers and his voice was truculent. He said,

"I'm looking for Harvey Little. I saw him come in here."

"O, him." Beulah was thinking fast, but her face remained placid. "He went on thru."

Hay Belly turned away; he started toward the front door. And then he remembered something. He whirled on his heel.

"Don't stall," he growled. Beulah smiled.

"Why, Constable! You're talking like Jimmy Cagney!"

"The back door," Hay Belly said, "has been locked for the last six months."

"I wouldn't know about that," Beulah's voice was sweet; it was too sweet if Hay Belly had only known.

She didn't look at the prescription counter. She had seen the old-fashioned mortar and pestle standing beside the cash register. It was not as large as the native metate which had tempted Eddie Morton yesterday afternoon, but the pestle was formidable. She had one shot left in her locker before she needed to fall back on this heavy artillery. She discharged it now.

"Somebody must have unlocked the door. He went on through and I heard it slam behind him. And if you weren't a comic strip cop, you'd quit wasting time here and go tell the sheriff——"

Hay Belly jerked back his coat and displayed his metal badge. He shook his head.

"In the name of the law," he declared firmly and shoved her aside. He passed beyond the end of the screen and uttered an exclamation of delight just as she brought the pestle down on the crown of his wide rimmed hat. That hat, she knew, was thick. She must hit hard, but she didn't want to kill him. The blow demanded a nicety of calculation which did her credit. His feet slid from under him and he collapsed on the floor, and when she bent over him she saw that he was merely down and out. Harvey had come forth from his hiding place while she was making the examination. She saw his face and laughed. She said:

"Don't worry, Kid. I'll tell 'em it was you that conked him. Now what's the score? Time's wasting."

He told her what Pete Escobar had seen and he repeated the brief conversation which he had heard in the bank.

"Why," she asked, "would anybody kill Anastasia Rodriguez?"

"Search me." He shook his head. Then he described the discoveries of yesterday afternoon and his suspicions concerning Yardley.

"I wouldn't put it past him," she murmured. "But why must you take it on the lam? The sheriff is a good egg. He won't let anybody frame you. Not even Yardley. And he'll protect Nell. If he doesn't, I will."

"If Yardley hadn't wanted me in jail, he wouldn't have pulled this," Harvey reminded her. "And, anyhow, I've got an idea I can do something if I'm able to get into the clear." He repeated Pete's hint concerning the Alcalde, and he added: "You've got to look after Nell, Beulah. I'm on my way."

"I'll stick along as far as the blacksmith shop," she said. "I think I can do some backstopping while you're making your getaway. And our friend here is coming out of it."

What Has Gone Before

Nell Huntoon writes to Edward Morton Jr. to review a murder charge against her dead father. Eddie is in financial difficulties and decides if he can incriminate Yardley, a banker known as the Alcalde, it will mean ready money. Yardley has a fear the past will catch up with him. Anthrax is prevalent in the hills. Yardley forces Ursula to get him wool from a dead sheep. At a service station Nell meets Beulah Smith; Harvey Little, son of the man her father was accused of killing, and Anastasia Rodriguez. The service station man is killed by a hit-and-run driver. Anastasia picks up something from the road. From Eddie Nell learns her father and Jim Little were partners, and the latter was killed while talking to her father. Anastasia demands $500 from Eddie for the metal hub cap from his car, and Eddie contemplates murder. Nell is prevented from drinking the poisoned spring water by Harvey, who persuades her to move to the tavern. Nell and Beulah see a prospector, with two burros, whom Beulah had grubstaked 20 years ago. After killing the Mexican with Yardley's hammer Eddie meets Nell. Eddie ties the body to one of the burros with a rope taken from Harvey's car. From his window Yardley sees Eddie and the burro pass by. Arming himself, he follows, watches Eddie stow the body in the trunk of Harvey's car. He demands the hub cap and car keys and orders Eddie to bring the hammer to him. At daybreak, after reopening the trunk and placing the keys in Harvey's car, Yardley notifies the sheriff. Pete Escobar, up in the hills, sees Yardley's strange actions. Harvey has breakfast with Nell and they decide that together they will ferret out the truth.

Symphony to Play Works of Frenchmen This Week on the Aisle

by Claudia Cassidy

And This Little Pig Went to Music

IT OCCURS to me that Désiré Defauw, now starting the second year of his reign over the Chicago Symphony orchestra, has not been altogether pleased with the reaction of his audiences. Somewhere, somehow, we seem to have sinned, the mortal sin of gluttony. For where last season Mr. Defauw contented himself by announcing that the best was none too good for Chicago and that his programs would be divided into bouquets, fireworks, and pyramids—an imagist intent more recognizable in theory than at concerts, but at least a kind of guessing game with no prizes—this year he issues a reproach, handsomely wrapped in a bale of tact.

If we face it with courage, the implication is that we eat too much before concerts and that it makes us groggy and heavy, the opposite of relaxed and receptive. But there is no immediate cause for despair. As our orchestra opens its 54th season its devotees have but to apply Mr. Defauw's rules of conduct, quoted verbatim, for "a comfortable stomach and a relaxed mind":

"The listener," says Mr. Defauw, "must prepare himself, both physically and intellectually, for a symphony concert if he is to get the greatest possible enjoyment from the experience.

"First of all, my personal experience has taught me that a concertgoer should never have a big meal just before a concert. A light meal will satisfy the appetite and give a sense of wellbeing without the grogginess and heaviness that a big, elaborate meal will produce. It permits one to be relaxed and receptive.

"Next, one must prepare his mind as if in anticipation of a great event. He should approach a concert with eagerness and expectation and allow his worries to dissipate as nearly as it is possible in such troubled times. The concertgoer should be ready and eager to love the music he will hear. He should approach it as a wonderful communion between himself and the beauty of music. He should feel that miracles will happen which will take him into the world of transcendental discoveries within himself thru the lead of the heavenly sounds of music."

That sounds mighty fine, and fasting shouldn't be so difficult, considering ration points. But supposing we fast, and relax, and anticipate, and we're still groggy? Is it all right then to blame the music?

On the Book Aisle.

It was my firm intention today to mention a batch of theater and music books piled up on my desk, but the publishers sent me an advance copy of "Forever Amber," which practically set fire to the lot and certainly distracted my attention. But then I wouldn't say "Take Them Up Tenderly" [Alfred A. Knopf, $2.75] was exactly lukewarm on its own account. This is a collection of Margaret Case Harriman's theatrical profiles from the New Yorker, an adroit combination of expert reporting, painstaking research, and the kind of writing that seems spontaneous, tho the author's insert of a full page set-to with Editor Ross shows that the typewriter ribbon was inked with her own heart's blood. My pick of this profile lot is "Hi-Yo, Platinum!", a joyous account of that latter day magnifico, Moss Hart, but there is Gilbert Miller, too, and Clare Boothe, and so on—just best, better, and good.

Arriving in the same mail were a copy of George Jean Nathan's "Theater Book of the Year" [Alfred A. Knopf, $3] and a letter from Margaret Webster, the latter to say that she prefers the touring [or Blackstone] troupe of "The Cherry Orchard" to last season's company, and that she is fully in agreement with Eva Le Gallienne's direction, having removed her name as co-director because she had not done enough to justify a direction credit. Page 221 of Mr. Nathan's book opens a review of "The Cherry Orchard" with this sentence, "Miss Webster, who was mainly responsible for the staging, apparently confused 'The Cherry Orchard' with 'The Cherry Sisters.' The result was something to behold." Confusions, alarums, and excursions. I find myself agreeing with Mr. Nathan, only he is talking about last season's troupe and I about this. Who do you suppose did direct the good performance I saw last February, or was the whole thing a mirage?

First Nighting with Nathan.

Anyway, you don't have to agree with Mr. Nathan to enjoy his pungent, stylized, disdainful, and intelligent account of what happens on the New York stage. Here he gives you a record, complete with first night casts, of the 1943-'44 season, plus his own honor list and a few new words to send you [I mean me] scurrying to the dictionary. He gave the dramatic palm to Rose Franken's "Outrageous Fortune"—too bad we didn't see it in Chicago—and the comedy and direction palms to John Van Druten for "The Voice of the Turtle." "The Cherry Orchard" won the dramatic costume award for Motley.

Perhaps you would like to know more about Bohuslav Martinu, now that his music is creeping into concerts. Milos Safranek anticipated the desire by writing a book on "The Man and His Music" [Alfred A. Knopf, $3], which makes sense in large, clear type. For people just getting curious about music, Syd Skolsky has evolved "Evenings with Music" [E. P. Dutton, $3], which starts at the beginning with simple charts, diagrams, and other illustrations, then takes you to a selected list of concerts by way of recorded music. The Columbia Recording corporation is plugging this one, even with an album illustrating the instruments of the orchestra.

Guide for a Musical Career.

"Your Career in Music" [E. P. Dutton, $3] is by Harriet Johnson, music critic of the New York Post, and it answers innumerable questions about the mechanics of a career, including how to get and what to pay an agent. Otto Eitel's "Bach to Gershwin" chart lines the end pages. Lincoln Kirstein's "Ballet Alphabet" [Kamin Publishers, 1365 6th av., New York, 75 cents] is available again to comfort the budding balletomane. Remember the title page inscription?—"To my father and mother, who sometimes pretend they don't know what I am talking about."

Then, too, there's a beguiling play by Maurice Collins about the Dowager Empress Tzu Hsi, called "The Motherly and Auspicious" [G. P. Putnam's, $2.75], which is fun to read and might give Helen Hayes a Chinese "Victoria Regina" if an expert adapted it for her. Which brings me to J. B. Priestley's volume of four plays [Harper & Bros., $2.50], including "Music at Night," "The Long Mirror," "They Came to a City," and "Desert Highway." But consider this a slightly scorched announcement, not a review. Blame the incendiary Amber.

One Exception Is a Popular de Falla Suite

With the exception of a single number, the program selected by Désiré Defauw for the second pair of Thursday-Friday subscription concerts by the Chicago Symphony orchestra is entirely the work of French composers. The non-French number is by the Spaniard, Manuel de Falla, who, however, was much indebted to his French forerunners in manner, if not in matter. De Falla is represented by three dances from his famous ballet, "The Three Cornered Hat," a suite that has become staple on orchestra programs everywhere, but that curiously is receiving only its second performance at these concerts. Its last performance in a subscription concert was 22 years ago.

This, as well as the other items listed, are new to Mr. Defauw's Orchestra hall repertoire. The program opens with "Wallenstein's Camp" from d'Indy's orchestral trilogy, "Wallenstein," and continues with Chausson's Symphony in B-flat, Ravel's five children's pieces, "Ma Mere l'Oye," usually translated as "Mother Goose," and Debussy's "Iberia."

The first "Pop" concert of the season will be on Saturday night. Mr. Defauw again will conduct, and a novelty will be a movement from Rimsky-Korsakoff's rarely heard "Antar" symphony. The remainder of the program will consist of the overture to Weber's "Der Freischütz," Tschaikowsky's "Pathétique" symphony, Ravel's "Pavane for a Dead Infanta" and Johann Strauss' "Emperor" waltzes.

Nicola Moscona, bass of the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera companies, will give a recital in Orchestra hall on Friday at 8:15 for the benefit of the Greek War Relief association. Mr. Moscona is a graduate of the Conservatory of Athens, made his first operatic appearance at the National Opera house in Athens, and was given a scholarship by his government to study in Milan. There Edward Johnson heard him and engaged him for the Metropolitan, an organization with which he has sung regularly since 1937. Moscona has been chosen as soloist by Arturo Toscanini no less than 12 times here and abroad. His recital program lists two Handel arias, two old Italian works by Sarti and Torelli, a group of songs in English, an aria from Verdi's "Don Carlos," and seven songs by Greek composers. Paul Breisach, noted operatic conductor, will be the accompanist.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, founded by George Lytton 24 years ago, will present three concerts in Orchestra hall this season under the direction of George Dasch. Harry Sturm, former first cellist of the Kansas City Symphony orchestra and the Civic orchestra of Chicago, will be the soloist at the first concert on Monday, Nov. 20. Mr. Sturm has appeared here as soloist with the Illinois Symphony orchestra and at present is first cellist of the NBC orchestra in Chicago. Marjory Hess, soprano of the Chicago Opera company, will be the sollost at the second concert on Feb. 20, and the final concert, on April 23, will have the young Chicago pianist, Carol Silver, for a soloist.

The North Side Symphony orchestra under the direction of Rudolph Reiners, will give the first concert of its fifth season at Thorne hall on Nov. 19, at 3:30. The program will consist of Mendelssohn's "Italian" symphony, a Handel oboe concerto and Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf."

Notre Dame to Reorganize Its Graduate Unit

By The Rev. John Evans.

The Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the University of Notre Dame, announces the reorganization of the graduate school in anticipation of a post-war expansion greater than the already rapid development in the pre-war period. The former committee on graduate study is supplanted by a council and a dean, the Rev. Philip S. Moore, C. S. C., who has been secretary to the erstwhile committee since 1934.

The graduate school, organized in 1921, was the outgrowth of summer courses instituted in 1918 which reached an enrollment in 1941 of 631 students with 160 during the regular academic year. With the adoption, however, of the accelerated school program summer sessession were discontinued for the duration. Originally, the Ph. D. degree was granted only in the department of chemistry, subsequently biology, metallurgy, philosophy, physics, politics, and mathematics were added with a master's degree obtainable in 13 departments.

"While the war naturally has decreased enrollment," said Father O'Donnell, "the faculty has remained intact, laboratory and library facilities expanded and Notre Dame reorganizes its graduate school to become an autonomous body within the university foreseeing a resurgence of graduate study on the cessation of hostilities."

On with the Show.

Pares' History of Russia Is Revised

"A HISTORY OF RUSSIA," by Bernard Pares. [Knopf, $4.75.]

A love of the Russian people is admirably combined by Prof. Pares with a dispassionate attitude toward individual Russians and their policies, be they czar or bolshevik. In this fourth revision of his history [first edition 1926, third 1937], the Englishman brings his work down to 1944. His 575 pages include a 13 page critical bibliography and a 28 page index. He writes straight history without literary dressing.

Reality and Strength in These Tales

"THE LEANING TOWER AND OTHER STORIES," by Katherine Anne Porter. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Robert Penn Warren.

Katherine Anne Porter.

The story goes like this: A nice, refined old lady who for 40 years had taught English in a state university said: "I like Katherine Anne Porter's stories so much because they are never sordid." When this remark was reported, perhaps with a touch of friendly malice, to the author she exclaimed: "What does she mean talking like that? I'll have her know I'm just as sordid as anybody!"

The anecdote has a moral. The old lady had been so lulled and bemused by the elegant rhythms and verbal felicities of Miss Porter's prose that she had, we presume, failed to attend to what a good many of the stories are about. Tho the "sordidness" of the stories is not exactly like what the old lady considered to be the sordidness of Hemingway's or Farrell's work, still it is worth remembering that the stories, for all their polish, fastidiousness, and calculated understatement, spring from issues of the real and frequently unpleasant business of living.

But with the present collection, "The Leaning Tower and Other Stories," it will be harder, even for the nice old lady, to forget this fact, for we have here in the title story—really a novelette—a quietly appalling picture of Berlin ripe for Nazism; in "The Downward Path to Wisdom," the first shock to a child of adult hatred and meanness; in "A Day's Work," the degradation of a family on relief.

Even the other items, which are of a gentler, more lyrical temper and look back to the childhood memories, never lose grasp on the issues in the world of fact or let complication dissolve in nostalgia. But in this book we simply have in a sometimes more obvious form what has always been present in Miss Porter's work, and it would be unnecessary to say so if it were not for the fact that there is a current tendency to praise the present work at the expense of earlier for a "stronger grasp on reality."

It might be more accurate to praise these tales as enlarging, in a style perhaps more severe and taut, a body of stories already clearly defined—a body of stories distinguished for a remarkable combination of artistic poise and philosophical implication and narrative excitement.

Hemingway and Shakespeare in Portable Library

"SHAKESPEARE." [Viking, $2.50.]

"HEMINGWAY." [Viking, $2.]

Reviewed by Will Davidson.

The Viking Portable library is fast proving itself to be a stroke of publishing genius. The key to its success, as well as the guide to its editors, lies in the word "portable." The implications of that word are many. It is a library of books that one can carry around handily. They are readable. They are manufactured sturdily. And they are invariably books that a great many persons will WANT to carry around, or have around with them. And that is the most laudable feature of this series—the wisdom shown in the selection of its contents.

To the growing list that already includes anthologies of Dorothy Parker and John Steinbeck, a collection by Woollcott, a group of tales of the supernatural, selections from the best of the world's religious writings, and a group of poems of the spirit, Viking now adds a most admirable selection of Shakespeare and one of Ernest Hemingway. The Shakespeare anthology makes no pretense of being definitive; it is a Shakespeare designed for pleasant reading. There are seven plays—"Hamlet," "Macbeth," "Romeo and Juliet," "Julius Caesar," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "As You Like It," and "The Tempest"—selected by a national poll of book lovers. There are passages from other plays—passages you remember and want to remember. The songs from all the plays are grouped together, and all the sonnets are here. And, to make this a completely joyful addition to your library, the book contains a key word index of 1,000 favorite quotations.

The Hemingway collection is also excellently presented. "The Sun Also Rises" and "In Our Time" are included complete. Long passages have been selected from "A Farewell to Arms," "To Have and Have Not," and "For Whom the Bell Tolls." There's the final chapter of "Death in the Afternoon," along with all of the short stories that Hemingway considers his favorites.

Malcolm Cowley adds an introduction and some interesting notes to this important collection.

Historical Study of an Old Church

"HISTORY OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, Alton, Illinois," by Guy Study. [Mound City Press, $3.10.]

Devotees of Illinois history will be as interested in Architect Study's 110 year chronicle of St. Paul's as will church folk. He goes into times and conditions and personalities to picture in full color this Episcopalian parish and its building.

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake.

ENTRY.	PERFORMANCE.	PAYOFF.
"DEATH AT THE DEPOT," by D. G. Hastings. [Harper, $2.]	Gossip conjures spy scandal when wealthy Mr. Sherman takes house in Vermont village, and lives aloof. When Sherman's male secretary is found shot to death on tracks, inquest brings out developments more startling than anticipated.	This admirably written story makes reader enraptured guest in provincial boarding house, gathering intimate glimpses of small town lives. Violation of one of mystery's tenets is only blemish on superb divertissement.
"MURDER AND THE MARRIED VIRGIN," by Brett Halliday. [Dodd, Mead, $2.]	Theft of Lomax' emeralds and death of Lomax' maid might have been dismissed as coincidence if Michael Shayne had not put his hunches and punches to work to trap smooth murderer. He had to take vicious beating, play sucker to dazzling demimonde, and wiggle out of frameup to earn his fee.	Work of this enjoyable sleuth, operating in New Orleans, is taking on smoother polish without sacrificing hard boiled technique. Neatly contrived currents converge to set up shrewd puzzle, unraveled in fast action and colorful episodes.
"IF THIS BE TREASON," by Margaret Echard. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Italian community in Oregon grape country, with camp of Italian war prisoners nearby, is center of sinister underground machinations, night prowlings, and murder, providing terrifying ordeal for young wife of Lavagnino, famous tenor whose career went into mysterious eclipse in Mussolini campaign.	Ingenious novelty in use of war background for mystery, with genuinely stirring results. Strong play of human emotions in deeply moving tale that captures tense interest. Atmosphere of apprehension and peril skilfully created.

November Issue
Now on Newsstands
25c a Copy

TODAY, four kinds of reading enable you to keep up with things. The first three bring the news and the developments in the world to you. But the fourth shows how YOU can fit such information into your life—make it work for you—help bring you success and happiness. Here are the four types of reading and what they do:

1. A good daily paper, like The Chicago Tribune, brings you the news of the past twenty-four hours in terse dispatches.
2. A good weekly, like Time or Newsweek, crisply summarizes and interprets the news for you.
3. A good monthly survey, like Reader's Digest, keeps you posted on the important articles in the leading magazines.
4. A new kind of monthly magazine—YOUR LIFE—helps to solve your personal problems—brings you real inspiration and guidance in solving perplexities of marriage, money, jobs and health.

Each of these types of reading fills for you a very definite need. At the left are the titles of some of the articles that have already appeared in YOUR LIFE. These titles show you, better than anything we could say, the sort of help this unusual magazine is giving to thousands of enthusiastic readers in its eighth and most successful year.

These articles are written by top-flight specialists. The names of some of them are given in the panel at the left. Each month writers like these contribute 30 original feature articles. Each month you also get a 10,000-word condensation of a best-selling book written specifically to help you physically, financially, mentally or socially.

The authors who write for YOUR LIFE know what they are talking about. They say it clearly, frankly, without beating around the bush or pulling punches for the sake of the Mrs. Grundys. YOUR LIFE is not written for Mrs. Grundy! It's written for YOU—whether you are 16 or 60, married or single. It talks in your language about the things you want to know. And it tells you about them more helpfully than any other magazine has ever attempted to do.

Special Offer—3 Extra Issues FREE

We believe that the typical titles listed at the left are proof that you will be delighted with YOUR LIFE, The Popular Guide to Desirable Living. But the magazine itself must prove that it comes up to all we claim for it. Otherwise it costs you nothing.

As a special invitation offer to you as a new reader, YOUR LIFE will be delivered to your home for SEVEN MONTHS for only $1—seven issues for the price of only four. You save 75c. But even your dollar will be refunded to you at once, if, after receiving your first copy, you do not agree that this is the most interesting, most helpful magazine you have ever read.

With that definite understanding, tear out the coupon here, clip a dollar bill to it, and mail it now to YOUR LIFE, Dept. CT-10, 354 Fourth Ave., New York 10, N. Y.

Resourceful Heroine in 'Chedworth'

"CHEDWORTH," by R. C. Sherriff. [Macmillan, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

If the acres of beautiful countryside which fill English novels actually existed, the tight little island would extend for miles into the ocean. Particularly do English writers throw in the gardens, the castles, the moors, and once the beauties of the place have been thoroly investigated, they get down to the business of describing who lives there and why.

R. C. Sheriff.

This is true of Chedworth. It's a fine, old estate, belonging to a young lord blinded in the war. He falls in love with an amiable young woman who is the star of a musical comedy, and after they are married they journey down to Chedworth and move in. There is a reception for the villagers, the lord presents his lady with the family pearls, the traditional wedding dress is taken out of its wrappings, and nobody suspects that the owner of Chedworth is completely broke.

Gardeners, vicars, hedges abound. But the taxes have made life a long headache and it takes the smart little wife of the master to discover that there's no money with which to pay the bills. So, of course, she goes back on the stage, makes money, presents it to her husband, and Chedworth is conveniently bombed so that they can move into the stable, where living is cheap, and still maintain their prestige with the villagers.

An easy-going and charming story, this one presents another picture of war on the home front. And it gives no sign that its author—who once wrote "Journey's End," of stage and screen fame—is now engaged in the arduous task of clipping books into moving pictures. The characters are likable and clear-cut, and they do a good job of fighting the war not in one way, but in every way that occurs to them. The heroine, in fact, might have been an American, she is that resourceful.

Authors Produce an Uninspiring History of U. S.

"LAND OF THE FREE," by Homer Carey Hockett and Arthur Meier Schlesinger. [Macmillan, $5.50.]

Reviewed by Avery Craven.

The ignorance of American history brought out in war days has produced much of surprise and some effort to remedy the situation. Books aimed at the general public and at a wider use in schools and colleges have begun to appear and a few states have passed laws which make the study of history compulsory.

The volume under review is a product of these forces. The authors have reduced their well known two volume textbooks, long in use in college classes, to a single volume and have rewritten portions to fit present day demands. In exactly 700 pages they attempt to tell the nation's story from discovery to the Cairo conference of November, 1943.

The emphasis is on recent times and the portions dealing with the years since 1865 are considerably more spirited than are those dealing with the earlier period. Interpretation, however, is never very keen or penetrating. Much of the book is little more than a stringing together of events one after another in chronological order.

The volume will inspire little of interest in history and not much of enthusiasm for the nation as such. There are better single volumes covering the same period both for information purposes and for the pleasure to be derived from the reading of history,

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery.

AN OPEN letter to a venerable firm of lexicographers on the occasion of discovering for the first time in my life that they are not eternally infallible:

Webster's Biographical Dictionary, G. & C. Merriam Co., Publishers,
Springfield, Mass.—Gentlemen:

Last night, ah, yesternight, my shocked eyes saw on page
Four hundred thirty-seven the exalted name
Of Dowson [Ernest Christopher], and with what rage
I found you guilty, gents, of vile abomination;
Yea, I was witness you did mar and maim
His loveliest hexameter with misquotation.

Surely the pages of this bought brown book should shed
A truer light upon a lyric poet's verse.
O, Merriam & Co.! Is Webster's ghost's face red
When he meets Dowson on some far Plutonian stratum!
Yea, when he hears the deep Dowsonian curse:
OUT, OUT, TWICE HIDEOUS AND TREBLY DAMNED ERRATUM!

Well, Merriam & Co., when you relied on memory to quote the best known line of Dowson's best known poem, you certainly put your foot in it. You changed "in" to "after." You made two syllables appear where only one belonged—and how a thing like that can wreck a lyric line! You put your foot in where already there were feet enough. And now with sorrow, but too late, you must reflect that 95 cents, plus tax, would have bought you the Modern Library edition, or you could have consulted any one of half a dozen reputable anthologies, and got it right.

I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion . . .

You could have, but you didn't. Worse still, you called Dowson's work "exquisite," and then misquoted it.

Perhaps I ought to grieve for you in this bitter hour, Merriam & Co., but when I remember that you have been printing Webster's this and Webster's that for a century and more, and that all your Websters have been sneering at me thru all these years, showing up my ignorance of spelling, etymology, and grammar, tripping my pride in its most important moments, humiliating me in the presence of my girl [who never did marry me after finding out how I confused the definitions of apéritif and aperient], and how a whole class in English composition laughed at me [in my teens] for thinking patina meant polish—well, I grieve not, Merriam & Co., but gloat!

And I keep right on gloating as I turn to your preface and scan the overwhelming roster of your editorial staff, tremendous scholars whose abbreviated degrees—M. A., A. M., Ph. D., B. A., B. S., Litt. D.—take more typesetting than their names. I gloat and wonder which of all these pundits pulled the boner [Slang, U. S., vide Webster, pull and boner] with the Dowson line. Which of them all, imprimis, wrote it wrong, and how many of the others read the proof and let it go unchallenged? How many universities must hang their heads [if not their faculties] for having issued sheepskins [colloq., diplomas—Webster] to these erring sages?

And yet, even in the delicious dizziness of my belated triumph, I would not be unjust. In fairness I am bound to give consideration to your statement, Merriam & Co., that there are "upwards of 40,000" biographies in the book; and I must concede the probability that upwards of 39,999 are right. I confess, too, that after more than half a century of consultation with the Websters you have been putting out since 1843 [See Merriam, Webster's Biographical Dictionary], I never found an error before.

I hope this doesn't pain unduly,
And I remain, with love, yours truly.

First Revue in New Boulevard Room a Superb Show

'Even Stevens' an Excellent Precision Line

By Will Davidson.

The "Even Stevens" are a better than even bet to become a standout feature of Chicago night life. To explain, in case even by now you hadn't heard, the Even Stevens are 12 hand picked chorus girls who make up the new precision line in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel.

They are the handiwork of Anthony Nelle, and even tho on opening night there were moments when precision was not quite the word for it, their dancing is a strong and smart bit of showmanship. No significance, no plumbing the depths of history or fancy for ideas to interpret. Just straight, flashy, beautifully coördinated dancing by good looking girls. In a brilliantly redecorated room, with a strong band and an excellent show, the Even Stevens still stand out as a stellar feature.

I'm not forgetting the Six Sophisticates, either. They are the tall and stately show girls who parade during the line numbers. They make a definite and valuable contribution to the effectiveness of the production numbers. Nor am I forgetting Glen Gray, and all the acts. They are individuals of top worth, and they hereby get what's coming.

Glen's music is exceptionally good for the Boulevard room. It is strong and controled; alert, vital, and in the modern mood. With beautiful Eugenie Baird and four-square Vance Daniels as vocalists [badly spotted in the opening night show, by the way] Gray should prove a definite attraction for the Stevens.

Glen plays expertly for the whirling, amazing toe dancing of Gloria Gilbert, whose spins have won her fame here before. He plays a tingling background for the exciting trapeze balancing of Elly Ardelty, a really remarkable cafe act. Miss Ardelty's headstand on a swinging trapeze is superb showmanship—but it's the handkerchief pickup that really gives you chills.

The Calgary brothers could do their act in a silent barn and it would be funny. Their slow motion tomfoolery is elegant fun of an old and very great order. Phil Kinsman, the baritone who is billed as Guy [maybe I'm wrong and that IS his name], appears with the chorus in several numbers but should raise the old Ned with the management about the way he was smothered by a hopeless microphone setup. Something undoubtedly has been done about it by now, for it was the great flaw in an otherwise fine evening, and Mr. Kinsman is too good a singer to be burdened with such an error.

The Boulevard room has been done over stunningly in burgundy and white, with the floor now much higher than before. The floor elevates further for the shows, which is a decided asset. Phil Itta, the sparkling burgundy among maitre d's, presides over the room with all his beaming good nature.

This is the time to stand, friends, and give a salute to a great gal—Jane Froman. Years ago she conquered a speech difficulty to become one of the truly great singers of the theater, radio, and cafe worlds. Today she has conquered a tragic injury to make a comeback that had quite a few hardboiled eyes just about filled with tears at the Chez Paree.

Jane Froman.

Jane, you know, suffered a brutal leg injury in that fatal Clipper crash near Lisbon many months ago. Eighteen operations have left her still six months away from full use of the leg. But Jane is singing like a joyous lark, and never was she more beautiful, more theatrically and humanly effective.

Hiding her crutches under a blackout of the room, Jane takes her place on a traveling platform that carries her piano and accompanist around the floor with her. She sings her old opener, "You Can't Brush Me Off," with new vigor and meaning. She is superb in the dreamlike "I'll Walk Alone," she's wonderful in "I'll Be Seeing You;" she's a sheer joy when she takes some delightful musical pokes at Claire Luce in "A Woman's Place Is in the Home, and Not the House."

Jane works hard, encoring with "That's Him," and others. And knowing her, you know she doesn't want you to think about the accident. She just wants you to enjoy her singing. You do, tremendously. And you can't help saluting her for not capitalizing on a tragedy that took the life of another Chez Paree favorite, Tamara, and ended the accordion playing career of another Chicago figure, Gypsy Markoff.

With Jane in the revised Chez show is Anita Martell, a lively, pretty juggler who provides a fast moving and colorful act for the opening spot. The Barrys, those superb dancers, continue their amazing and top flight appearances, and Buddy Lester, working in a tough spot following the Froman, gives with the best comedy in town.

The Chez Paree Adorables continue to present their picturesque, if sometimes rather strained, dance interpretations. Best of any they've done in a long time is a colorful and delightful dream sequence starring Producer Olive Bernard as the country girl who dreams of the big city.

Gene Krupa comes back to the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman Friday and in the meantime the joint is jumping with Bob Chester's good music. Bob came in for a brief two week stay and is a hit. He has gorgeous Betty Bradley to sing "I Remember April," and then to join him in "Is You Is." He has Dave Allen to do the "Fellow on a Furlough" type of ballad. And in the floor show he has the great Meade Lux Lewis to play his immortal boogie woogie. Also in the show are Alice Kavan, dancer; the Donatellas, musette and tambourine act from way back, and the novel Simpson marionettes.

Boswelling the Bistros:

When Chuck Foster opens at the Blackhawk Wednesday night he will have Sister Gloria with him of course, and will have in the floor show the holdover dancers, Maurice and Maryea. . . . Be patient with the little incompetents who ascribe slothful work to the present state of international affairs. Dontcha know there's a moron?

From the Chefs of the Cantonese Royal Palaces comes "GAY LONG" BEEF
Beef, most generous in protein, and Broccoli with its ample contribution of minerals and vitamins are combined in this grand dish to produce for your delectation an astonishing dinner "par excellence." Cooked to a nicety, the best grade of aged beef tenderloin is diced, combined with garden-fresh broccoli, seasoned with rare Cantonese spices, then tossed for four minutes in a very hot deep-inverted oven, with a few drops of neutral peanut oil, which greatly increases the subtle flavor value of the food in which it is cooked. After you've enjoyed the epicurean delight of "Gay Long" beef you'll mark your calendar for an early return engagement.

Powerfully Told Story of Refugee

"PARTNER IN THREE WORLDS," by Dorothy Duncan. [Harper, $2.75.]

Reviewed by John Abbot Clark.

This is the biography of a Czech refugee, Jan Rieger, "told in the first person only to bring about a more direct contact between the subject and the reader." The first part of the book deals with Rieger's childhood and youth in Prague during the early years of the present century, and of his experiences in the Austrian army in World War I.

After the war, in which he had acquitted himself with distinction, Rieger returned to his native city and became an important and well-known citizen of the young Czech republic, working for a banking firm by day and making the rounds of Prague's club and cabaret life by night. His commercial connections, and later his interest in fine glassware and pottery, took him all over Europe, and gained him entry into the toniest social, diplomatic, and financial circles of several hemispheres, including the western.

Just before World War II. broke out, he came to this country to establish an American outlet for Czech glass. When the Nazis moved into his homeland, and later overran France, Rieger was left high and dry. After many futile attempts to land something befitting his talents in New York City, he and his wife took advantage of a Penn State professor's kind offer of his summer place. Subsequently they rented a farm and went in for raising chickens—deciding on chickens because, besides the large outlay required for dairy farming, they had always preferred eggs to milk, anyway.

Following repeated efforts to get into active military service against the enemies of his country, Jan Rieger at last succeeded in joining the Canadian army. "When he finally went overseas," says Miss Duncan, "something of the tenacity of all the misunderstood nations Hitler has temporarily crushed was left behind in Canada. He carried more of it with him to the other side. However vague their ideas on the war might have been when they joined up, the men in his unit knew what they were fighting for after they met him."

This is one of the most revealing and ingratiating books that I have read for some time. I had intended to read the first hundred pages or so straight, and then polish off the last couple of hundred in more "selective," Gallup poll fashion. But the varied richness, the integrity and unquenchable flame of Jan Rieger's life, as interpreted so sympathetically and set down so engagingly by Miss Duncan, knocked this little accelerated reading plan galley west.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

THE life of John Peter Altgeld is the basis of a novel on which Howard Fast, author of "Freedom Road," is now working. . . . Altgeld, elected governor of Illinois in 1892, attracted international attention by pardoning leaders involved in Chicago's Haymarket riot of 1886. . . . He died in 1902. . . . Fast's novel will be published next year by Duell, Sloan & Pearce. . . . Word comes from Mexico City, via the Associated Press, that Jules Romains, French novelist who has been living there for nearly two years, on Sept. 30 finished the 27th volume of his monumental series, "Men of Good Will." . . . In completing 14 years of work Mr. Romains was only a few months behind his schedule of two volumes a year. . . . Volume 27 is entitled "October 7." . . . Says the AP: "It deals with the events of that day, in 1933, and the lives of the characters introduced in the first volume, 'October 6,' 25 years and one day earlier. Both days were in those periods of anxiety shadowed by the approaches of the World wars."

"Book Notes," by J. A. Matter, chairman of the library committee of the Union League Club of Chicago, contains this remark in the latest edition of that club's Bulletin: "One of this writer's favorite book columnists is Delos Avery of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE." . . . "The Genius of Public Worship," by Dr. Charles H. Heimsath, pastor of the First Baptist church of Evanston, was the September choice of the Religious Book of the Month club. . . . Ralph Korngold, Chicago author, will discuss his new book, "Citizen Toussaint," before the Cathedral Book club Wednesday evening. . . . The meeting, to be held in the Cathedral auditorium, 19 E. Chicago av., will be open to the public. . . . John J. O'Connell, vice president of A. C. McClurg & Co.; John O'Connor, vice president of the Quarrie corporation, and Andrew J. Farr of the Chicago Club of Printing House Craftsmen will address the club's educational dinner-meeting in the Furniture club Tuesday evening. . . . The theme of the meeting is "This Book Business."

Walter M. Hill, Chicago rare book dealer, was 77 years old last Tuesday. . . . To help him celebrate, a number of his long-time customers gave him a surprise luncheon at his shop in the Marshall Field Annex. . . . They indited him this inscription: "It might be said truly that the 77th birthday of Walter M. Hill calls for feasting and revelry thru a dozen days and nights, with the broaching of mighty casks laid up in prime vintage seasons. And yet, what emperor could command the precious tipple, the far-brought delicacies, that would equal the Olympian fare Walter M. Hill has served forth to us, his friends, thru all these many years?" . . . The tribute was signed by J. Christian Bay, Leigh B. Block, Perc S. Brown, Alice Godchaux, Leon Godchaux, Frances Hooper, Samuel Lepunsky, G. C. Lilly, Richard B. May, Margaret Montgomery, De Witt O'Kieffe, Wilfrid Osgood, Arnold Shircliffe, Vincent Starrett, and Harold W. Tribolet. . . . The affair was arranged by Mr. Godchaux. . . . Austin Joe Lawler, Chicago representative of the John C. Winston company, gave a reception Wednesday evening for Elizabeth Morton, that house's associate editor. . . . Miss Morton pointed out that the Philadelphia company is this year observing its 60th anniversary and that it has become a leading factor in every market where Bibles, textbooks, dictionaries, children's books, reference works, and general literature are sold.

As related by Fanny Butcher in "The Literary Spotlight," elsewhere in this section, the winner of the $200 given by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the best war time experience recounted by a man or woman in the armed services was Sgt. Nina Miller Ryan, 1530th service unit, WAC, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. . . . Miss Ryan's entry was the thrilling story of how another sergeant had been torpedoed and was afloat in icy water until frozen to the waist, but his legs were saved by being packed in ice for three weeks. . . . Honorable mention in the contest was given to Capt. Stanley Frankel, headquarters 148th infantry regiment, A. P. O. 37, San Francisco; Pvt. Hugh McGovern, detached medical department, 168th general hospital, A. P. O. 5934, c/o postmaster, New York; Pvt. Herbert H. Brin, public relations branch, Camp Wolters, Tex.; S/Sgt. Herman A. Bascom, 46th quartermaster company [GR], A. P. O. 550, c/o postmaster, New York, and Pharmacist's Mate Rolland Prevost, U. S. S. Captor, c/o postmaster, New York.

THE JUNIOR BOOKSHELF

By Agatha L. Shea.

TITLE.	SUBJECT.	VERDICT.
"THE BELLS OF LEYDEN SING," by Catherine Cate Coblentz. Illustrated by Hilda Van Stockum. [Longmans, Green, $2.25.]	An unusual Pilgrim story, telling of the last year spent in Leyden before sailing for the new land. Mysteries and activities of that last year include young and old, and there is fine family atmosphere thruout the story.	Fine historical background for the Mayflower story, and delightful reading with action and excitement for young readers.
"THE LONG TRAINS ROLL," by Stephen W. Meader. Illustrated by Edward Shenton. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.]	Randy McDougal, too young for induction, does his part on the home front by going to work on the railroad. In addition to keeping the trains rolling, he and another young worker outwit saboteurs and prevent a wreck.	A modern vocational story describing various jobs in railroading, with a touch of adventure and mystery thrown in. Older boys will like it.
"CHILDREN'S PICTURE COOK BOOK," by Margaret Gossett. Designed by Elisabeth Dauber. [Scott, $1.50.]	A delightfully different cook book for little girls [or boys] who long to help, especially at cooky making time. Short, simple sentences give detailed directions on recipes, measurements, and preparation for cooking. Pictures illustrate the directions, step by step, showing young cooks how to do it.	A most attractive and intriguing cook book for beginners which should have a place on the Christmas list for the little homemaker.

"A rattling good story..
Well and painstakingly done. I think you will enjoy it as much as I did."

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE prizes of $200 for the best short story and $200 for the best article written by a man or woman in service—prizes offered thru the fifth Annual Writers' conference at Northwestern university last July and the Midwestern Writers' conference at the Cordon last May—were awarded a week ago last night at the Cordon club. . . . The awards were postponed so that men and women on overseas duty could submit their entries.

The prizes were bestowed and accepted in absentia, of course, because the recipients were busy working for their Uncle [Samuel is the name]. . . . Frederic Babcock, editor of this august book section, made the announcements of the prize winners.

Two Sergeants Win.

The winners were Sgt. Anthony Patricelli, who has one of those unrevealing APO addresses from San Francisco, and Sgt. Nina M. Ryan, a WAC stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana. . . . There was present as dazzling a group of distinguished guests in uniform as we've met. . . Comdr. Mary D. Towse of the United States navy nurse corps [it was a surprise to many of the audience that there was a feminine commander in our town . . . as it was that there is a Lt. Col. Martha J. Clement of the army nursing corps]. . . . Maj. Doris Eppersen of the WAC, Capt. Katherine B. Persons of the marine corps, and an assortment of other officers, both masculine and feminine, and both distinguished and handsome.

Mrs. Roy Dickey, for the Midwestern, and Miss Phyllis Whitney, for the Annual Writers' conference, welcomed every one. Frederic Litten of the Medill school of journalism said pleasant [and true] things about the generous size of The Tribune awards. . . . Most of the awards offered in this area, Mr. Litten pointed out, are $10 to $25. He then told about the kind of MSS. which had been received in the contest. . . . There were 44 of them from all over the world, some of them remarkable, all unusually good. . . . Only two out of the 44 dealt with actual combat, he said, altho each one was, by the rules of the contest, the outcome of some experience occasioned by the war. . . . Twelve dealt with metaphysical or spiritual experiences. . . . Men in combat, Mr. Litten said, are evidently thinking about death and what will come after. . . . Every contestant has been written a letter of constructive criticism, and Mr. Litten thinks that such contests will build morale.

Manuscripts Read.

The prize winning MSS. were read by Mary Swan Graham, and Sgt. Ryan's retold account of a torpedoing at sea pulled icy strings around the listeners' hearts, altho it was in no sense tragic. . . . Sgt. Patricelli's story concerned a returned soldier's doubts and hopes about the world which will welcome those who return and will be a monument, either solid or riddled with weakness, to those who will never return.

Mr. Babcock announced that THE TRIBUNE hopes to print both of the prize winning MSS. in the near future and that THE TRIBUNE trusts it will be possible to offer the prizes again next year.

A Favorite Soldier.

One of your Spotlighter's favorite soldiers is S/Sgt. Hobert Skidmore, author of "Valley of the Sky"—not that she has ever seen him [tho she hopes to some day]—but he must be a fine person, because in that book he wrote at the same time sensitively and forcefully of a bomber crew's missions of the spirit as well as the body. . . . Almost simultaneously with the announcement of the prize winnings there came from Sgt. Skidmore a letter from that somewhere in the Pacific that is the current home of one of the winners. . . . Such a nice, such an amusing letter, that I want you to share the pleasure of some of it.

Thanks for Review.

"Thank you for the thoughtful and understanding review of 'Valley of the Sky,'" he writes [I reviewed it on Aug. 6]. . . . "It is very gratifying when a reviewer perceives exactly what the author is trying to get across. . . . I would have written this sooner, but I received your review when I got back from the Guam deal. . . . I have transferred to Pacific Ocean area headquarters as a combat correspondent because I wanted to see how it was with the guys in the other branches of the service. Some day some one is going to put on paper a picture that does justice to the American foot soldier. It has not yet been done. No one has been able to catch his dignity, his humility, his pride, his genuine honest-to-God goodness. Perhaps that isn't as dramatic as showing his filth, and danger, and dirt, and fight, but it is the quality that will always leave him on top when the screams die down. . . . No one can defeat the guy who knows that righteousness is on his side. . . . Just to watch them pass, you wouldn't think they'd give a damn what was on which side . . . but when you know the things they carry inside of them, the things that make them quiet and purposeful, you'd know this quality of goodness that was never so great in our civilian life. It surely isn't just because death is close so much of the time. This Christianlike quality in soldiers is not just for themselves, it is for the guys they are with—it is in the things they do for other people, not for themselves.

"There are light moments: like the night we were mistaken for Japanese harlots in Agana. We just happened to be bedding down in a shattered geisha house and some of the Japs came back under the impression the girls were still there. . . . We resented the whole deal, and certainly stirred up some sukiyaki during that black, tropical torrent. It is downright humiliating to be mistaken for a trollop, I don't care who you are. But all those colorful pallets looked so comfortable and inviting that we just flopped down for the night.

"I only started to tell you how much I appreciated your wonderful review. . . . If I were in Chicago . . . but, believe me, this isn't the loop in back of me."

Merchant Mariners in Exciting Story

"NOR DEATH DISMAY," by Samuel Duff McCoy. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

This is perhaps the first story of American merchant marine activities in the present war where actual names of ships are used. The author logs the war adventures of a dozen or more freighters of the American Export Lines in routine voyaging thru dangerous and far flung waters. Every chapter is crammed with excitement and thrills. A well written, moving narrative of Yankee heroism at sea.

Long House of Iroquois Chronicled

"THE LONG HOUSE OF THE IROQUOIS," by Spencer L. Adams. [Lakeside Press, $5.]

Reviewed by Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Any one who has had an opportunity to peruse Cadwalader Colden's "History of the Five Nations" will welcome Spencer Adams' word picture of the land of the Iroquois. These powerful confederated tribes ranged from the Hudson to Niagara Falls. A particularly cherished and charming portion of their domain included the Finger lakes. Born, reared, and educated in central New York, in a region so richly endowed by nature, Adams has retraced in his wanderings the trails of these courageous braves. It is the identical country which Fenimore Cooper used as the setting for his yarns.

The story reveals the author's profound veneration for the democratic form of government established by these peoples, which included the "Long" or council house. He points to the influence which the governing code of the Iroquois exerted upon the articles of confederation of the colonies, which paved the way for our Constitution. Students of Indian lore have long recognized that the New England town meeting was little different in principle from the councils held by the American Indians, altho the latter were more frequent. In any and every emergency, the head men gathered to decide questions of policy and procedure. Adams has caught the spirit of freedom which these tribes so ably represented.

But the "Long" house came to an end with the treaty made near Binghampton in 1794, at the behest of Washington. The Iroquois surrendered their territory and the tribes scattered, some to Canada, others to trek westward, while a few remained to literally stifle on tiny reservations.

It is unfortunate that Adams has seen fit to employ the word "squaw" when referring to an Indian woman. I agree with Britton Davis who, in his authoritative volume on Geronimo, deplores the popularity of the terms "buck" and "squaw." They were men and women or, if you please, males and females.

Every one who knows the valleys of the Mohawk and the Genesee can understand why the greed of the white man, the advance of civilization, brought an end to the Iroquois confederacy. There was no love lost between the leaders of the American Revolution and the Iroquois, who fought valiantly side by side with soldiers of the crown. It is interesting to note in passing that Robert Morris, the financier of the Revolution, was granted by congress a hundred thousand acres in this Indian fairyland—southwestern New York—in recognition of his services.

In the narrative the pre-revolutionary period is intermingled with modern touches so that the reader obtains an intimate glimpse of the countryside as it is today, teeming with prosperous communities but preserving the natural beauties of pre-Colonial days. Mr. Adams, a retired Chicago lawyer, is to be congratulated on a worthwhile contribution to the history of a remarkable group of native Americans. It is a matter of regret that an index is not provided to this attractively printed text.

Drama Notes

Laurel Hurley.

Michael Todd is hard at work on the new version of "Star and Garter" destined for the Blackstone Thursday night, Nov. 16, with Willie Howard, Lois Andrews, Carrie Finnell, Georgia Sothern, Chaz Chase, Al Kelly, Marilyn Miles, and the team of Wayne and Merlin heading the cast. Allan Roberts and Doris Fisher are writing some new songs for the show, and new material will be added from time to time, with the idea of returning to New York later in the season. The Blackstone, meanwhile, fills the gap between "Star and Garter" and "The Cherry Orchard," quite a gap as things dramatic go, with "The Student Prince," opening next Sunday night with Alexander Gray, Laurel Hurley, Detmar Poppen, and others, including a tenor named James Raymond in the title role.

Mr. Good is now in "Over Twenty-One," which leaves the Harris Nov. 4, despite capacity business. Agatha Christie's "Ten Little Indians" is its likely successor.

Notes of Music and Musicians

By Albert Goldberg

The first concert in the chamber music series sponsored by the music department of the University of Chicago will be given on Friday in Mandel hall at 8:30. The program will be given by Nikolai and Joanna Graudan, cellist and pianist, who will be joined by Robert Lindemann, first clarinetist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, in Beethoven's Trio in B flat, opus 11. Together, Mr. and Mrs. Graudan will play a sonata by Debussy, Bach's Sonata in D major, and Brahms' Sonata in F minor, opus 99. Mr. Graudan formerly was first cellist of the Berlin Philharmonic and the Minneapolis Symphony orchestras. Mrs. Graudan was a pupil of Artur Schnabel in Berlin.

Samuel Barber.

Samuel Barber, noted young American composer, now a corporal in the army air forces, will be the guest composer at the opening of the Composers Concerts series of the University of Chicago in Mandel hall on Friday, Nov. 3, at 8:30. He will conduct his Capricorn concerto for chamber orchestra, a work named after his home outside Mount Kisco, N. Y., and just completed last Sept. 8. The orchestra will consist of first desk men of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and Hans Lange will conduct the remainder of the program, to consist of the Chicago premiere of Stravinsky's "Dumbarton Oaks" concerto, a concertino by Jean Francaix, with Rudolph Ganz as soloist, and Hindemith's Kammermusik No. 1, Opus 24, No. 1. The Francaix concertino replaces the Bartok Sonata for two pianos and percussion, originally announced.

Naomi Watson, Negro contralto who was heard here in a debut recital last season, returns for another recital at Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3:30.

The original Don Cossack chorus and dancers, conducted by their fiery little leader, Serge Jaroff, will give a concert at the Civic Opera house next Sunday afternoon, Oct. 22, at 3:30. This Don Cossack chorus has practically become an industry. This year the group celebrates its 15th American tour with 125 concerts. The present season also signalizes the 25th anniversary of the founding of the chorus by the man who is still its conductor, and somewhere along the line in the coming months the Don Cossacks will check off their 5,000th concert.

Linda Darnell, who appears with George Sanders in "Summer Storm," now at the Garrick.

The Winnetka Music club will present five events during the 21st season of the Artist Recital series at New Trier High school auditorium. Helen Traubel, soprano, will give the opening recital on Oct. 23, followed by Artur Rubinstein, pianist, on Nov. 13, the Trapp Family singers on Dec. 4, Carroll Glenn, violinist, on Jan. 22, and Vera Gillette and Vincent Micari, duo-pianists, on Feb. 26.

Paris Mestusis and his wife, Joan Valerie, will appear in dance recital at the Eighth Street theater this evening with a dance group in a program of chorodramas, folk dances and pantomime, ranging from the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" to Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" and a tavern scene called "The Athenian Apache." Mr. Mestusis is a Greek dancer, once the partner of Josephine Baker, later of concert and Hollywood. He has been decorated by potentates from Greece, Egypt, Belgium, and France to Turkey. Miss Valerie is a Chicago girl, born Helen Vlahakis, who spent her early childhood in Greece with her grandparents. She studied acting at the Pasadena playhouse and went to Hollywood, where her roles have ranged from pictures with the late John Barrymore to Cowboy Gene Autrey.

The Chicago Artists association will open its season with a program in Curtiss hall on Tuesday at 8:15. Participants include Jean Nichols, soprano; Franklin A. Burke dramatic reader; Maud Nosler, soprano, and Catherine Saurer, pianist. Robert Hall McCormick will be guest of honor and will address the meeting.

Eleanor Lutton, soprano, will give a song recital in Kimball hall next Sunday, Oct. 22, at 8:15. One group of songs will enlist a combination piano and organ accompaniment. Edward Hopkins will be the pianist and Helen Searles Westbrook the organist.

The Chicago Piano Symphony Orchestras, Inc., will give three concerts at Orchestra hall this season—on Jan. 30, March 19, and May 25. An all-male "Business Men's Piano Symphony Orchestra" will be added to the "All-Girl," "Youth," and "Grand Ladies" groups this year.

William E. Johnson, Negro bass baritone, with Robert Macdonald at the piano, will give a recital in Kimball hall next Sunday afternoon, Oct. 22, at 3:30.

Two concerts are added to the list of events to be offered by the Howard R. Will concert management. John Toms, tenor, head of the voice department of DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., will give a recital in Kimball hall on Tuesday, Jan. 16. Ruth Wilkins, Oak Park pianist, will be heard in recital in the same hall on Monday, Feb. 26.

A contest for the selection of an American student song, intended to promote feelings of solidarity among the student body of the western hemisphere, is being sponsored by the Pan-American Union of Washington, D. C.

Author of "Forever Amber" Is Rated a Valuable Asset

By Harry Hansen.

New York.

WHEN the house of Macmillan declared it had printed 175,000 copies of "Forever Amber," by Kathleen Winsor, in advance of publication, I asked whether they were inspired by the good looks of the author or the contents of the book. Naturally the representative of the publisher replied at once that it was the book, but that he considered the house lucky to have a good looking author added to its assets. And this brings up the matter of the flourishing state of the book business. The figures were reached by a shrewd estimate of the book's popularity, altho it will not be published until tomorrow. The comment of booksellers who read it and then placed their orders and a knowledge of the public appetite for spicy historical romance made the large printing order, without any help from a book club, seem justified. In ordinary times such a pre-publication response might indicate the printing of 50,000 copies.

Kathleen Winsor, being on her toes, was ready to coöperate with the publisher in public appearances, and with the help of the booksellers she will practically go on tour. She will be the star performer at the book section of Marshall Field & Co. Saturday afternoon, Oct. 21. She will appear at the Boston book fair and at book events in Cleveland, Detroit, Nashville, and Atlanta. If Minneapolis puts in a bid she will probably go there, for she is a native of Minnesota, even tho she has lived most of her life in California. Winsor is her maiden name; she is now Mrs. Robert John Herwig and her husband is in the marines. She wears Hattie Carnegie clothes and Lilly Daché hats. I have no information on what soap she favors, but if her book becomes a big best seller we'll soon be told in the ads.

A Final Comment.

The day after Wendell Willkie died a modest pamphlet embodying his views on current affairs was issued by Simon & Schuster under the title "An American Program." This contained seven articles written for newspapers before the Republican convention met, his ideas for the platform of the Republican party, and two later articles written for a national magazine. Mr. Willkie had gone over the material before he was taken ill and the booklet was running off the presses when he died. A total of 100,000 copies was printed in two editions, 83,000 in paper binding and 17,000 in cloth. No one could have had the slightest inkling that this would be Wendell Willkie's final comment on American public affairs.

Preceding this by several months was the handsome limited edition of "One World" that the Limited Editions' club prepared. George Macy printed 1,500 copies for the members, designing it himself. Every copy was signed by the author. In addition to the text, photographs of men and women mentioned were reproduced and a group of pictures of cities visited was placed in the front of the book. George Macy wrote a publisher's preface. This work will become highly valued by friends of Mr. Willkie and by book collectors.

Magazine Reading Condensed.

Readers of magazines may not always be aware that they are not getting an author's complete work when his novel is published in serial form. It is customary for magazine editors to take the best bites out of a manuscript and either to publish an abridged version in what is amusingly referred to as a "complete novel," or to limit the book to four serial installments. Only when buying the novel in book form is the reader sure of getting the complete story. I do not know which is to be preferred; sometimes condensation materially helps a story and relieves the reader.

The case of a short story should be different. For instance, there is W. Somerset Maugham's story, "The Unconquered." It deals with life in occupied France and the attachment of a French girl and a German soldier, which resulted in the birth of her child. When published in magazine form it was not necessarily abridged, but expurgated. That means that Mr. Maugham had written so frankly that the magazine was unable, for one reason or another, to print everything. He consented to the editing. But he has now given the original manuscript to the House of Books [2 W. 56th st.] for publication. It is issued in a limited edition of 300 copies, signed by the author, designed by Andor Braun and printed by the Kingsport Press. It is a title in the Crown Octavo series, which also includes stories by Ernest Hemingway and Stephen Vincent Benet, now out of print.

Howard Fast to Be Cited.

Howard Fast, author of "Freedom Road," will receive a citation for excellence in writing from the Salute to Young America committee tomorrow. The presentation will be made by Moss Hart, the playwright.

W. Orton Tewson, who has been writing a syndicated column of literary news, "An Attic Salt Shaker," for 24 years, has been commissioned to write the article on newspapers for the Encyclopedia Britannica of 1945. It will run to 47,000 words.

Harnett Kane, author of "Louisiana Hayride" and "Bayous of Louisiana" has just completed a new book about the people farthest south in Louisiana called "Deep Delta Country" and it will be issued in November by Duell, Sloan & Pearce. The bayou book is getting its sixth printing this week. It is an excellent book about people and customs in Evangeline land.

Van Wyck Brooks' "The World of Washington Irving" will be used by the book trade as a basic book and some stores are displaying it surrounded by the works of some of the great American authors of which it treats. Also helping to stimulate this interest will be the exhibition of autograph manuscripts of American authors at the Pierpont Morgan library, which has just opened and will last eight weeks. The Morgan library has an incredible number of valuable manuscripts.

Sympathetic Study of Rebel Leaders

"JEFFERSON DAVIS AND HIS CABINET," by Rembert W. Patrick. [Louisiana State University Press, $3.75.]

To be more certain of oblivion than a Vice President, one needs only to be a civil official of a rebellion that fails. Friend and foe sympathize with the gallant soldier whose sword is knocked from his grasp, but everybody passes the buck to a Jeff Davis and his aids. Prof. Patrick, now of the University of Florida, won his Ph.D and the United Daughters of the Confederacy's 1940 $500 historical prize with his manuscript on Davis and the 14 men who from start to finish headed the six executive departments of the Confederate States. The author concludes that Davis and his aids were able and well trained and that they gave their short lived republic a civil administration quite as good as Americans had been or have been used to—if not better. These Two Books Are a Sure Cure for Melancholy

"HIGH TIME," by Mary Lasswell. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.]
"MARRIED AT LEISURE," by Virginia Lederer. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil.

Here are two books to chase the blues away. The priceless element of humor is lavishly bestowed upon the reader by both of them, yet they are utterly different.

"High Time" is a return engagement played by those rugged old troupers who tickled the funnybones—and touched the hearts—of the many readers of "Suds in Your Eye." Mrs. Feeley, Mrs. Rasmussen, and Miss Tinkham are three elderly ladies who love their beer and also their fellow creatures.

They're a trio of great dames. Mrs. Feeley is the practical one, the manager. Mrs. Rasmussen is at home on the range—the cooking range, where she concocts robust food that makes commando material out of ill-nourished 4-F war workers. Miss Tinkham, with her musical talent and brains, adds a note of distinction to the "Noah's Ark" in which they live. Between bottles of beer, they contrive to take care of a pair of infant twins for a working mother, reform two girls, tame two wild brats, and feed the hungry. Their sentiment is all the more admirable because it is practical.

"Married at Leisure" is a book of another sort, the story of a young man who had been brought up by his grandmother and loved her, altho nobody could figure out why. He fell in love with Marilyn, a girl who missed being a movie star only because she couldn't act—as if that made any difference.

The grandmother disapproves of the girl, and the young man, Chubby, seems incapable of doing anything about it. Against a background of Hollywood characters, their romance moves to a cockeyed conclusion. The humor is more sophisticated than that of "High Time," but it packs a punch just the same. Read 'em both if laughs and chuckles are what you crave.

How Tide Turned in War's Fourth Year

"THE WAR: Fourth Year," by Edgar McInnis. [Oxford, $2.50.]

September, 1942, saw the high tide of axis success everywhere. The Russians were in retreat before Stalingrad, Egypt was in danger, and American marines were hanging desperately onto a few acres of Guadalcanal. Yet the year to come—fourth of the war—saw decisive defeats administered to Germany for the first time, saw great American advances in the Pacific, saw the sorry Mussolini toppled and Italy knocked out of the war.

Prof. McInnis summarizes the year's campaigns in text, map, and chronology in the fourth volume of his continuing, useful series. Viscount Wavell supplies the introduction for an assembly of facts which readers will find crisp, interesting, well considered.

AMBITIOUS BEAUTY WAS "FOREVER AMBER"

Some People of Appalling Degradation

"TRAGIC GROUND," by Erskine Caldwell. [Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

In his latest novel the author of "Tobacco Road" has returned to the scene and mood of that fabulously successful novel and play. Those who found "Tobacco Road" to their liking should more than delight in "Tragic Ground." There is not one major human being in it and only one major act which is not of the lowest possible origin. The effort of welfare workers [the one decent act] to save a young girl from prostitution and to return a destitute family from "Poor Boy" to their native hills merety enlarges the scope of Spence Douthit's laziness and debauchery.

"Poor Boy" is the name of a wretched bit of a war boom town in the south to which Spence and his family had migrated in the early days of the war when a powder factory offered big wages. While he was at the factory Spence did practically nothing for his $62.50 a week. After it closed he did nothing for nothing. One daughter, who refused to live at home, gave Spence and his wife enough money to eat on, but their rent went unpaid. Spence's wife, who "had a misery," spent her days as well as her nights lying on a dirty bed, drinking, when she could get it, some "tonic." When sufficiently tonicked she could rant around and fight any one, as she did the welfare worker, who, she was convinced, was after her husband.

The younger daughter, 13, had left home for an easier if not a better life and it was for her sake that the welfare workers were trying to get the family back to the country. When Spence was given the money to buy tickets back home, on the provision that the young girl be taken with him, he went to her place of employment and spent the evening and the money in such a scene as readers have seldom met.

Readers have seldom come upon most of the scenes in this book—readers, that is, who have not been well conditioned by "Tobacco Road" and by the more sordid of William Faulkner's books. Mr. Caldwell treats them with lightness rather than with gravity, and the result is often very funny, but it is also very unsavory.

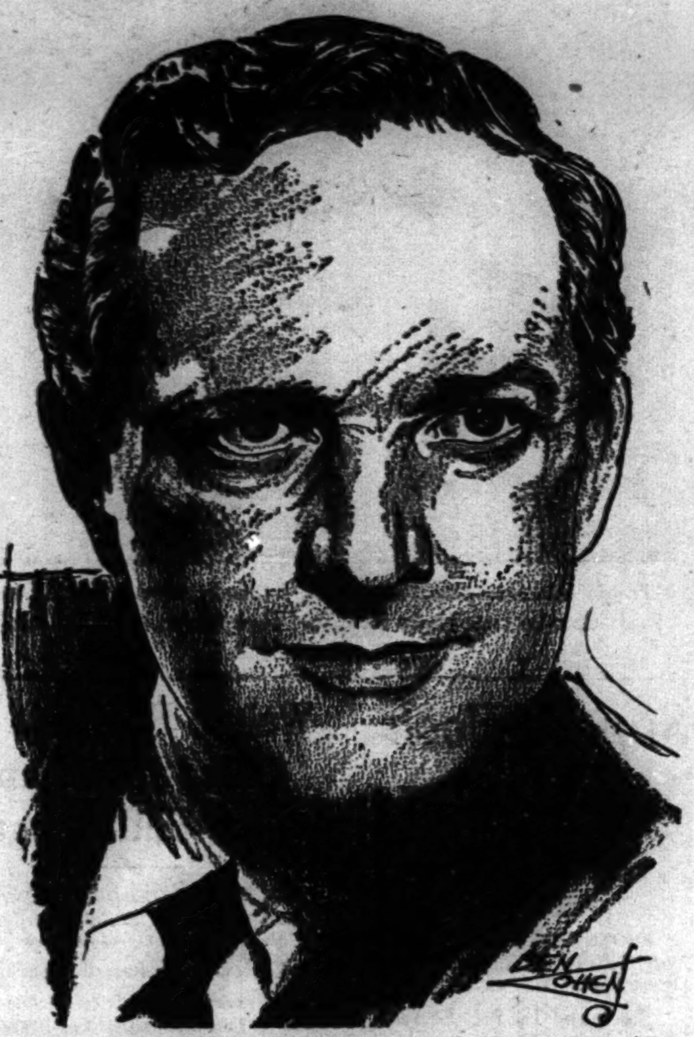
The theme of the book is, of course, that you cannot expect decency to come out of such places as "Poor Boy"; that it is the duty of communities to see to it that such breeders of vice do not exist. But there is also the feeling in the book that the author thinks Spence and his kind not only incurable but essentially comic, instead of essentially tragic. Sufficient unto the hour is Spence's theory of shiftless economics. Five dollars in the pocket is worth more in bourbon than in beans. He would sell a daughter as quickly as he would sell his furniture, as he did for money which he knew he would never collect.

In spite of some of the farcical situations in "Tragic Ground," the book lives up to its title. For such human degradation is indeed deeply tragic.

Guam Hide-Out.

Under the title, "Robinson Crusoe, U.S.N.," the story of George Ray Tweed, RM1/C, who hid out from the Japs on the island of Guam for two and one-half years, will be published in January by Whittlesey House.



Sketch of Erskine Caldwell, whose new novel, "Tragic Ground," is reviewed on this page by Fanny Butcher.

Book Interprets England's Mighty Spanish Adversary

"THE DREAM OF PHILIP II.," by Edgar Maass. Translated by Edward B. Garside and Norbert Guterman. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht.

In the 16th century the modern world was a-borning. Everywhere the renaissance spirit was hammering at the gates of authority. Everywhere but in Spain. Against that rock the wave of the future beat in vain. Was it because Spain was Philip II.? Or was it merely that Philip II. was Spain?

The half-educated still take it for granted that Philip was a monster. Was not he the embodiment of pre-renaissance darkness? The youngsters who studied English history 25 years ago never even considered the possibility that Cromwell might have been wrong in a later stage of that same conflict; that Charles I. might have been right. Today we contemplate what we have builded, and we are not sure that it is "good." You do not need to go to Hilaire Belloc, or even to Sir Esmé Wingfield-Stratford, to learn that Charles I. had a case. You can learn it even from Cromwell's great admirer, the late John Buchan.

Edgar Maass writes of Philip II. from the modern liberal point of view. But he does not slander the pedantic, hard-working, conscientious, pious king, whose approach to his God was almost as formal as the approach of his subjects to him. Maass is not so foolish as to blame Philip personally for the limitations of his century, for the faults of the national temperament. Whatever the king's shortcomings may have been, "he was never guilty of the mortal sin of our own time. He never regarded or treated people as mere instruments to extra-human goals, as anonymous objects without a destiny of their own." For him every man was an immortal soul. And the value of an immortal soul was infinite.

Edgar Maass.

The author of "Don Pedro and the Devil" has given us much more than a biography of Philip. His scope is as wide as El Greco's own in the great canvas which has suggested his title. [El Greco himself gets one of the most fascinating chapters in the book, as does also Cervantes.] Here is France in the age of Henry of Navarre and Catherine de Medici—who is absolved of the guilt of Saint Bartholomew. Here is England: Mary, whom Philip married; Elizabeth, his half-loved, half-unwilling adversary, astonishingly like certain politicians in her shifting, vacillating, untrustworthy policy, tho astonishingly unlike them in her caution and her economy; here is Mary Stuart, the last white hope of Philip's Catholic cause in England. Here, too, are vivid pictures of the defeat of the Armada and of the terrible night of the Saint Bartholomew massacre.

The book has, of course, the defects of its merits. We see Philip himself less clearly than we might if he were kept in the "spot" continually. And it is too bad that Edgar Maass should sometimes confuse the methods of history and of fiction, telling us in detail what Philip felt and thought in numerous crises, tho we know—and he must know that we know—that he knows nothing whatever about it!

Story Presents a Thousand Pages of Witty Amusement

"FOREVER AMBER," by Kathleen Winsor. [Macmillan, $3.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

[Author of "American Song" and "West of Midnight."]

The time is late 17th century England. The place, the bedrooms of London, from the underworld of crime to the palace world of scheme, hate, and noble immorality. If you like a thousand pages of love, seduction, and passion in purple velvet, this novel is your meat. All the women are beautiful beyond the power of plague, prison, and childbirth to affect or diminish. Their beauty is their bread and it is available to any man who will pay enough in money or in advantage for it.

This comment, describing the heroine's reaction to the slowness of her latest friend [he was, after all, in his 60s, the father of 19 children, and suffering from heart disease, which might have given him a deliberation in immorality not typical of his age], sets the tone for the book and for her character: "But at the end of three weeks he had not tried to seduce her and she was growing worried." A worry, indeed, for a woman with the ambition of Amber. For the story is hers.

Amber is the daughter of a woman who never had time, in the flurry of England's Civil war, to marry her lover. So the child grew up in the care of country people. She is carried off to London by Lord Carlton, returning there to prepare for the restoration of Charles II. to the throne.

The balance of the book is simple, being the account, with all manner of intricate plot manipulations and contrived suspense, of the manner in which Amber acquires a succession of husbands, each higher in the world than the last. In the process she also gains a huge fortune, as well as an assortment of lovers, children, and dogs.

Her passion for Lord Carlton is the one genuine feeling she has, and whatever conflict the novel has centers around her wish for him, and her determination to sweep from the lowest place in London, Newgate prison, to the highest, the bedchamber of Charles II. himself. And, thanks to her own resolution, as well as that of the author, she succeeds.

The book is written less in the stilted style of most historical novels than the subject might have induced. Desires "grow apace" and all that, but on the whole the writing is quick, often witty, seldom obtrusive. If you accept the total unreality, then the story has considerable fascination. Every time a new man of importance enters Amber's room, the reader knows she'll get him. But there is much ingenuity in varying her method, and there is much excellent putting together of single scenes.

The problem, as in all historical novels, is to make the lives of the characters as believable and as interesting as the history in the midst of which they lived. This book fails at that point. Its accounts of the Great Plague and the Great Fire of London are very fine—much the best things in the book. The episode when Lord Carlton and Amber suffer the plague together is really exciting.

But after these great and known events, the little affairs of Amber and the mistresses of the court seem very unimportant. At one point the author writes: "With no protest at all she was soon sucked into the maelstrom of court life and whirled about in a mad darkness." Aside from being a badly written sentence, that description suggests the slight nature of much of the book.

The many minor characters are skilfully individualized. King Charles and the Duke of Buckingham are honestly clear and alive. The author's knowledge of the period, with its seductive clothes and bad plumbing, is thoro. The ending is very clever; it fooled me completely.

In spite of myself, I found Amber's ambition rather attractive. This must have been the response of the men in her life, too. The book will surely be compared to "Anthony Adverse," altho it lacks the enormous variety of that book, and to "Gone With the Wind," altho it lacks the powerful motives of the American Civil war in that novel.

I trust it is not immodest of me to add that, after looking at the attractive picture of the author on the book jacket, my sentiment is not so much Forever Amber as it is Forever Kathleen Winsor!

Congress Is Fortress of Our Freedom

"MEET YOUR CONGRESS," by John T. Flynn. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

Reviewed by Walter Trohan.

This book should be in every American home. It is a lucid, nonpartisan exposition of the working of congress, which is the working of the American government, by an able and competent observer of congress for many years, John T. Flynn, newspaperman and editor. It is safe to say that every reader of this volume will be a better citizen for having studied its pages.

Mr. Flynn dissects the legislative establishment down to the constitutional framework, laying bare the workings of congress as an anatomist lays bare nerves, blood vessels, muscles, and tendons. He discourses in information packed paragraphs on how laws are made, the filibuster, the caucus, majority rule and minority might, congressional privileges, the power of the purse, congress and the President, and a host of related subjects.

In his exposition Mr. Flynn points out the faults as well as the virtues of congress. Without assuming the role of pedagog he presents an able defense of congress. The inescapable conclusion of his book is that congress is the fortress of our freedom and that any limitation of its powers, such as is being proposed by pseudo-liberals and ax grinding columnists and commentators, is a surrender of power by the people.

The author takes cognizance of the current fashion in some circles to ridicule congress. He finds, encouragingly, that on the whole members of congress are a fair cross section of the people with few rascals and nitwits in their ranks and that they are, for the most part, performing their duties earnestly, conscientiously, and well.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

TO TASTE the full flavor of the tale of terror, in the opinion of esteemed authorities, you must bring to it an orderly mind. That is to say, paradoxical as it sounds, really to enjoy a ghost story you should disbelieve in ghosts; only so can you hope to get an authentic thrill when you are suddenly confronted by one of the things. And this goes not only for ghosts—which are usually as amiable as kittens—but for any abnormal phenomenon, any dislocation of time or space that upsets confidence in the laws of nature.

The effectiveness of this sort of story, in the words of Dashiell Hammett, depends on the reader's believing that certain things cannot happen and on the writer's making him feel, if not actually believe, that they can but should not happen—a masterly dictum. It was Sir Thomas Browne, I think, who said that while he did not believe in ghosts, he was afraid of them.

To such readers, anyway, the best writers of weird tales address their art, and if you have that sort of mind, plus an appreciation of good writing, you will take the new books in this field to your bed and bosom. A dozen collections, more or less, have appeared in recent months—some already have been discussed in this department—and more are announced by the publishers.

No less than three were edited by our fellow midlander, August Derleth, a diligent resurrectionist, and two of these are from Arkham House, his private stable for nightmares. They are "The Eye and the Finger," by Donald Wandrei, and "Jumbee and Other Uncanny Tales," by Henry S. Whitehead. The third, "Sleep No More!," an anthology, is Farrar & Rinehart's current contribution to the cause of insomnia. Altho their contents vary considerably in the quality of the entertainment offered, all are capital reading for ghouls and vampires in their leisure moments.

A New Master.

Not all the "weirds" of recent vintage are horror stories in the familiar pattern of ghosts and Gothic. Scientific fantasy, or pseudo-scientific fantasy, is the special field of H. F. Heard, one of this department's favorite writers. [It was Mr. Heard who wrote the brilliant Sherlockian pastiche, "A Taste for Honey," a few years ago.] In "The Great Fog and Other Weird Tales" [Vanguard], he plays as daringly with the test tubes of science as did the early H. G. Wells, and, I think, with more point and more authority. The title story is a remarkable fable for our times. Mr. Heard is a new master who has now published four books in this field of psychological romance, or whatever it is to be called, and all four, I think, are still available in first edition. Isn't that ridiculous?

One of the very best anthologies ever assembled for thriller enthusiasts, by the way, is again available in print. It is Dashiell Hammett's "Creeps by Night," a Forum book at a dollar, containing such indubitable masterpieces as Conrad Aiken's "Mr. Arcularis," John Collier's "Green Thoughts," and "The King of the Cats," by Stephen Vincent Benét. Thirteen years after its original publication the book stands up with any of its competitors. Aiken's story alone should insure its purchase—one of the most appalling glimpses in fiction of the subconscious compulsions of the human mind. Anyway, it is my own No. 1 choice among a hypothetical "ten best" horror stories.

A Smile for Voltaire.

Speaking of postmortem phenomena, the subject has another and more humorous aspect. For years after the death of Voltaire, a flourishing and profitable business in relics is said to have gone forward at Ferney, near Geneva, his home in Switzerland. In an old book, some years ago, I found a statement of the approximate profits of a single Genevese opportunist, as follows [the figures indicate francs of the period]:

8,000 busts of Voltaire, made with Ferney earth, at a franc apiece	8,000
1,200 autograph letters of Voltaire, at 20 francs	24,000
500 walking sticks of Voltaire, at 50 francs each	25,000
300 veritable wigs of Voltaire, at 100 francs	30,000
Total	87,000

That would have amused the old man who died, immortal, on May 30, 1778; the smiling pessimist who so often wondered "why so strange an animal as man was ever created."

Who Wrote Soldier's Poem?

"Piastres for Poets" was the name given to a unique competition announced in the Christmas, 1942, issue of the Crusader, the 8th [British] army's weekly paper. It was open to all members of the 8th army, but only poems actually written in the Western Desert were to be submitted. The closing date for entries was Feb. 28, 1943, and on that day 403 poems had been received from 280 different contributors. All this occurred at a time when the desert army was engaged in "hitting Rommel and all his forces right out of Africa for six."

The sequel of this novel competition has just come to hand in an interesting volume, "Poems from the Desert," published in England by the house of Harrap, shortly to be published by Harper in America. By the courtesy of William D. Clark of the British information service, I have been given opportunity to examine a copy of the London issue.

There are only 27 poems in the book, of which 26 are those which were considered best among the entries received. The 27th poem, which is perhaps the best of them all, is unsigned. Only this is known about it, that it was written on a scrap of paper which fluttered into the hands of a soldier sheltering in a slit trench, at El Agheila, during a heavy bombardment. The story is vouched for by Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery in his foreword to the volume. Here is the first stanza of the poem:

Stay with me, God. The night is dark,
The night is cold: my little spark
Of courage dies. The night is long;
Be with me, God, and make me strong.

Thus spoke—and may have spoken—the Unknown Soldier. To the anonymous soldier who received the torn piece of paper, crouching in a trench under bombardment, the incident must have seemed miraculous.

George Sanders, the movie villain and detective, dedicates his first novel, "Crime on My Hands" [Simon & Schuster], to Craig Rice, "without whom this book would not be possible," a line which adds considerable to the mystery of the story behind the book. The mystery public awaits Miss Rice's explanation.

Superb Book for Lovers of Outdoors

"SHOTGUNNING IN THE UPLANDS," by Ray P. Holland. [Barnes, $7.50.]

Reviewed by Bob Becker.

The complete story of upland game hunting is presented in this beautiful book by a distinguished sportsman-writer who has been hunting and studying game birds ever since he was old enough to carry a gun. Considering the author's rich background as a shooter and accurate observer, it will come as no surprise to the reader to find that the pages of this book are crammed full of secrets and tips that a successful sportsman should know. Yet every chapter is written in such an entertaining manner that you read the pages for the sheer joy of sharing wonderful days afield with a man who knows his subject thoroly.

Mr. Holland has divided his book expertly and carefully into two parts. In the first half he is informative yet never dull as he discusses the ruffed grouse [the trickster], "John Pheasant, Citizen," the bob white, Hungarian partridge, and other species of upland game which American gunners love. In the second half of the book he takes the reader on "certain hunts that will live always in memory."

Both sections are done with such colorful writing, sincerity, and knowledge of his subjects, that the reader can almost see the white birches gleaming against the flaming scarlet of sumac and maples while on an October grouse hunt, smell the smoking campfires, and experience the satisfying companionship of the hunting dogs that gallop across the pages into the game bird coverts.

This superb, informative book stamps the author as one of the leading writers on upland game in this country. It will be treasured by the hunter not only because of its incomparable subject material and the fine writing, but also because of the eight beautiful oil paintings and many fine drawings by Artist Lynn Bogue Hunt. This reviewer has no hesitancy in predicting that "Shotgunning in the Uplands" may go into Christmas week with the rank of "No. 1 gift book of year" for sportsmen.

Writer Portrays Great Scotsman at Full Length

"PATRICK GEDDES, Maker of the Future," by Philip Boardman. [Univ. of North Carolina Press, $5.]

Reviewed by Russell MacFall.

The name of Patrick Geddes is not as familiar as perhaps it should be, considering that his restless mind has left its impress on such apparently diverse activities as pedagogy, town planning, botany, and social reconstruction. He himself said that he was the fellow who pulled the bell and then ran away, leaving to his pupils and friends the glory and the practical accomplishment which he had inspired.

As Mr. Boardman, a former student under Geddes at the latter's Scot's college in Montpelier, France, pictures him in this detailed and full length biography, Geddes had a yeasty personality. He was an incorrigible conversationalist, even tho many of his words got lost in his bushy beard, and he had the undampened enthusiasm to plunge into any enterprise which his unique manner of thought suggested—slum clearance in Edinburgh for the benefit of his students, outlook towers to make concrete his belief in the values of regional planning, college and town reconstruction in India, Palestine, and France, pamphleteering, authorship with his pupil, J. Arthur Thomson, of a great outline of biology, sponsorship of international expositions—the list of his outlets for abounding energy is almost limitless.

Geddes typically came to Chicago many years ago and won friendship with such notables as President William R. Harper of the University of Chicago, Jane Addams of Hull House, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, John Dewey, and Thorstein Veblen. Unlike most visitors from the British Isles, this Scot seems to have left behind him no derogatory dicta on Chicago.

Mr. Boardman's biography must have been difficult to write, inasmuch as its subject is both vast and diffuse, fragmentary and often nebulous. Often his work perforce has some of these same qualities, but despite them it exhibits in a clear light a man who was too bright a spirit to be lost in the murk of history.

A Mild View of Germans' Intolerance

"NOW WITH THE MORNING STAR," by Thomas Kernan. [Scribner's, $2.50.]

Reviewed by John Frederick Nims.

Thomas Kernan.

Thomas Kernan, whose experiences during the Nazi invasion of France and the first seven months of the occupation of Paris afforded the material for his earlier "France on Berlin Time," now appears with a novel written during his subsequent internment at Baden-Baden.

Mr. Kernan believes that his book is the only one in English written in an internment camp—but the excitement of this circumstance is purely extrinsic and fails to make itself felt in the novel, which one feels must have been written largely as a passe-temps, an escape from the monotony of internment.

The author of so relaxed a tale seems not to have been consumed with indignation, anger, or any strong emotion. The publisher's declaration that "to increase the chance of getting the manuscript out of Germany in safety the author gave the first draft of his novel a Spanish background" refers to what seems [perhaps only to us in the safety of mid-America] a quite needless precaution.

References to the Germans and even to the Nazis are seldom or never caustic: they are chided for burocracy and minor graft; but even their seizure of a monastery on trumped-up charges of immorality is handled almost as if it were an escapade without serious emotional implications.

But if this novel is somewhat flaccid on both the religious and the political level, many pages of it are excellent reporting. What we see is Germany as it would have appeared in 1938 to a simple craftsman who had spent the preceding 18 years in an austere and ancient monastery where he had had no communication at all with the outer world. The perspective is new and sharply focused; and readers can be grateful to Kernan for his close and sympathetic observation.

Cartoon Books Bring Us Still More Laughter

"MAN IN THE SHOWER," by Peter Arno. (Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]

"THE BETTER TAYLORS," by Richard Taylor. [Random House, $2.50.]

Still the cartoon books come, and welcome they are for those of us who treasure a laugh and who want to proffer some one else the gift of relaxation.

The new Peter Arnotebook rates with his best collections, containing as it does all the gay, bawdy drawings of recent memory and that classic one of the very modern brat clambering about his bed with a tommy gun and saying to a shocked nurse: "You mean the Three Bears raised all that stink over a lousy bowl of breakfast food?" And, too, that one about the oddly assorted young lady who is being advised to consult an occulist.

Richard Taylor of New Yorker fame is collected for the first time in the volume bearing his name. His saucer eyed men and women leer lasciviously at each other with all the delightful abandon of yore, and more than that, they express in their quaint idiocy the common foibles that make people more interesting than anybody.

Here is the advance opinion of PAUL JORDAN SMITH, Literary Editor of the Los Angeles Times:

"The million or so readers who have been begging for another GONE WITH THE WIND now have their prayers generously answered. For in FOREVER AMBER is a heroine who will remind them of Scarlett O'Hara and Catherine the Great rolled into one dainty package of dynamite and surrounded by a score of inflammable young Casanovas from the corrupt court of Charles II... I make bold to reckon that ten million sleeping hours will be gladly sacrificed to its pages... and of course it is going to be a best seller—in capital letters."

Tribune's Fifth Fashion Show Called Finest

By Thalia.

War or peace, as long as there is a leaf to turn, nature annually puts on the world's most exciting fall fashion show. And when nature starts dressing herself up in scarlets and yellows and russets, feminine hearts just naturally long for a sight of new clothes even if they are patriotically happier wearing their old ones.

One of the famous annual fashion shows is now the one sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It was held this year for the fifth time. Prizes of $2,000, $1,000, and $500 and 37 awards of $50 each in this annual American Fashions competition and the publicity which the designers enjoy have given a real impetus to American fashion designing. According to the bevy of fashionable Chicagoans who attended it, this year's show was, despite war time limitations, the best of the five. Many of those Chicagoans are working indefatigably for the success of the St. Luke's Fashion show next Wednesday afternoon and evening, which this year is presenting its 18th pageant of Chicago's exclusive young beauties adorned by and adorning the town's exclusive fashions. Among St. Luke's ardent workers who attended The Tribune fashion show were Mrs. Walter Wolf, chairman of the St. Luke's show, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Edwin Ryerson, Mrs. Newton Perry, Mrs. Selim McArthur, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, and Mrs. John Stevenson, all of whom are members of the committee.

No setting could be more beautiful for a fashion show than was the W-G-N audience studio for The Tribune showing, with its silver walls horizontally striped with light, its gracious stage backed with soft curtains which parted to disclose a backdrop of cloth of gold against which the models posed a moment before they walked down the runway.

Readers of THE TRIBUNE have read descriptions of the gowns and have seen and will see colored reproductions of them in the picture section, but no one who was not present at the showing could imagine the perfection of the setting and the presentation. Mrs. Grace Pickering was the fashion show director. This year's fashions were designed for streamlined simplicity in our streamlined lives of today. How the demands of living affect fashion was shown in a beautiful and exciting prolog of historic costumes, from Greece and Egypt to the Crinoline age. However, in all of that panorama there was only one dress which did not sweep the floor. If history does not exaggerate, dresses were practically all that did sweep a good many medieval floors. For centuries filth inches deep rolled around under milady's hems. Cleopatra and her contemporaries apparently were the only ones whose skirts just cleared the debris.

Style, one realizes, when one sees such a pageant of historic costumes, often is frivolous and traditional even when it tries to be functional.

The Chicago Historical society has recently installed a fall costume exhibit of the early 1900s which makes eyes glitter more often with amusement than with envy. The costumes belonged to well known Chicagoans who have given them to the historical society as source material.

Two of the costumes, which probably seemed breathtaking when Mrs. Howard Linn wore them in

Mrs. Bill A., Grand Rapids, Mich.—If you are washing white uniforms and live in a tiny apartment and haven't a washing machine or laundry tub, try my method of making the work fairly easy. I fill my bathtub with warm water, add a little bleach and some soap powder and then use a regular sink plunger. I keep "plunging" at the garments every little while, for two hours or so. This plunger certanly is a help in drawing out the dirt and I've less scrubbing and rubbing to do when it comes washing time.

Mrs. Bradford K., Chicago—Since carbon tetrachloride seems to be a "must" in every stain-removal cabinet, here's a hint I'll pass on—and one which I seldom see mentioned. This is a fine noninflammable dry cleaning solvent, but don't use it in too large quantities. And have the room well ventilated when you use it, or use it out of doors.

Mrs. Arthur S., Chicago—I oil my washing machine according to directions but take great care these days not to spill oil on any rubber parts. I have had rubber parts softened and ruined thru just such spills. If oil gets on the rubber, I wipe off immediately with soap and water, rinse and dry well with soft cloth.

Now—your idea—please!

29,000 Women Will Canvass for War Fund

By Irene Steyskal.

Chicago door bells are marked for a concentrated pushing tomorrow such as seldom has assailed them. Informally the pushees merrily have dubbed themselves the vacuum cleaner squad and their theme song—variation on a popular tune—hopefully runs, "Lady, be home . . ."

Squad is a deceptive term. The bell ringers number 29,000. But there is nothing deceptive in its avowed purpose. The squad declares itself, frankly and openly, to be a feminine army of gold diggers, out to get $300,000. The campaign, born in the mind of Mrs. Bernice T. Vander Vries, has been organized and is directed by Mrs. Clifton Utley. And it all has to do with the women's part in the Community and War Fund drive. The vacuum cleaner designation refers to the clean sweep which Mrs. Utley and her squad propose to make in their door to door canvass for donations.

Last year the women's division, under Mrs. Vander Vries' chairmanship, tripled its quota—a heady victory which gave impetus to this year's ambitious scheme. The canvassers have 691,000 Chicago homes on their list. They will operate as five district units, each having its own regional chairman appointed by the campaign manager.

On the north side, with Mrs. Snelling Robinson, 1242 North State st., in charge, 170,000 bells will be rung by 7,500 volunteers, who hope to collect $90,000. On the northwest side, where Mrs. George E. Olson, 4333 N. Kedvale av., is chairman, 5,500 volunteers will visit 137,000 homes, and they have $35,000 for their quota. The west side chairman is Mrs. Violet S. Lewis, 3037 Western blvd., and her division of 4,000 volunteers will try to collect $20,000 in a canvass of 102,000 homes.

The south side goal is $90,000. Mrs. Henry T. Ricketts, 5607 Kimbark av., is chairman. She has 7,000 volunteers and the homes on her list total 179,000. On the southwest side, Mrs. Frank White, 1716 W. 103d st., heads 5,000 volunteers, who will visit 103,000 homes, and endeavor to collect $60,000.

Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, president of the Chicago Woman's club, is chairman of a special unit which will ask the treasuries of women's clubs and organizations to contribute a total of $15,000.

This is 50 per cent of the women's division goal. Already a committee of 101 women headed by Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III. have solicited $140,000 toward the $300,000 quota which it is hoped a special gifts list of 2,200 prospective contributors will yield. They are the women from whom the larger contributions are sought.

The drive this year is for $12,980,000, which is $1,000,000 more than was raised last year.

Working on the principle that enlightenment is the surest means for dissipating prejudices, last year Mrs. Harold Lackman and a group of friends from the Women of Good Will, the women's division of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews, after a careful winnowing of hundreds of current books, produced a list of 32 titles. The book list was published on a modest scale under the title, "Reading for Democracy." Nothing short of astonishing, both to Mrs. Lackman's committee and the conference at large, was the interest evoked by the compilation. Reading groups, forums, study circles, libraries, editors, not

Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . Chicken Feed Sacks

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SOME one has said that the person who lifted the drudgery of water carrying from the shoulders of the farm woman is the best friend she ever had. But down here in the Ozarks, running water in the home is still a dream of the future. Edison, too, did right well by farm homes! But for every farm woman who has the advantage of electricity, there are hundreds who haven't. Personally I think the fellow who thought up the idea of putting chicken feed into brightly flowered sacks is the greatest benefactor the farm women, as a whole, have ever had.

Of course, some brands of flour, too, come in flowered sacks. But it takes longer to use up a sack of flour than a sack of chicken feed, so the flowered sacks do not accumulate so rapidly. And maybe the flour isn't the kind we like for our biscuits and light bread. So actually, we can give the flour men only half a credit, while the chicken feed manufacturers are blessed with practically every waking breath. The gay flowered sacks are the brightest spot on the farm horizon. They even take the sting out of losing money on chickens.

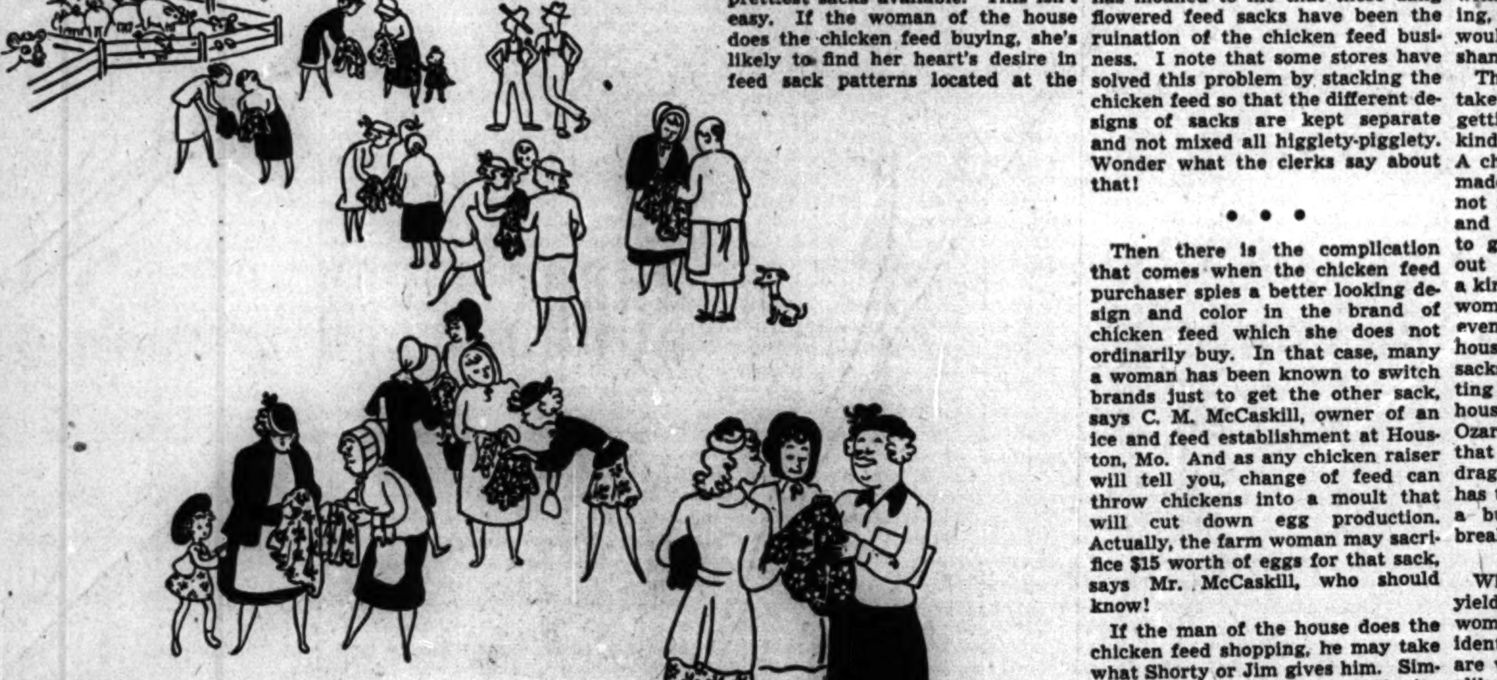
Special thanks go to the manufacturers who thoughtfully paste their chicken feed labels and trademarks on their sacks with a stick-em that washes off the cloth without leaving a trace. When the sack is ripped open, washed and ironed, there's a square of fabric about 40 inches in size, with nothing to mar its beauty. Sometimes the sack of feed has been handled roughly in shipping, and a tiny jagged hole may show up some place. But that isn't often, for every one handling these sacks of feed realizes that a torn sack is mighty hard to sell. No woman wants the job of jockeying a pattern around to miss a torn place, or making a new dress for Susie Belle with a darned place in one sleeve before it is ever worn. For the most part, the square of fabric, after its washing and ironing, is as fresh and usable as brand new "boughten goods" from the general store. And as pretty, too. When the manufacturers decided to put chicken feed into flowered sacks they really went all the way.

I must admit that I heard a woman say the other day that her sister up in Iowa gets prettier sacks than we get down here. But I think that was simply a case of the grass being greener on the other side of the fence. You couldn't ask for a prettier fabric than one with a bright red background overlaid with big chalk white flower outlines. Made into a full gathered skirt and suspenders and worn with a white blouse by a pencil slim young Ozarkian, it has decorated our Sunday school setting all summer. And that's just one design out of hundreds that I have admired in the Ozarks. Sometimes the backgrounds of the fabrics are soft, dull blue, sometimes they are white, sometimes yellow, and the flower, fruit, and conventional designs take on every form and color known to the cotton trade. Furthermore, these colors are quite as tubfast and sunfast as almost any we find in these days. The texture of the feedsack fabric is as pleasing as the colors. It is about as coarse as the popular "butcher's linen" and in addition to being pleasantly cool on a hot day, it actually looks and feels like linen, particularly if a bit of starch is added to the final rinse [pronounced "wrench"] water on wash day.



Now, of course, several problems must be surmounted in the use of these flowered feed sacks. The first problem, naturally, is to get the prettiest sacks available. This isn't easy. If the woman of the house does the chicken feed buying, she's likely to find her heart's desire in feed sack patterns located at the bottom of a ceiling high stack of chicken feed. And if the clerk isn't coöperative, it's just too bad! And don't blame the clerks. Many a one has moaned to me that these dang flowered feed sacks have been the ruination of the chicken feed business. I note that some stores have solved this problem by stacking the chicken feed so that the different designs of sacks are kept separate and not mixed all higglety-pigglety. Wonder what the clerks say about that!

Then there is the complication that comes when the chicken feed purchaser spies a better looking design and color in the brand of chicken feed which she does not ordinarily buy. In that case, many a woman has been known to switch brands just to get the other sack, says C. M. McCaskill, owner of an ice and feed establishment at Houston, Mo. And as any chicken raiser will tell you, change of feed can throw chickens into a moult that will cut down egg production. Actually, the farm woman may sacrifice $15 worth of eggs for that sack, says Mr. McCaskill, who should know!

If the man of the house does the chicken feed shopping, he may take what Shorty or Jim gives him. Simply because his masculine dignity couldn't stand the strain of picking out "purty sacks." This happens so often that Ozark women have worked out an informal system of trading. When a woman accumulates a half dozen or more sacks that she doesn't like, she washes, irons, and folds them with the greatest of care. Then she takes them along when she goes to town on Saturday or attends a sale of live stock. She's sure to find other women there with their sacks designed for trading, and the swapping that goes on would put the stock exchange to shame.

This system of trading also helps take care of problem No. 2 which is getting enough sacks of any one kind to make a desired garment. A child's dress or play suit may be made of one sack. That's easy! It's not much harder to get two sacks, and modern styles make it possible to get a good dress, average size, out of two sacks. Three sacks of a kind are increasingly difficult. But women get them. Furthermore, they even go a step more and make house coats, which require four feed sacks. Perhaps the difficulty of getting this number is one reason why house coats are not popular in the Ozarks. Or possibly it's the fact that the trailly things get so bedraggled around the hem when one has to go out to the cistern to draw a bucket of water to make the breakfast coffee.

When the trading system doesn't yield the right number or kind, two women may pool their sacks and cut identical garments, that is, if they are willing to wear dresses exactly alike. Two of my friends, Grace McCormick [the Kate Smith of the Ozarks], and Sarah Gates, found they had been saving up sacks just alike. Each is a three-sack size, or at least, well beyond the two-sack size, but Grace only had two sacks while Sarah had three. On the day Sarah cut out her dress, Grace went over with her two sacks, and from the five sacks, they were able to make an attractive coat style house dress, with elbow length sleeves, for each of them.

Quilt tops are made of the scraps of sacks left over from dresses, and quilts are lined with whole sacks. Kitchen curtains, pajamas, dresser scarfs, lunch cloths, even handkerchiefs and pillow cases are likewise made of these flowered feed sacks. And probably few aprons in the Ozarks are made of anything but feed sacks. A pattern company has put out a pattern for a beautiful, well fitting apron complete with protective bib that can be made from a yard of cloth. And the way that pattern gets loaned around among chicken raisers is a caution.

Even masculine wardrobes are not safe from chicken feed sacks. I noticed that when the Texas county [Mo.] Associations of Master Farmers and Junior Farmers held their assembly day, Mrs. Fannie Rust won first prize for men's shirts made of feed bags, and second for boys' suits, also made of flour and feed bags. Mrs. Pearl Humeston won first prize for ladies' dresses and suits as well as for undergarments and night gowns, along with second prize for men's and boys' shirts, and third for pillow cases. All made of flour and feed bags, of course! And just in passing, she picked off third prize in canning fruits, another third in canning meats, and fourth prize in the canning of vegetables.

Some types of chicken feed come in white bags. While these white sacks are not accumulated with the same excitement as the flowered sacks, they have so many uses they are known as "Ozark linen."

Four of these sacks make a sheet, and while it has seams, that's a small matter when the sheet is as clean, white, and sweet smelling as rain water, soap, and Ozark sunshine can make it. And as for tea towels, what could be better than a soft, lintless [well, almost lintless] sack bleached snowy white. Each sack makes two tea towels, and these can be mighty pretty. Ozark women are not stingy with their handwork.

When company offers to help dry the dishes, practically any homemaker in the hills will bring out tea towels decorated with gay designs of flowers, fruit, puppies or kittens embroidered in bright colors. And more than likely the towel will be edged with handmade lace, even tho it began life as a chicken feed sack. Generally speaking, these tea towels are on a par with guest towels. At least that's the case at our farm, where they can count themselves lucky if they get hemmed. And even in this, Ozark women have taught me a trick. If the feed sack tea towels are to be used unhemmed, I have been told to cut the sack crosswise, leaving the selvage at the ends instead of along one side. Then when the tea towels whip on the clothes line on a windy wash day they will not fray out so readily.

I could go on for hours telling about the household uses made of feed sacks here in the Ozarks. In fact, I could even tell how to put two sacks together to make a large sized lunch cloth without having a seam in the middle. But I can't waste time at my typewriter today. A terrific ironing job is waiting for me in the yard kitchen. In fact, that big basket of clothes which I washed yesterday includes my entire wardrobe of summer dresses, all 10 of them. Yes, you guessed it! Ten chicken feed sack dresses!

1912 and 1915, seem a far cry from Mrs. Linn's present day invariable chic. The 1912 one of henna velour was made by Premet in Paris with an ankle length hobble skirt, an awkward straight jacket that ends at the waist.

The 1915 costume was made in the atelier of Marshall Field & Co. of gray gabardine. Its bolero, bound in silk braid, is adorned with an enormous mirth-provoking tassel. The skirt is draped toward the side intricately but oddly and a paisley blouse completes the snappy little outfit for an afternoon of calling. Gray suede slippers elaborately beaded or black patent leather slippers coyly painted, one with a Spanish man's head, the other with a senorita's, apparently were interchangeable, depending upon the formality of the occasion. An enormous dark blue velvet hat trimmed with the now taboo osprey feathers dyed a rich henna probably made Mrs. Linn the envy of every young woman in town. A visit to the historical society's exhibit of clothes and fol-de-rols should make any Chicago woman grateful for the streamlining of today's fashions.

The most streamlined of all present day fashions is the sheathlike dress of the Chinese woman. At "China's Birthday Party," which was held at Orchestra hall on Monday night to celebrate the 33d year of China's republic, the program included such impressive events as talks by Donald Nelson just back from China and by Gen. Shang Chen, chief of the Chinese military mission to the United States, and China's foremost soldier-diplomat, a chorus of war workers from a steel plant in their working clothes, including riveting helmets. But the event which surprised the audience was a pageant of Chinese costumes prepared and presented by men and women of the Chinese community of Chicago. Some of the lovely historic costumes were, I hear, loaned by Mrs. Silas Strawn, at whose home Mme. Chiang Kai-shek and her entourage dined during her memorable visit here in March, 1943.

The fashions of 600 years passed in review. From the Sung dynasty there was a white satin costume with the long hand concealing sleeves which the great Chinese actor, Mei Lang Fang, used with such dramatic power. From the Ching dynasty an old mandarin gown of gorgeous purple brocade. A blushing bride wore a scarlet skirt [red for happiness] and a black jacket embroidered in bridal roses. A mirror dress 600 years old was embellished with thousands of little mirrors which made the gown itself seem a living thing as the procelainlike little figure moved. The present sheathlike style of women's dress so beautifully adapted to the figure of most of the Chinese women and so exquisitely worn by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek came in with the republic.

The uniforms of Chinese men in service today also delighted the audience, all so much like the uniforms of our own young men who are fighting today beside the Chinese. How desperately their help is needed was emphasized by Mr. Nelson, and how tenaciously the Chinese will fight on by Gen. Shang.

Among the patrons and boxholders were Chicago's admirers of China, the John Paul Wellings, the Frederick Scotts, the Silas Strawns, Russell Tyson, Miss Frances Whedon, the Walter Brewsters, the Edward Ryersons, the Gilbert Scribners, to name only a few of the almost 300 leaders in the five organizations which sponsored the evening. James Cleary, chairman of the Chicago Committee of United China Relief, was the efficient chairman of a most attractive and inspiring evening.

If I seem to have emphasized fashion more than war it is not because war is not the deep, intimate core of all of our beings these days. Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who spent the summer in the Meeker home in Montecito, Cal., says that life on the west coast is much more affected by the war than ours is. It is because the war has made greater demands on the hospitals as well as on all phases of charitable life in America that the St. Luke's fashion show is of especial importance this year. And it is because of the war that the difficulties of continuing the most successful amateur fashion show in the country have been doubled. It used to be the debutante's dream to be in the St. Luke's fashion show.

This year there are almost no debutantes and many of the young and lovely who are usually mannequins are trekking from one army camp or navy base to another with their husbands. A few of the young matrons who thought they had retired permanently from the runway have been forced to make up the model power shortage. Mrs. Watson McLallen, who has been the bride in two previous shows, is one of the group of regulars which includes Mary Barnes Sudler, Louise Carr Hodgkins, Elsa Armour Osborne, Geraldine Swift Taylor, and Anne Wood Mitchell, who started modeling as debutantes.

War was very close to the audience at the Woman's Athletic club on Tuesday morning when Mrs. Mark Clark talked from the heart on "A General's Wife Looks at the War." She showed fascinating lantern slides of some of the snapshots which Gen. Clark had sent her from his famous secret mission to Algiers which preceded the American entry into Africa, the Italian campaign, and a few pictures which she had just received from Rome. Mrs. Clark made an earnest and heartfelt appeal to her audience for faith in and work for a better world for her husband's men to come back to.

only in this but from communities thruout the country, wrote, requesting copies. One hundred thousand copies have been provided by the Chicago women in answer to these requests.

The fact gives added significance to a second listing which the Women of Good Will are presenting at an informal tea tomorrow—the first general assembly of the division in its new quarters on the 9th floor at 203 N. Wabash av. The second list of 22 books was prepared for children. It is compiled in three sections, for tots, intermediates and boys and girls of high school age. "Books for Young America" this list is entitled.

Miss Phyllis Whitney, writer in the juvenile field, is to speak briefly, and Mrs. George R. Wilson, chairman of the Good Will group, will present the women who compiled the new list. They are Mrs. Stuart Sherman, who is the chairman, Mrs. Roy G. Ross, Mrs. Harold W. Ruopp, Mrs. Augustine J. Bowe, and Miss Dorothy Posey. The meeting also will serve to introduce Dr. Sterling W. Brown, the new associate director of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews, and Mrs. Brown, who will be guests at the tea.

Mrs. Lackman and her committee are at work revising and adding to their original catalogue and their new listing of books for adults probably will be ready for publication in January. The group of readers includes Mrs. Theodore Crawley, Mrs. Joseph Lewis, Mrs. Felix Levy, Miss Sara B. O'Neill, Mrs. Edward Rosenheim, Miss Helen Ganey, Miss Edith L. Pierce, Miss Posey, and Mrs. Hugo Roney.

Among musical groups in town busy with plans for fall activities, the American Opera society takes the spotlight with its opening meeting, set for Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 31, at the Woman's Athletic club.

The program for the opening carries an emphatic reminder that the society, founded by the late Eleanor Everest Freer, has its interest centered on American music and musicians. Dr. Douglas Moore of Columbia university has been nominated for the organization's David Bispham medal for his folk opera, "The Devil and Daniel Webster," which is based on the famous Stephen Vincent Benet short story. The medal, the 59th to be awarded, will be conferred at the October meeting, and, tho it is not yet certain, it is possible that Dr. Moore may be able to come to Chicago to receive it.

Mrs. Esther Turkington, serving as program chairman this season, has arranged for Dr. Moore's opera to be presented in a dramatized form by James Bradley Griffin, who will be assisted by Joseph Anderson at the piano. Mrs. Ralph Otis will have charge of the tea table and she will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur Wirtz, Mrs. Edward Leight, Miss Carol Fox, Mrs. Ashley M. Brand, Mrs. John Hemphill Coulter, Mrs. William Allison, and Mrs. Ralph Winston. The society's executive group is headed by Elaine DeSellem.

The Musicians Club of Women, one of the determined bands which undertook to instill cultivated tastes in the rugged Chicago of a few generations ago, will gather at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow in Curtiss hall for a 70th anniversary musical and tea. Mrs. Theodore Thomas, wife of the founder-conductor of the Chicago symphony, was one of the early presidents, and thru her the club derives its proud designation as founder of the Federation of Music Clubs.

Either professional or amateur, all members are musicians, and the anniversary concert will be given by several of the club's best known singers and instrumentalists. Participating as soloists will be Agatha Lewis, soprano; Marjorie Sherman, contralto; Charlene Brewer, violinist, and Rose DuMoulin, pianist. Edith McMillan Barnes and Margaret Smith, members, and Marion Hall, guest, will be the accompanists.

Plans for an especially festive tea are in charge of Mrs. Ralph N. Friedman and Mrs. Paul Dieterle. Pouring will be the club's honorary member, Mrs. Charles H. Swift; Mrs. Alma K. Anderson, president of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs; Mrs. William H. Barnes and Mrs. William Lester. Serving as officers of the club this season are Mrs. Jennie Ekblom Peterson, Miss Blythe Owen, and Mrs. Ruth Klauber. One of the founding members is still living. She is Mrs. Annette R. Jones of Highland Park.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

The first fur wraps—and also some of the smart new fall suits—of the season turned up at a lecture which opened the season at the Woman's Athletic club last Tuesday. One of the best looking of the suits was worn by Mrs. William A. Ryan, who is moving in town from Wheaton this week. It was soft brown in color, well tailored, and boasted several pockets, which cabled reports from Paris note as high fashion at the Paris openings. The brick red jersey blouse which Mrs. Ryan wore with the suit had a modified turtle neck and she pinned a small gold clip at the side front of the rolled neckline. Sitting at luncheon with her was Mrs. George McWilliams Jr., in a mannish tailored, gray gabardine suit, made with an elongated coat line. Her blouse was white, with a tiny jabot, and on her head was a skull cap of brown felt which ended in a point over her forehead, and from which jutted down to one side a wing of reddish-brown feathers. A Persian lamb coat was worn by Mrs. David H. Annan, in from Lake Forest to hear Mrs. Mark Wayne Clark speak on "A General's Wife Looks at the War," which was the club's opening program. With her black crepe dress Mrs. Annan wore a tiny black hat adorned with gold leather elephants. Mrs. Ralph G. Johnson, urging one and all to come to the Kenwood Social Service club's "Lucky 13 Cocktail party" last Friday at the Racquet club, wore a stunning cocoa wool suit with appliques of fruits and leaves of the same material decorating the jacket. She wore several sable skins about her neck, and an attractive small sailor of matching cocoa. Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky appeared in a flattering and feminine tricorne sailor trimmed with three red roses, swathed in gossamer sheer black veiling. A double strand of pearls high about her neck, a simple black frock, and a silver fox stole completed her costume.

Suits received a definite nod of approval from the smartly dressed women who assembled in the W-G-N studio theater for one of the showings of the recent 1944 Chicago Tribune American Fashions show. Vying in cut and color with the stunning costumes paraded down the runway was a beautiful suit of sheer chartreuse wool worn to the show by Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr. Its neckline was fastened with a gold bow knot and muffled with a scarf of brown paisley silk, and the hat which exactly matched this ensemble was a swirl of chartreuse feathers tipped in brown. Mrs. Henry Hooper, who left for Mexico a few days after the show, appeared in an appropriate fall costume, a finely tailored brown suit with which she wore a brace of sables and a brown felt hat pyramided in burnt orange feathers. Another eye-catching suit at the show was a nubby wool one in a rich blue-plum shade worn by Mrs. Vernon Loucks, who added a dull gold blouse and a peaked felt hat in the same blue tone, resulting in a particularly effective costume. A trim town suit of a pencil-slim black skirt and straight-lined jacket of gingerbread brown, shown by one of the mannequins, had its counterpart in the audience in Miss Muriel MacChesney's ensemble. Her black bolero jacket suit was faced in brown lapels. The felt flaps which made up her brown pancake hat were edged in shiny black beads, and a scarf of brown furs completed her costume.

Mrs. Ernest D. Bishop, in charge of program, will present Mrs. Mary Berkmeier Quinn and Miss Marie W. Becker in a panel talk on "Women and the Legal Document," and Paul Durham, baritone, and Mrs. Rose Taylor, who will give a musical.

The Daughters of Indiana will give a dessert bridge at 1:30 o'clock Friday in the Studio Tea room, 114 N. Marion st., in Oak Park, as a benefit for their charities and war service work. Mrs. Frederick Tice, past president, is in charge. Members have contributed jams, jellies, books, and other articles for a sale. For a second year Mrs. Clifford R. Rogers, also a former president and vice chairman of Mrs. Tice's committee for the benefit, has contributed one of her own oil paintings.

Music Club to Hear Recital by Young Artists

Winners of the annual scholarship contest sponsored by the Chicago Woman's Musical club are being groomed for their debut, and will be presented in joint recital at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday evening in Kimball hall. Because of talent and ability of competing young artists, Mrs. Cornelius J. Peeples, club president, has announced the club's decision this year to give a portion of the program to musicians adjudged runners-up in the 1944 contest.

Mrs. C. J. Peeples.

Vera Jeske, contralto, and Tommaso La Ratta, youthful pianist, who has studied with Florence Neff, were selected as winners in their respective classifications from the 100 contestants entered in the competition by teachers of the many Chicago conservatories and studios. Runners-up in piano are Mariette Plante and Florence Peterson. Eva Coleman, contralto, placed second in voice.

Laura Howardsen Barkwick and Mrs. Roswell K. Reid, contest and scholarship chairmen, are being assisted with arrangements by Mrs. Peeples' corps of officers: Mrs. Walter Siegert, Mrs. Ernest E. Vollmer, Mrs. Hallgrim Hansen, Mrs. Richard T. Hillyard, Mrs. Osborne Knapp, and Mrs. Henry J. Hartung.

Marking the opening of its 30th season, the Chicago Artists' association will give a concert at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building. Katherine Conlon Johnson heads the association, which plans to present young artist winners of its 1944 scholarship awards in a debut recital on Dec. 5 in Kimball hall.

The opening autumn meeting of the Chicago Musical Arts club has been set for 3:45 o'clock this afternoon in the Alliance Francaise clubrooms in the Fine Arts building. The program, which will bring as artist participants the club's junior and student choral group and the Dushkin's ensemble of recorders, will be followed by a reception for the president, Mrs. Louise Trenton.

A resumé of the club's 1944-'45 calendar reveals that Mrs. Lola Carter Robuck, study course chairman for Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, is scheduled to give three book talks during the season. Mrs. Olga Sacerdote, voice instructor, has announced a continuation of a scholarship in memory of Mme. Nellie Melba, and Miss Ada Honderick has offered a scholarship in piano to the junior department. Programs are under the direction of John C. Wilcox.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, October 12, 1896.

Dear Julia: I have been giving a luncheon today in honor of a cousin of Will's from downstate who is a student at the University of Chicago. Now in her sophomore year, she lives at Beecher Hall, a girls' dormitory. Here she has made some pleasant friends and I asked a few of them, with two or three who aren't in her dormitory. One of the Beecher Hall girls, Anna Wilmarth, is the daughter of my beloved friend, Mrs. H. M. Wilmarth, one of the brightest intellects of the Chicago Woman's club. Others were Edna Stanton, who lives at Kelly Hall, where Dean Marion Talbot is head; pretty Caroline Paddock of Hyde Park; Jennie Hall, who is much interested in Chicago history, and Grace Neahr, one of my favorites, who is quite literary in her tastes. Grace prepared for college at Ascham Hall, one of our fine girls' schools, whose head is Miss Kate Martin, a sister of our famous Mrs. Charles Henrotin.

William Vaughan Moody.

Do you find that the conversation of young people is sometimes unintelligible? Some of this sounded strange to me because I am not familiar with terms used at college, for instance "English 2" or "English 4." And I heard talk of "The Man in the Iron Mask" and thought they were discussing the mysterious prisoner of days gone by. It turned out to be nothing of the sort, but a young instructor in English about whom they are all crazy. His name is William Vaughan Moody and his "English 4" is quite famous, it appears. Our cousin Alicia has been taking this course and was exalted to the seventh heaven when one of her themes was read aloud by the great professor, or assistant professor, as I believe his status is. He did not tell who had written it, but she said she felt so self-conscious, she knew every one must have realized who was the author.

Whatever Mr. Moody says or does seems to be law and gospel to them all, and they feel he will one day give to the world some great poetry. They knew all his life history and I pieced it together and was interested myself. He was born in Spencer, Ind., of parents whose means were limited, the father having been a steamboat captain in the east. He early showed a bent for scholarship and the character to get an education under difficult circumstances. He taught school to earn money for his college course and arrived at Harvard in 1889 with $25 in his pocket. He put himself thru Harvard by tutoring, typing, and acting as proctor, taking the four year course in three, besides partly supporting a sister.

He worked the next year for his master's degree and then became a tutor at Harvard and Radcliffe. Just a year ago, he came to Chicago university and is already—so the girls said—one of the most admired members of the faculty.

Small of stature is their idol and he wears a Vandyke beard [which looks "so literary," said his admirers, rolling their eyes upward in devotion] and is shy and taciturn. They call him "The Man in the Iron Mask" because of this aloofness, but in spite of it, they adore him. Perhaps I should say, because of his aloofness, he is adored. He seems to be immune to the charms of college women.

My luncheon menu was quite successful, I thought. [a] Oysters on the half shell, first of the season. [b] Clear soup, served in the pink bouillon cups you gave me last Christmas. [c] Whitefish, with cucumbers. [We do have delicious whitefish from Lake Superior.] [d] Quail on toast, with grape salad. [e] Ice cream and cake. [f] Fruit and candy. [g] Coffee, served in the parlor.

Not much news here, save politics. Will grows more and more confident that McKinley will win. Democrats of long standing are leaving the party, saying it has been taken over by the Populists and they can no longer stay with it. Love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

William Vaughan Moody [1869-1910] was author of "The Great Divide," called at first "The Sabine Woman," and produced at the Garrick theater April 12, 1906, with Margaret Anglin in the leading role. He married in 1909 Harriet Brainerd, a teacher in the Hyde Park High school. Mrs. Moody established the "Home Delicacies association," now out of business, and the still flourishing "Le Petit Gourmet" on N. Michigan av. Anna Wilmarth became Mrs. Harold L. Ickes; Edna Stanton married A. A. Michelson, the great scientist; Grace Neahr became Mrs. Veeder and lives in Wauwatosa, Wis.; Jennie Hall wrote text books on Chicago history. . . . "Ascham Hall" was the forerunner of Faulkner school, 4746 Dorchester av.

Chicago Fire.

Mrs. C. J. Cedarburg, 920 Belle Plaine av., writes that she—then almost a baby—saved her pink parasol from the flames. Her older brother, aged 9, went to the business district after the fire was out, and with some companions lugged home a case of what they thought was pop. Tasting it, they decided it wasn't very good and were about to pour it out and save the bottles, when the boy's father intervened, seeing the label. It was champagne!

Science says: Thousands can recapture youth of face and throat

Seven years ago, eminent scientists gave the world ENDOCREME, an epoch-making contribution to the beauty of the feminine face and throat. Today, ENDOCREME is aiding thousands between 22 and 70 to regain the charm of a youthful skin to a degree hitherto thought impossible. This it does by helping to improve the skin itself, not merely its superficial appearance. ENDOCREME, you know, is the only face cream that contains ACTIVOL. This precious ACTIVOL is the laboratory counterpart of a natural skin-vitalizing substance. When you apply ENDOCREME, it is absorbed beneath the skin's surface to rebuild cells and tissues. It thus functions to aid the skin to recapture its youthful freshness, firmness, smoothness and allure. What bigger value can one get for her cosmetic dollars than this? You, too, should try ENDOCREME. Many report truly astonishing results in only 30 days.

Rifka Angel to Show Group of Gouaches

By Eleanor Jewett.

This week is starting out under happy circumstances. Rifka Angel, who has been swallowed up by New York for much too long a time, will show a group of Hawaiian Gouaches at the Roullier-Art galleries, 410 S. Michigan av., in an exhibit which opens tomorrow. It will be a matter of interest and delight to see how Miss Angel's exotic talents have developed since we last saw work of hers in Chicago.

Paintings of the Mississippi valley by Edward McNear complete the exhibition—the first of the fall season for the Roullier galleries. The paintings will remain on view thru October.

A stunning new exhibition opened last Monday in the Findlay galleries, Michigan av. and Van Buren st. Emile Gruppe is showing a magnificent series of marines and landscapes in oil. The exhibit will be supplemented tomorrow with "The Hemisphere in Watercolor," by Eliot O'Hara.

Meanwhile the paintings by Gruppe are more than enough to give one pause. Whoever knows the landscape of Vermont and the beauties of the eastern seaboard will feel as tho in this show they had come home. Gruppe paints in a charmingly familiar manner that establishes at once a friendly bond between picture and viewer. His work is vigorous, striking, and strong; also is warm and rich, gay and alive. Whether you are on a winter hillside in Vermont with the trees a feathery screen, or in the hot sun on an August dock at Gloucester harbor, you are, with this painter, at home.

The paintings are paintings to be lived with. They are unusually beautiful and as "escapist" avenues to calm thinking rate high. It is hard to make a choice among so many superb pictures. There is a magnificent marine at sunset and another at noon with surf crashing on rocks. There are sailing boats clustered about a pier with a hot sun beating on their white sails. There is a tranquil winter afternoon with a sloping hill carrying trees like tapers under a gray sky heavy with snow. There is a winter noon deep in the forest with big trees deep in dazzling snow—and there is "Vermont Covered Bridge," an intriguing little picture. In between these are many different, decorative, challenging paintings as stimulating to the imagination as swift chords stroked on a violin.

Eliot O'Hara is one of the most brilliant painters of today and his anticipated show of next week will add, another glittering success to the distinguished season opened by the Findlay galleries. To go a little farther into the future with what we may expect in these galleries, Pushman has promised a group of recent canvases for November and that, knowing the unique beauty of his painting, will be an exhibition no one should miss.

TO BE MARRIED

Miss Eileen Farrar, whose engagement to Raymond Brockmeier, son of G. H. Brockmeier of Oak Park, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Farrar of Evanston. Miss Farrar attended Virginia Intermont college, Bristol, Va., and her fiance studied at Northwestern university. The wedding will take place on Nov. 25 in the Bethany church.

The Chicago Galleries' association, 215 N. Michigan av., opens tomorrow an exhibition of recent paintings by Adam Emory Albright, Charles W. Dahlgreen, and Frank C. Peyraud. The three men are famous Chicago artists, veterans of the brush. Mr. Albright's pictures of children have given a great deal of pleasure thru the years and Mr. Peyraud's fine lanscapes have reached a large public, while the versatility of Mr. Dahlgreen's technique has kept his work well in the forefront in discussions of contemporary art—he can produce a modern canvas in excellent taste and style as quickly as any of the younger men and create a Victorian effusion the following moment.

The three men are forceful; creative painters and the exhibition is one well worth seeing. It will continue thru October.

The South Side Art association has an interesting exhibit of oils, water colors and sculpture at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, thru Oct. 28. J. Wellington Reynolds shows one of the most lovely paintings, a portrait of a young girl. The painting reminds one of Fragonard, so subtle and delicious are the colors, so gentle and delicate the sitter. The portrait was honored with a medal at the Paris salon when it was exhibited abroad. It still breathes an atmosphere typical of romantic France. Harriet Cory offers a delightful "Ballerina" and Nelly Deachman the attractive "Portrait of Marie." Ethel Crouch Brown has a colorful "Phlox Garden"; Winifred Pleimling the exotic, glittering "Pearls for the Witch of Atlas"; Eugene B. Barrows the lovely "Artist's Daughter"; Emil Armin the forceful "Meadow in Autumn,"; Charles Biesel the wintry "A Dune Shack"; Olive Newton the amusing "Toys"; Violette Rice the charming "Connie and Jinny Fotos," and Rachel Stearns the fine dog portrait "Dagwood on Point."

Sgt. Peter A. Belpulsi and his wife, Nathalie, are showing water colors in the gallery of the Art institute school. His are of English scenes done before the invasion of France last July. Mrs. Belpulsi shows paintings of Chicagoland.

Diana Thorne, noted etcher of dogs and illustrator, was in town last week for two days. Miss Thorne at one time made a long stay in Chicago, but recently her work has kept her to her New York studio.

Fernand Leger, noted French painter who escaped from France and has been living in New York for several years, is now in Chicago. He spoke last Saturday at the Arts club and showed an amusing and unusual group of motion pictures, films made by men whose names are art history—Dali, Picabia, Moholy-Nagy, Rene Clair, and himself.

An exhibition of his newest paintings is on view at the Institute of Design, 247 E. Ontario st., and M. Leger is staying on to teach for a number of weeks at the school.

Richard Epperley, Chicago painter, is busy working at Colorado Springs, Colo. His commission will engage his attention for some months to come.

Miss Judith Davis, Air Force Cadet Recently Married

Sarasota Home of Ringlings Is Italian in Style

By Rose Cour.

SARASOTA, FLA.

Much of Florida is reminiscent of the Mediterranean. This is particularly so of the gulf coast and more especially Sarasota bay. Here the sea is blue, the sky bluer, the sun hot, and the vegetation tropically luxuriant with green foliage and vividly colored blossoms. That the architecture of the region has been influenced by the climate and the native landscape is evidenced by the prevalence of Spanish, Moorish, Italian, French, and even classic Greek type houses.

One of the handsomest in the Italian style is the home of Mrs. Charles Ringling, Shell beach, Sarasota bay, several miles north of the city. Actually it is much more than a mere house or villa, verging as it does closely on the palatial.

It is built of Etoya marble, almost white, flushed with the faintest tinge of pink, delicately veined with palest gray and blushing into deep rose when wet with rain. Those seeing it for the first time assume that marble to be so beautiful must come from Italy. The information that it comes from the quarries of Etoya in the neighboring state of Georgia is a pleasant surprise.

While the house is charming when approached from the driveway, the view of it from the ocean side is even more impressive. A cloistered loggia and open portico, upon which the living room, dining room, and music room open with high arched windows and French doors, look upon gardens, lawn, swimming pool, and the bay. The latter is just 200 feet from the house. The sunsets over Sarasota bay are so breathtaking that pausing to view them is almost a rite among those who live on the bay. This is especially true in the Ringling family and gathering in the loggia or on the terrace for the sunset is a daily family custom.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ringling and their two sons, James and Charles, also are members of the household. Mr. Ringling, the son of Mrs. Charles Ringling, sang with the Chicago Civic Opera for several seasons. The Ringlings also have a home in Evanston.

The house was designed by the late Charles Ringling, altho the actual plans were drawn up by Architect Alfred Clas of Milwaukee, who has always made the plans for the Ringling houses, the first of which was built in Baraboo, Wis., 34 year ago. Baraboo is famous as the original home of the seven Ringling brothers and the circus.

In keeping with the size of the house the main drawing room is 58 feet long and 44 feet wide. It is a large room with high ceilings of elaborately moulded plaster, yet amazingly homelike and comfortable. Mrs. Ringling's own taste in decorating and furnishing is largely responsible for this. Her use of color is interesting, even daring, but the results are charming. The walls are putty colored with low dado painted creamy yellow, lending a neutral background for the vivid tones of furniture coverings and rug. Blues and soft reds predominate in the huge handmade French rug, which was woven for the room. Two and one-half years were required for its making.

Many of the chairs and sofas are covered with warm Venetian red silk appliqued with gold. Others are covered with beige silk and with tapestry. Several of the chairs are replicas of Italian renaissance pieces, some with red velvet seats and backs and others with sea green. The window hangings are of brocatelle in stone green.

The music room, down seven steps from the living room, is truly magnificent. It measures 60 feet long and 42 feet wide and is paneled in walnut with a walnut beamed ceiling. Even the grand piano and the console of the organ are walnut. The floor is teakwood, and, incidentally, this is the only wood floor in the house. The other floors are marble, downstairs, and tile upstairs. The wood floor was installed in the music room not only for its acoustical properties but for dancing. As many as 300 guests have danced in the room at one time.

One of the most attractive rooms in the house is the billiard room, in which black and brilliant Pompeian red predominate. The windows and door casings, as well as the dado, are of coal black African marble and the floor is of antique verde marble. Murals depicting scenes of ancient Naples cover the walls.

Another of the attractive Italian buildings in the vicinity is the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art, which is modeled after the architecture of the Florentine period. The 22 rooms in which the art treasures are exhibited surround a terraced courtyard of formal flower beds and grass plots, set with rare old fountains and statuary. The museum contains nearly 400 originals, including works of Rembrandt, Raphael, Titian, Van Dyke, Fra Bartholomeo, Franz Hals, Andrea del Sarto, Murillo, Velasquez, El Greco, and Rubens.

The Rubens collection alone includes 13 paintings and four tapestries. It is said to be one of the largest collections of old masters in the world and was acquired by Mr. and Mrs. John Ringling over a period of 35 years. In addition to the paintings, there is a fine collection of pottery, bronzes, marbles, and wood carvings. Hundreds of antique marble statues, arches, columns, and doorways are incorporated in the construction and decoration of the building itself. In order to transport the bulk of the paintings and objects of art, Mr. Ringling chartered a steamship at Genoa which carried the treasures direct to Port Tampa which is near Sarasota.

Home Furnishing Hint.

Harmony and repose are gained by putting the large or oblong pieces of furniture parallel to the walls or in front of a window or before a fireplace.

Club to Mark Golden Jubilee Next Saturday

Fifty years ago a group of 25 serious minded young women in the Normal park community banded together as the Semper Paratus club, their purpose being primarily to study together. In this golden anniversary year, Miss Flora J. Bates, who was the first president, again holds the gavel, and two other charter members are in office—Mrs. Margaret Findlay Elderkin, who is treasurer, and Mrs. Coral Cox Brownell, the secretary.

Mrs. Charles F. Greenwood is opening her home in Libertyville Saturday to the now widely scattered club members for an afternoon of reminiscences and a golden jubilee dinner. In addition to the officers named, the other surviving charter members are Miss Nellie Lawrie and Mrs. Kate McLellan Brown. None in the organization, which meets every two weeks, has been a member for less than 25 years. Mrs. Blanche Wells Salisbury is vice president.

Mrs. George W. White.

If there are any of war's ill winds that blow good, medical science must be rated as a major beneficiary. Truth and Fact May Not Mean Same to Child

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

You can say to yourself, "Anything my child says that isn't true is a lie. It's morally wrong and I won't have it."

Or you can look at a statement by your child that isn't true in a more liberal and more truly understanding way.

Everything that isn't a fact isn't a lie. Your child may be lying when he makes a statement that isn't literally so, but on the other hand he may not be lying at all! Your response will depend upon what the nature of his misstatement may be. And we must decidedly consider his age in connection with using the label "lie" or "truth." What may be a lie at 10 may only be a flight of imagination at 3. Moral "black and white" apply even less to children's conduct than to adults!

The first thing to do if you feel that a real lie has been told by your child is to look for a possible cause.

One of the most common and most understandable reasons for lying is fear of punishment. When a mother sternly says to her little daughter [and the little daughter remembers previous spankings or scoldings], "Did you break that vase?" the little daughter in desperation may be driven to say "No," even if the broken pieces lies at her feet. This is, of course, the easiest type of "lying" to correct. Just cut out the fear of retribution. Also be human and keep in mind that lots of adults break things.

Then there is that less tangible but equally disturbing "story"—the story that if half fantasy and half reality. To the imaginative child the fantasy part may be as real as the real part is to us. This, of course, altho some mothers call it "telling lies," is really only "making up stories." If we treat it as such, the distinction between what is imaginative and what is not can be kept clear. It is only when these fantasies persist that parents must begin to help children to make the distinction between fact and fancy.

Mothers often write, "My little girl won't tell something that happens accurately. She'll change it around." But this isn't really distorting the happening at all. To her childish eyes and with her entirely different concept of things, she is telling the event as it appeared to her.

If those mothers have ever had the experience of hearing several persons tell their different versions of some incident that they all witnessed, they will not be so perplexed over their own child's recital. It may be accurate as far as the child is concerned—not an attempt to deceive.

Another type of so-called lying is really a type of loyalty. A boy, we'll say, has to choose between telling a lie and being disloyal to his friend or "gang." He feels that the lesser evil is lying. This is often a disturbing decision to him, but it is something we must respect. We can talk it over with him, and present a better point of view if we have it.

Another [and allied] trait is a child's exaggerated and unusually highly exciting account of some happening. This often is an attention getter, and yields to mild measures, one of which may be a quiet chat afterward in which you get a version of "how it really happened."

The most necessary thing in dealing with untruthfulness or "romancing" in all its various phases is to be close to your child so that you can deeply understand him and what motivates him. This cannot be done by being with your child occasionally, or by doing as one mother does: "I plan to spend half an hour with my little girl each day." It requires the cultivating of a deep confidence so that you can understand and have faith in your child and not make it necessary for him to pray, as did one small boy, "Please God, make Mother believe me."

Many Visitors Enjoy Autumn on East Coast

BEVERLY, MASS.

Autumn days on the Massachusetts north shore are proving alluring to many Chicago colonists who plan to keep their homes open until late in the fall. Seasons are growing longer and longer on the north shore, as many of the hotels are keeping open until after Columbus day.

At the country clubs there is a quickening of activities with more golfing at the famed Myopia Hunt club at Hamilton and at the Essex county country club in Manchester than on many of the days during midsummer. The social side at the clubs is a happy one, with luncheons, teas, and an occasional dinner dance brightening the programs. For the next few weeks and continuing until after the New Year it will be a gay season for the debutantes with many of the younger set making formal bows to society.

The John Clays have closed their summer home, Finisterre, out on Eastern point in East Gloucester and have returned to Chicago for the winter. The Clays were among the early comers to the north shore. It was an especially interesting summer for young William Clay who skippered his yacht to many wins on the Eastern Point and other yacht club regattas.

Mrs. Richard Crane Jr. of Chicago has returned to her Castle Hill home in Ipswich after a visit in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Chapman have gone to their new home in Bayfield, Wis., after a honeymoon on the north shore. Mrs. Chapman is the former Alice Kathleen Miller, daughter of Mrs. Helen F. Miller of Ogden, Utah, and Mr. Chapman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gerard Chapman of Hinsdale, Ill. They were married recently in St. Andrew's Episcopal church.

Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago and Rockmarge, Pride's Crossing, was elected a member of the executive committee of the Beverly Improvement society at the annual meeting held recently. Mrs. Moore has at her Pride's Crossing home one of the finest gardens on the north shore and takes a keen interest in the affairs of the society, whose endeavor it is to keep "Beverly beautiful."

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter of Chicago and Sunset Hill, Beverly Cove, is among the subscribers to the Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts, the first of which was given on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Henry V. Cabot, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. Malcolm Greane Haughton, Mrs. Neal Rantoul, Mrs. Francis P. Sears, and Mrs. Richard D. Sears of the north shore colony, also are among the subscribers.

Fabric Winter Coats Feature Clever Details

By Rea Seeger.

Important winter coats, each a flawless foundation for a well planned wardrobe, are shown with and without fur this season. Furless models are outstanding examples of what clever designers can do with fabric and contrast without the luxury of fur. Many are extraordinary because they look as warm and snug as any of the furred creations. Prices on the unfurred models are much less than those with pelts. The wind and weather repellent qualities are doubled with such trick stuff as stitching, quilting, and padding, as well as thick, flexible fabrics.

The most exciting coats without benefit of fur are those made of contrasting colors: two-tone or tri-tone jobs in beige gray, brown and blue. Gray is this season's smartest basic color for a winter coat, particularly in these three-tone models; brown is second, and beige is third. Sleek distinguished all-blacks still rate the first choice of discriminating shoppers. All are featured in models emphasizing little if any fur accent.

Waist lines are defined with belts or with a shirred or gathered detail; sleeves are distinctive because of wide, easy armholes and bias cut shoulder lines and sleeves. Shoulders are all wide and easy, while the skirts are full with a smooth line over hips.

Much has been done with narrow fur band trims, such as two to four bands used for the cuffs and bands around the hemline of the skirt. Bolero effects of fur, appliqued to the wool fabric is another fur trick. All this controled fur trim assures ideal coats for the petite figure and at the same time provides coats of moderate price. Black, brown, and gray Persian lamb are the favorites for such coats. Mink, kolinsky, squirrel, sealskin, and caracul are used in the same manner.

Coat silhouettes vary, with a most interesting new streamline, the knee length, wrap-around model causing much comment. This is the model that can be worn loose and hanging free, or wrapped doubly across the front. Necklines are deliberately collarless. Many models have wide fur bands around the cuffs of the wide, loose sleeves and a deep band around the lower edge of the coat itself. It's a revived 1926 silhouette, to make friend of foe at first glance.

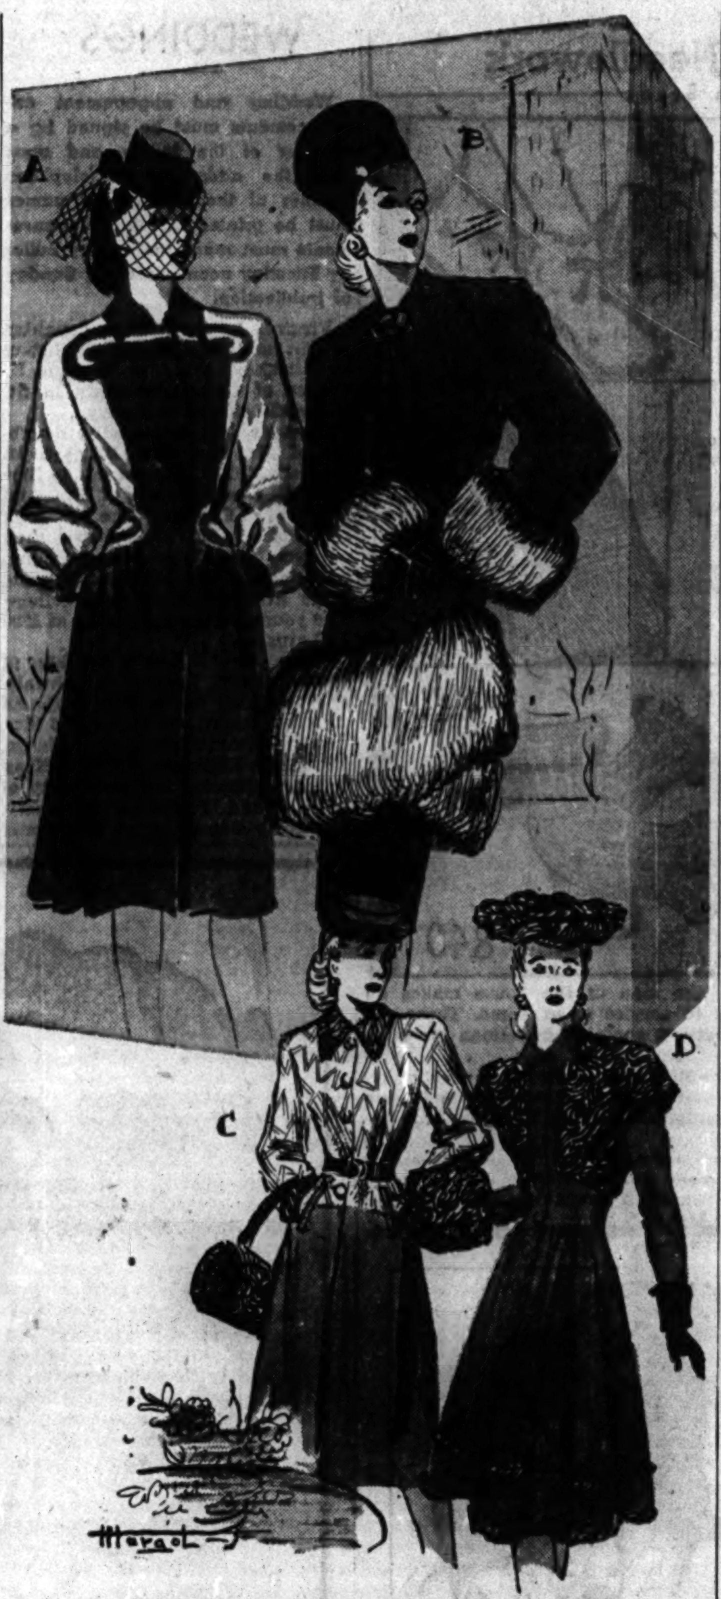
Whether you seek a long or short coat, fitted or straight line model, a coat of dull black, one of brilliant color, or the new, subtle neutrals of gray or beige, winter coat collections are now at peak interest. Shop now, while you can pick from dozens of new and smart designs, unusual silhouettes, and daring new contrasts of color and fabric.

Four fall and winter coats are sketched today. They are from one of the newest collections, available in a Chicago store. Others, with similar distinctive details are to be found in the same showing. For further information call Superior 0200.



A . . . Unusually detailed town coat in two tones of gray wool has dressmaker softness. Scroll trims shoulders and fitted waist line. • B . . . New, short wrap-around black coat has dyed fox ….n around cuffs and lower edge. • C . . . Smart coat combines black skirt and gold wool top which is stitched in black. Narrow bands of Persian lamb are used on cuffs and collar. • D . . . Dressmaker wool coat features bolero effect of Persian lamb. Fur also trims full skirt and cuffs.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Personally we can take or leave that little isle known as Manhattan, but we couldn't be persuaded to part with the first of the new fall lipstick shades, which is named Manhattan red. It's a sweetheart of a color, and incorporated into a lip rouge of the smoothest, creamiest texture.

We like this color because it's a rich one; we hate harsh lip rouge shades, or characterless ones. We also hate those horrible sultry dark jobs that make mouths look like ghoulish gashes. This is one that lacks all these faults. While it's a little on the deep side, it doesn't go deep, deep down into the bucket of blood class. There are plum undertones, unless our old eyes deceive us, and we like that.

This is going to be very nice for your new fall face as well as your new fall clothes. It goes well with the dark colors most of us will be donning, because, while it's deep enough to be harmonious, it's got enough life in its nice red depths to be a bright facial accent. You'll be able to wear it with flattering success with just about every costume color on the 1944-'45 horizon.

The case of this new Manhattan jewel is a nicely duked up bit of war time packaging. It's of plastic, in ivory with a quite delicate pink and blue design and it has a trick swivel that looks to us as tho it's going to work well indeed. The mechanism of some of the plastic cases has been less than perfect; this looks like a superior one that will hold up.

This lipstick isn't any more expensive than most, and you can find it just about everywhere. We know you'll like it if your taste in shades runs to the rich, flattering, and somewhat sophisticated.

Are you using the right tooth brush?

STRAIGHT LINE DESIGN
CLEANS TEETH BEST
SAY DENTISTS 2 to 1

How Dentists Voted on Brushing Surface Designs

There are only these 3 basically different brushing surface designs among all leading tooth brushes sold today:

Straight Line Design
Tufts all set in a straight line
Concave Design
Tufted higher at ends, lower in middle
Convex Design
Tufted higher in middle, lower at ends

When 30,000 dentists were asked which of these designs cleaned teeth best—by overwhelming odds, by more than 2 to 1—the answers were: "Straight Line Design"!

Every PEPSODENT Brush has the Straight Line Design most dentists recommend for cleaning teeth best

Pepsodent
FIFTY TUFT

In an impartial, nation-wide survey among 30,000 dentists . . . Straight Line Design won over the other widely used types. 2 out of 3 dentists declared it most effective for cleaning teeth!

You no longer have to guess which tooth brush to buy . . . which design cleans teeth best. Now, for the first time—you have the opinions of thousands of dentists to guide you!

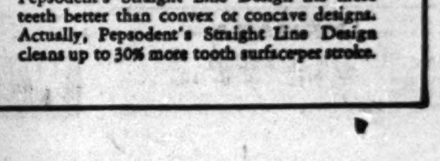
In a nation-wide survey, just completed, an independent research organization asked 30,000 dentists: "Which tooth brushing surface design, in your opinion, is most efficient for routine home brushing of the teeth?" By overwhelming odds, the answers were: "Straight Line Design!" And that's the design you get in every Pepsodent Tooth Brush! 2 out of 3 dentists declared Straight Line Design cleaned teeth best! Dentists preferred it 2 to 1 over the other two designs combined!

Moreover—Pepsodent's brush head is small and compact, easy to use. Feels comfortable even far back in the mouth, where teeth are hardest to get at.

In choosing your next tooth brush—get the design most dentists recommend. Remember, 2 out of 3 dentists chose Straight Line Design as the design that cleans teeth best!

Why Pepsodent's Straight Line Design Cleans Teeth Best

Despite popular belief, it is a fact most teeth in the average mouth lie in a series of relatively straight lines.



These diagrams represent the two extreme types of dental arch. Even in these extremes, note that most teeth are in relatively straight lines. Pepsodent's Straight Line Design fits more teeth better than convex or concave designs. Actually, Pepsodent's Straight Line Design cleans up to 30% more tooth surface per stroke.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

Ozarks Region Is a Paradise for Fishermen

By Mildred Peterson.

BRANSON, Mo. [Special].—A fisherman's paradise is what they call this section of the Ozarks where the best catches are made in October and November and the season is open till Dec. 31.

Lake Taneycomo and White river in Taney county, about 50 miles south of Springfield, are famous for their fishing float trips. They have had the biggest summer season in their history and expect the fall season to be similar.

The float trips last one, two, or three days—two fishermen and a guide to each flat bottomed boat. If several boats are needed by larger parties, a supply boat, which carries tents, food, and extra supplies, is taken. At night you camp on the gravel bars and your guide fries the "catch" of the day.

You will use fly or bait casting rods with either live bait or artificial lures. The fish to be caught include both kinds of black bass, crappies, bluegills, wall-eyes [called jack salmon down here], and catfish.

While some of the larger resorts on Rockaway Beach are closed, there are smaller places there and at Forsyth, and Hollister, which offer comfortable accommodations. Usually after Oct. 10 you can expect a touch of frost, which colors the beautiful trees of the Ozarks, making autumn one of the most delightful of seasons.

Outfitters who arrange for float trips down the rivers are a part of the accommodations of this country. There are such outfitters here at Branson and also at Forsyth. Branson is on the Missouri Pacific and from here you can reach Rockaway Beach by boat and Forsyth by bus, to the north, on the shores of Lake Taneycomo; or Hollister, across White river. The large power site or Ozark dam is located between Rockaway Beach and Forsyth.

To the west of Branson is the well known "Shepherd of the Hills Country," rich in our country's folklore and literature. Here you'll want to visit such places as Fairy Cave, Inspiration Point, Uncle Ike's P. O., and Old Matt's Cabin. Nearby also at Point Look Out is the much talked about, much visited School of the Ozarks, where children from the poorer families may work their way thru school by working on the farm, or by means of arts and crafts.

There are hayrides, picnics, and cave trips, in addition to hiking, canoeing, boating, golfing, riding, and hunting, which deserves more than a mere mention. There are many hundreds of acres of timber country where abound the larger species of game [some 2,000 deer probably will be taken out this fall season], while many other hundreds of acres supply you with quail, rabbit, and squirrels.

Missouri boasts over 78,000 acres of state parks, forests, and refuges, containing big springs, caverns, rivers, and brooks, trout fishing streams, bridle paths, nature trails, forests, and beautiful clear water rivers. The major recreational parks are complete with hotels, cabins, camping, and picnic areas.

Michigan Issues New Folder for Huntsmen

Grand Rapids, Mich. [Special].—Under the title, "Good Hunting in Michigan," the Michigan Tourist council has issued a new folder of detailed information for the hunter. They are for free distribution and any sportsman may obtain one by dropping a card to the council's office, 22 Sheldon av., N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Lady of the House

Along the Little Roads.

As October's "suns grow meek and the meek suns grow brief," once again elm and birch and maple pave the little roads with gold and crimson; and the brave old oaks, clinging to their royal robes, mindful of destroying frosts, cold and tired rains, and icy blasts, charily drop a bit of purple, copper, or jade on the bright pattern.

I am lured along to find the pot of gold at the foot of this radiant rainbow and to capture as much of its beauty as I can hold, so that I may feast the "inward eye" when all this has gone. There is a sudden flight of finches from the hazel copse . . . a cataract of bittersweet spills over an old stone wall . . . a bed of asters in the ragged yard about a weather beaten little house . . . late clover drying in October sun . . . heaps of golden ears in a denuded field . . . three white ducks worrying an unhusked cob until a strutting white cockerel drives them off . . . a peeling, battered, blue painted wash tub on a stump, given over to weeds but for one pale aster—essential work must be done and that which feeds the spirit left to chance.

In the lee of a woodsy windbreak snuggles a rejuvenated log cabin, blue smoke rising softly from a new chimney; and, where the little road comes back to town, a quaint old house, slender porch posts fanning out to meet a scalloped valance at roof and eaves, is sheltered under hoary firs. One tall hollyhock stands by the fence, and a lone cricket scrapes a sleepy tune before he lays away his fiddle.

Spring Will Bloom Again.

This evening I see only empty nests
In trees whose falling leaves are drifting fast
O'er fallow fields, while every branch divests
Itself before the bombs of winter blast.
The air feels tangy with the breath of frost
And chills my heart with loneliness and fear
As I remember what the world has lost
In blood and sweat and tears this fated year.

This evening I see only empty houses
Which Mars has visited and robbed of laughter;
And still that demon, God of War, carouses—
Nor does he care what plagues may follow after.
And yet I know that spring will bloom again
On battlefields now strewn with bleeding men.

Did you get to see
Wild geese flying
South patriotically
In V-formations?

I was putting a pinch of salt in the apple sauce when Aunt Ella came in. She had lost her favorite rule for green tomato pickle—the one that has lots of onions and brown sugar in it. I got out my treasured remnant of an old Sarsaparilla cook book and there it was. Aunt Ella does more things with tomatoes! To her they are the most versatile vegetable. Or fruit?

These Cookies Travel Well to Yank in States

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Don't think I'm mean for waiting until past time to mail overseas packages before coming out with these good cooky recipes. The delay was deliberate, I must confess, for I don't think that cookies ever should be sent overseas. A rich, fruity holiday kind of fruit cake, perhaps, but nothing more perishable.

If your man or woman in service is still in the states, however, these are the cookies to send. They keep well enough to stand a week's travel time, if necessary, and should arrive in fine condition, if well packed.

Wrap each cooky individually in waxed paper, or wrap two in one square of paper with a small piece of waxed paper separating them. Use a sturdy box, and fill it, so that the cookies won't shake about and break. Crushed paper, popcorn [popped], or other insulation around the cookies will protect them from too much of a shaking up.

Peanut Drop Cookies.
[Six dozen.]

1 cup vegetable shortening
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1 teaspoon soda
1½ cups sifted flour
3 cups rolled oats
½ pound salted Spanish peanuts

Cream fat and sugars thoroly. Add vanilla and beat in one egg at a time. Sift flour with soda and add. Stir in oats and peanuts. Drop from a teaspoon onto a lightly greased cooky sheet and bake 10 to 15 minutes in a 400 degree oven.

Cape Elizabeth Cookies.
[Four dozen.]

½ cup margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1½ cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats
5 tablespoons milk
½ cup candied pineapple, shredded
½ cup seedless raisins
¼ cup chopped candied orange peel
½ cup chopped walnuts

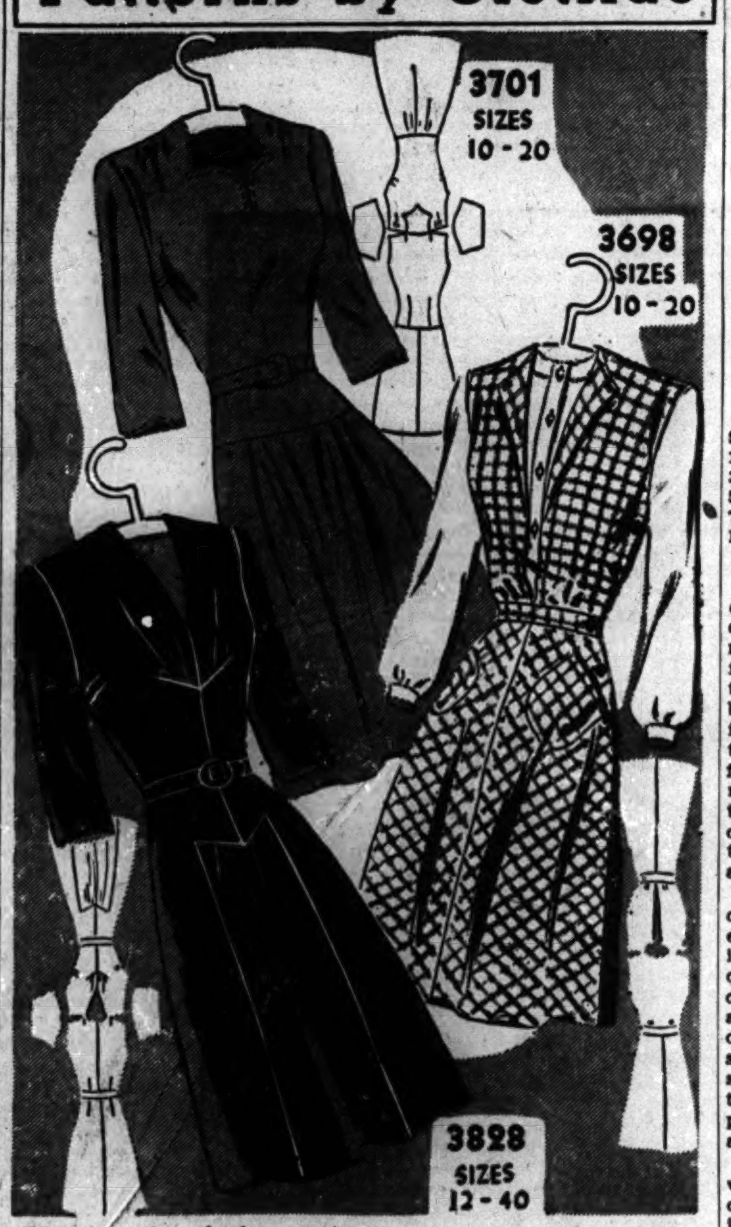
Patterns by Clotilde



With these three frocks, easy to make with the simple patterns, any woman can have a smart basic wardrobe at small cost. Two of the dresses can go to dinner or the theater after office hours, and the other, with tailored ways, is equally at home in a business establishment and on the campus.

No. 3701 adopts the new and lower waistline below the natural one, which is encircled by a belt. Stitching outlines the heart-shaped neckline and the bracelet length sleeves. In crêpe or woolen, this frock is a grand background for your favorite jewelry.

No. 3698 does interesting things with the jumper idea, combining a checked, side-buttoned jumper with a colarless, neat-as-a-pin contrasting blouse.

No. 3828 uses shirring strategically in the bodice and in the front of the skirt. Black is especially smart in this simple but distinguished dress.

Style No. 3701 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 35 or 39 inch material.

No. 3698 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Sizes 16 requires 2¼ yards of 54 inch material for jumper; 1⅞ yards of 39 inch fabric for blouse.

Style No. 3828 is designed for sizes 12 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	1 spade	1 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
7 hearts	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Ace of clubs.

The bidding is given as it actually occurred. An opening bid of two diamonds by the South hand could not be criticized. As a matter of fact, on a hand this rich in distribution and high cards, if partner can be found with either four spades or four hearts, even without any honor tricks, a game is very likely. Therefore, all things considered, a two diamond opening is probably the better choice. West's overcall was not of the best, but he justified it on the ground that he was not vulnerable.

The final bid of seven hearts was certainly overambitious. Declarer expected to find the king of spades in dummy and hoped to pick up the queen on a finesse. West's double of the final contract was not advisable. He was warned that his ace of clubs would not live, but he reasoned that the dummy would have several spades because of the no trump bid and that his king would probably be behind declarer's ace and prove to be a winner.

The normal play of this hand would be the spade finesse, but declarer had advance information that it would not succeed. The ace of clubs was ruffed by declarer with the king of trumps. A small heart was then led to the nine in dummy. The ten of clubs was ruffed by declarer with the ace. Dummy could now be entered again with the king of diamonds to ruff the last club and two losing spades subsequently discarded on South's good diamonds.

The difficulty, however, was that the dummy could not again obtain the lead to pull the remaining trumps. There was, however, one hope, and that was that West held the ten of diamonds, in which case the dummy could be entered twice. It is true that if East held the ten of diamonds, declarer would be defeated another trick, but since it was the only hope of fulfilling the contract, the extra points involved were no more than a fair sized tip.

Declarer therefore led the three of diamonds and played the nine from dummy. When this held the trick, he ruffed the remaining club, entered dummy with the king of diamonds, pulled the trumps, discarded two of dummy's spades on South's good diamonds, making in all five diamonds, one spade, four hearts in the North hand, and three ruffs in the South hand for a total of 13 tricks.

This technique is known as dummy reversal or making the dummy the master hand. That type of strategy may be employed when the dummy's trumps are good enough to draw those held by the opponents and where the short suit is in the declarer's hand.

All of us are descended from the lady who was curious about the taste of an apple, and "bite" even when we recognize Forbidden Fruit! But, like Eve, we usually learn to our sorrow . . . which reminds me that we all know that kitchen chores cause hands to coarsen in texture and to look older and reddened UNLESS regular hand-care, with a good protective cream, is used. Yet thousands of women neglect this hand-care routine . . . and suffer from hands that look much older than their faces! Now that's plain silly, when smoothing on PACQUINS Hand Cream after hands have been in water, and every night before going to bed can make them appear smoother, more lily-white and ever-so-much younger looking. That's because PACQUINS helps protect against chapping and provides a soothing lubrication for roughened hand-skin. Its snow-white creaminess is velvety smooth and pleasantly scented . . . it disappears without leaving a trace of stickiness. See if your hands don't look lovelier when you begin this PACQUINS hand-routine, and remember, PACQUINS is a wonderful help to youngsters, too! PACQUINS is sold at Drug, Department and 10c Stores!

Rules of Hygiene taught in schools usually apply to health only . . . little is said about personal daintiness and charm. Somehow, that seems all wrong,—for we brush our teeth not only to keep them clean, but to make our smiles more charming.
